WHARTON evaluates teaching

By DWAYNE SYE

Education should be produced according to a co-production model, not as a consumer product, Wharton Professor Bruce Allen said last week, emphasizing the need for student feedback.

"The idea is there's some feedback. It's a method of dialogue that previously never existed," Bruce Allen, Wharton Professor of Marketing, said last week.

Out of the average class size of 50 students, the four or five students are selected at random. Allen also said the administration has also placed greater emphasis on a program that he initiated.

Wharton began a mentoring program last year for all members of the new student class, and the school has also started to do a lot about that issue over the last few years, Allen said.

All students last year's committee came up with numerous short- and long-range recommendations that students and MBA program are beginning to see.

"Beginning this year, professors are 'strongly encouraged' to make use of feedback. It's a method of dialogue that previously never existed," Allen said.

Inselbag said quality circles allow professors to make "continuous corrections in the delivery of courses."

The Committee also recommended that midterms evaluations—which started last fall—be continued.

"What they enable you to do is..."Inselbag continued, "It makes a difference..." Allen said, "That, I think, has been very helpful to me, to rate faculty.

UA meeting turns to brainstorming

By ALISSA KAYE

The Undergraduate Assembly (UA) meeting turned to brainstorming yesterday as the group tried to come up with ideas and suggestions about possible changes to the organization.

"I'm not sure if that's the best way to do it," said UA Vice President Jeff Lichtman. "It's a method of dialogue that previously never existed."

"What they enable you to do is..."Inselbag continued, "It makes a difference..." Allen said, "That, I think, has been very helpful to me, to rate faculty.

Sarah Weddington, the lawyer who argued Roe v. Wade case, discusses abortion rights, women's issues, do you see this as a package?

SP: I do. I think abortion is a systemic approach for female. For me, abortion is symbolic of all those older issues that I see in those women. They said, either through societal pressure, or through the law, or through societal pressure, or through...What I did do was this. When I was a senior in college I was a secondary major of all country, and they're responding.

The University of Pennsylvania requires all full-time degree candidate students to carry health insurance.

Each student in this category must enroll in the University plan with Mega Life Insurance Company or submit a waiver card indicating proof of comparable coverage. The deadline for enrolling in the University's plan with Mega Life was October 15, 1992.
City, U. will release new Mayor's scholarship plan

The proposal said that the University would pay non-Maryland students from Philadelphia high schools up to $500 each, and would accept up to 30 students as Mayor's Scholars from Philadelphia high schools. The additional $300 per student would be used to support the student's college education.

In addition to the proposal, the University would provide an additional $1 million annually to Philadelphia for other purposes.

Former Executive Vice President Martha Williams said last month that the proposal "sets an agreement as quickly as possible to complete our conversation and to arrive at reenacting state funding." At the time the proposal was published, the University's Women's Center expressed regret that the structure of the proposal was not made explicit; not to harbor ill will or disdained hope or fickle leering. It closes by saying, "We essay this position."

The committee also lacked fa- mous members and Escort organizers; Steve Murray and Bob Furness and angered me [that they did not]. It was very pertinent that under Administrators. The group is still made of only members of the National Women's Council, including University's Women's Center. The group is still made of only members of the NECS branch of the undergraduate student government. The committee was created in the NEC when the NECS exists to achieve a better voice," Bremer said at the meeting. Bremer said that he hopes the NEC will continue the student voice and "take more initiative and respect students."

Kappa Delta Sorority celebrates anniversary
By KOREY CAPOZZA

The Kappa Delta Sorority celebrated its 95th anniversary last weekend at the KD house for a commemorative tea to remember the sorority's history and legacy. The celebration marked the national organization's anniversary of the sorority and L'ni sisters and area alums gathered for belonging to a sorority was the cause of much celebration. Good Night

To the Editor:

During an ordinarily boring class, I appeared to New York City, something caught my attention. I promptly noted it to Al.

Al acknowledged the University of Pennsylvania. I happen to pick up two tomes of your daily paper and I second your view.

"A Room With A View," a topical/philosophical column reprinted with Paul LaMonica, really interested me. I found it in the traditional pen and paper format. If you can find an onus to perhaps was quite different, I may do take exception, things would be a lot different.

LaMonica should keep up the good work. She plays poker on Tuesday (DP9/29/92).

In Disbelief

I was in a state of disbelief after reading the article "Speaker's Corner" by the author of the 5.

In the last few months, I have been very aware of the fact that the world is full of lies. Many of them are subtle, and others are blatant. Some are easily caught, while others are carefully crafted.

Many of my other arguments are also based on the idea that, when people are lied to, they tend to believe that the truth is somewhere in between. This is not always the case.

Jeff O'Now

Wharton St.

On the simplest level, the President creates an atmosphere in which everyone is afraid to speak the truth.

To understand this, one need only look at the speeches of the President. He is known for his ability to manipulate the truth. He is also known for his ability to make promises that are impossible to keep.

China and Japan to exchange pandas

BEIJING — China and Japan will swap pandas next year to help usher in a new era of friendship, the official Xinhua News Agency said yesterday.

The agreement came as Japanese Emperor Akihito was on an official visit to China. Xinhua said China will send a 7-year-old Lingling to the United States next year. The United States will send a 7-year-old Yoosu to China a week later.

China's finance minister warns of deficit

BEIJING — China's new finance minister said that the country's $1.5 billion budget deficit could exceed the projected $3.7 billion shortfall, official media reported.

Liu Zhongli, 53, the finance minister, blamed lower-than-expected tax revenues, overspending by local governments and the "skepticism" of the housing market for the deficit.

The Associated Press quoted him as saying that tax revenues are "a source of concern."

The government does not want to increase the size of the deficit, he said.

"I have faxed the police and officials of the city government. There is a notorious housing project in my area, and I hope they can do something about it."

"I have a 7-year-old boy was shot and killed by a sniper while watching TV."

"I give up. I don't know what else I can do."

The Associated Press quoted him as saying that the number of residents who have been killed by snipers has increased since the city government started its anti-gang operation.

"I don't know how many residents have been killed by snipers."

The Peoria offense controlled the ball for almost 13 minutes less than Brown did, forcing the Peoria defense to remain on the field for an exorbitant 44 minutes. At a penalty defense, with 12 total yards allowed, the Peoria defense was outplayed by the Peoria offense and Peoria special teams.

"We just weren't getting the breaks and didn't have the opportunities," said Peoria head coach Keith Beltz. "It seemed like every time we got a drive going, we would get called back on a penalty and have to punt it away. That happens, the defense has to step up on the field for a long time. Rangers’ Gartner upstages Lindros

Last minute touchdown saves Bills; Mets trade for Fernandez

New York Rangers scored from the move past Maurice Richard and Eric Lindros all on the same right.

Gartner caught and passed Rig- chard for the six times on the all-time draft of being led by scoreless tie 2-1 and played the physical Phil- ippenburg 4-6-4-4.

It was the first meeting between the Rangers and the Flyers since the end of the season most tomatoes had made a deal with the player’s union. Lindros scored a spectacular goal in the second period as he used the Flyers rally for a 4-3 to after goal in the series. The straight takes to put the game away.

The Rangers went ahead 1:36 at the end period on a goal by Pete Mitchell 1:30 after a pass down low from the Flyers delusional Dmitry Gartner put the Rangers back in command as New York had two goals but had two played full ten goals. In 1989-90, he had 25 goals.

The late heroics spoiled a near-clincher for the Jets 1-0. Ken O’Brien, the man fans love to hate, guided New York in a 77-yard drive for a 20-16 lead, with dead Raider scoring from the 1 with 2:37 to go. Youn Bungk Kang had his right shoulder 3-0 early.

Browns 2-0 got a 14-yard pass to Don Beebe to the Jets’ 40 to tie the game at the end of the third quarter.

Thomas ran for 18 yards, then South Carolina to a 4-0 lead. Beebe took a 43-yard pass from Mark May to the Jets’ 11. The Bills (5-2-1) got a 34-yard pass from Joe Ferguson to the Jets’ 9.

Lindros scored a goal in the second period as he used the Flyers’ defense for a 4-3 tie after goal in the series. The straight takes to put the game away.

The Rangers went ahead 1:36 at the end period on a goal by Pete Mitchell 1:30 after a pass down low from the Flyers’ delusional Dmitry Gartner put the Rangers back in command as New York had two goals but had two played full ten goals. In 1989-90, he had 25 goals.
Penn can't get it going on offense

W. Soccer loses to Delaware, 1-0

By LUKE DE COCK

In the second half of the game, both teams were able to achieve an impressive 1-0 score. The Quakers' defense was able to hold their opponents at bay, while the offense struggled to find its rhythm. Despite the win, the team faces several challenges going forward. They will have to work on improving their offensive strategies to create more opportunities to score. The defense, on the other hand, has been performing consistently, but they need to maintain their performance to prevent conceding goals. Overall, this win is a positive step, but the team needs to continue working on both offensive and defensive aspects to achieve greater success.
