Seinfeld to speak to grads

By DENNIS BUMAN

Seinfeld, the kooky comedian who has rocketed to the top of the humor world, is set to speak at the Student Senate of the University of Pennsylvania during Thursday night television special, “Seinfeld: Inside Dorms.”

Seinfeld said, his southern twang twanging, “I couldn’t bear the thought of having to move off campus. It’s not safe anymore, and we’ve never seen it working, and the shootout walls. But for $25 million, they have to have a thing in Hill House, too,” he added.

“We’re more than anything I own,” said Karp, whose holdings include Hamilton Court and dozens of other properties, “We drank Tab. Ate cheese nips and played Pong all day long,” Seinfeld said last night, adding that she would be perfectly honest with you.

One of the most common teaching and non-teaching fellowships will be announced this week. The fellowship will provide $25,000 to support research and the professional development of students in Arts and Sciences.

Donald Fitts, dean of Arts and Sciences, said that every department in the school will have to deal with the budget cuts that have already resulted in the loss of faculty positions. "I guess we'll all have to tighten our belts," Fitts said at a meeting yesterday.

Fitts also said that Mega life insurance, the carrier currently responsible for covering the school of medicine, will be taken care of by the time the new university-wide committees are formed. "It's just not going to happen. There will be a strike before we agree to anything," he said.

"They say we don't think the alarm is a good idea," Fitts said.

Bush named to Yale presidency

Yale University alumni and former United States President George H.W. Bush was named president of Yale University on Tuesday. Bush will replace President Richard Levin, who is stepping down at the end of the academic year.

“Bush is an outstanding leader with a remarkable track record of service in public and private life,” said Yale’s board of trustees.

Bush, who is currently a principal of the investment firm Bain Capital, has been a member of the Yale Corporation since 1988. He was the 41st president of the United States from 1989 to 1993.

“I am honored to have the opportunity to lead Yale,” Bush said in a statement. “I believe in the strength of Yale’s mission and the importance of preparing our students to make a positive impact on the world.”

The appointment is effective immediately, and Bush will serve a six-year term as president.

Columbia professors strike

Unidentified faculty members went on strike yesterday morning at Columbia University at the start of the spring quarter.

“Columbia is a great place to work, but it’s not a great place to teach,” said one professor, who declined to give his name.

The strike, which is being led by the American Association of University Professors, is in response to a variety of issues, including salary, workload, and the university’s policies on intellectual property.

“Columbia is not a good place for teaching and learning,” said another professor.

The university has about 4,000 full-time faculty members.

Princeton students have ‘no lives’

Princeton University’s President Richard Brodhead announced plans to banish Princeton’s Office of Undergraduate Student Life last week after an outside consulting firm determined that the office was a “complete waste of University money.”

The New York accounting firm of Price Waterhouse and Coopers, which was hired by Princeton to conduct the study, found that the office was “not essential” and that its continued presence was “not worth the cost.”

“Who wants to pay for a school that’s not worth the price?” said one of the Princeton students.

The study concluded that the office was “not essential” and that its continued presence was “not worth the cost.”

Although Maloney was turned away by Bradley's insistence on referring to Penn as Penn State, Bradley was able to impress him with his knowledge of the game.

"I heard Matt was really into phi- league," the prominent Democrat gushed. "He's really into the Ivy League. He'll be a big boost for our Tigers."

Meanwhile, both Bradley and Ma- loney refused to comment upon re- mark that Maloney has recently come into the possession of an en- tire sheet of the hard-to-get Elvis Presley stamps.

"So I did some reading," the prominent Democrat explained. "I'm really good. What do we need him for? I'm good. I really explained. "I mean. I'm good. What do we need him for? I'm good. What do we need him for? I'm good."

"With Maloney here we should be back to form," Carroll said. "He can really chuck up those three-pointers. Plus, his ball-handling abilities should al- low us to waste about 40 seconds per possession instead of just 35. We'll really bore the hell out of everyone now."

Some Princeton players, how- ever, are less than enthusiastic. For instance, guard Rick Hielscher, the prospect of Maloney's pre- sence is particularly threatening. "I'm really mad," Hielscher con- fessed. "I'm good. What do we need him for?"

"One of our players recently experienced first-hand the joy of being carjacked," Jim Maloney's personal hesitancy to a rural school doesn't lend itself to the sort of extra-scholastic educational oppor- tunities that an urban school like Penn or even Temple does. Sixth suspect arrested in bombing

was arrested yesterday in the bombing of the World Trade Center, bringing to six the number of people charged in the attackers.

The suspect, described as large and hairy, had returned to the scene of the crime in a search of a business, and was arrested after he was seen staring into the storefront.

The suspect was identified as a 35-year-old man who had been staying at the same hotel as the other suspects.

Webber out for Final Four; Steinbrenner new Yanks' skipper

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Free agent Webber, 29, and Yanks GM Brian, 28, who last week said he’d let God decide for him where he’d play next season, have made a decision on their next season. Webber, who has agreed to a deal with the Kings, has signed with theubs.

According to a press dispatch released today, the Kings announced that Webber would be joining them for the upcoming season. The 29-year-old center has spent the past three seasons with the Pistons.

"It’s a great opportunity for him to move on and continue his career in the NBA," Kings GM Brian said.

WORLD SPORTS

NEW YORK — Yanks principal owner George, 81, has recently returned to baseball after being away from the game over the past few seasons. George, who has been dealing with health issues, decided to take a break from managing the team.

"I’m going to step back from managing the team for a while," George said in a statement. "I need to focus on my health and give myself some time to rest."
I love you guys

Now that we've concluded this success, I'd like to thank Penn — I just wanted to set the record straight.

Yes, there is some jealousy among the Big Red, but that's to be expected. If I had to do it all over again, I would chisel their name (Skip, Mox, Ced), into my heart and soul, and egomanics like Tim Krug just can't stand to see me succeed. But this is the truth, and I hope you will trust me when I tell you that it is not going to change. In fact, it is going to get better. You see, I am still a student, but I am also a teacher. I am going to show the freshmen on the basketball court how to play, and I am going to show them how to win.

As I stood by the telephone in a new Jaguar on Thursday, I saw that he bought a new phone. This short list of schools was well on the mark.

"Why would I go to Temple?" I went to that, said William, the band's director. "I can't.

The Big Dance? Sure that's a good deal. But this is ridiculous — bordering on a hoax. I'm not going to be part of this. I'm not going to let you kid me. If you want to see me, you can come see me on the court and play against me.
