HACKNEY, as the city and its district have claimed the University was lining short of its obligation to graduates of Philadelphia schools — as a sign of what was not.

Under Hackney, the University's relationship with the city has improved.

In Brief

UA responds to newspaper confiscation

In response to the issues arising from our program of paper, the Undergraduate Assembly issued a statement demanding that "the paper itself and the University fully take responsibility for the actions of the University Police," and "regard the incident as the beginning of a serious pattern of objections to the student body." The statement also expressed concern over the "freedom of expression and the ability of students to communicate their views" in the University.

The UA is also demanding student representation on the committees that will work with the University Police to standardize procedures. The UA has also agreed to work with the University Police on a "dialogue" between the students and the DP, which will be attended by both parties. According to the statement, the dialogue will also reflect the DP's and the University's concerns for the "safety of the community and the fair treatment of both parties." The DP has emphasized the fact that there is no real reason for the DP to be "a threat to the community." The DP is also trying to work with the University Police to standardize procedures and improve safety.

Res. Living begins review of McGinn

Residence Life has begun its review of the University Police's standard operating procedures. REVIEW, from page A1

A facilitator for the committee will be selected today from outside Residential Living, and the members of the committee will be that person, McGinn, and any other student not known to members of the committee. Simmons added that University Police will definitely be involved.

Simmons also added that McGinn — whose contract with the University is estimated at $80,000 — will have representation in the commission. McGinn's contract with the University does not expire until July 1993. Simmons also added that the commission will be interested in "any and all security problems." Simmons said in February that although McGinn's contract has been extended, it is subject to review by Residential Living. This includes a weekly meeting between Residential Living, the Philomathean Society, and McGinn's vice president of administration.

Following allegations of McGinn's actions, Simmons announced with University Police Chairman Christopher Simeone, McGinn's contract has been extended. Simmons has also added that the University Police has definitely been involved.

Once merely the haunts of teenage trash with big hair and bored senior citizens, malls have come to play a much greater role in suburbia. They have become the 1990s equivalent of the city square, where people congregate to shop, socialize and be seen about the town.

Lisa Mack, a shopper from nearby Cherry Hill, aMall

Scenes from a Mall

Suburban shopping centers are drawing people away from Center City.

HIS, N.J., who has been going to the Cherry Hill Mall since it opened in 1961, said it's no big deal.

"Malls offer more opportunity for social contact than do stores," he said. "I haven't been in Philadelphia in years — I don't need it there, either.

The Cherry Hill Mall offers shoppers 1,384,754 square feet of shopping enjoyment located on the site of what used to be a chicken farm.

Mark said the mall offers people a place to meet and interact socially in a safe environment, something cities cannot offer.

Loretta Pletcher, who works at the mall, said that people are coming from Maple Shade, N.J., said the Cherry Hill Mall is trying to cultivate the image of an upscale, socially-oriented place.

They're trying to go upscale — to combat the Valleyfair factor," she said. "Ten years ago they used to have people in from Camden and other poorer areas, and you'd get somewhat of a scary environment.

We used to be teeny-weeny oriented — now we try to cater to yuppies," she said.

Many teenagers now come to the mall to seek refuge from boredom, school or parents.

Boyfriend, an employee of The Gap from Echelon Mall, said teenagers are a sore spot.

"We've got all these mall rats who just walk around all day," he said. "They don't do anything, they just walk around.

Fletcher said teens often come to the mall just to hang out, either be in the mall's food court or hang out in the parking lot.

"They basically just hang out in groups," she said. "At night they might come in and buy lip balm or aid "At most they might..." Fletcher said.

Many teenagers come to the mall to skate.

"The cops will split up groups of..." Damien Smith, from Cherry Hill, explained. "They basically just go to skate in the mall's food court '

Environmental activist enlists student help

By STEPHEN SANDFORD

A two-ton truck, a 300-pound man and a dozen students made up the parking lot crowd on Monday night.

"We're here to enlist the help of the student community in our campaign," national director of Earth First! was on hand Monday night to enlist the help of the student community in their campaign.

"When you look up at a redwood tree," she said. "you are looking at a forest that averages over a thousand years in age." She said that the tree is a great beauty, but also an inherent value.

"The earth's environment is in a precarious situation," she said. "We have a crisis on our hands, and we need your help to solve it." She said that the crisis has lasted for decades and tree sit-ins.

"I'm saying is that we need to log in a forest that doesn't destroy the forest." She said. "The tree is a great beauty, but also an inherent value.

The group sponsoring the petition saw it as a win-win situation because they could call for the improvement of the neighborhood and other local neighborhoods.

"There's no way to end such a worthwhile project," she said. "We expect to have a couple of hundred students helping out" said. "We expect to have a couple of hundred students helping out" said. "We expect to have a couple of hundred students helping out" said. "We expect to have a couple of hundred students helping out" said.

Kudos

To the men's basketball team, for reinvigorating the University's winning tradition with a crushing win over Pitt, destiny and the NCAA tournament.

To the University, for bringing first lady Hillary Clinton to campus to speak at Commencement.

To Provost Michael Aiken, for his years of service to the University. He has worked to improve the quality of education at the University at every level. Good luck at Illinois.

To President Sheldon Hackney, for bringing the University back from near-riot to near-success in 10 years. He has put the University on a financial footing and created the glory of dear old Pennsylvania. Good luck inside the Red Brick.

To Rick Nahm, for orchestrating one of the most successful capital campaigns in history. With Hackney, he has left the University a $1 billion endowment from which to grow.

Good luck at Kansas.

To University Trustee Judge Leon G. Baltes and Professor Edwin Brooks Hightower, for their service in the Union and its students. Good luck at Harvard.

To Robert Davies. We cannot say enough about Professor Davies except that he is perhaps the most extraordinary and dedicated University citizen we will ever see. We and he will miss him.

To Annenberg Dean Kathleen Hall Jamieson, for instilling to student and faculty and under her own management of the Student Activities Committee, for clamping down on a cappella groups and their secret bank accounts as well as misreporting in general.

To the anonymous University alum, for donating 60 million to fund Medical School scholarships. This unprecedented dedication to education is refreshing.

Catcalls

To the McGinnis Security guards, 'nuf said.

To The New York Post, for referring to the University as "Penn State in Philadelphia." Despite recent reports, we are not sure what the reference was.

To Vice Provost for University Life Kim Baker, who is being described as the drinking at the Palladium and then dodging responsibility for the same. And we thought the Eighteenth Amendment was repealed.

To Internal Judicial Inquiry Officer Catherine Schiller, for her sentences and the University's denial and her ignorance of many policies she is expected to enforce.

To Residential Living Director Gigi Simone, for overwhelming the determination of the quality of on-campus living, the results of students off campus, the Quad mail flask and a shoddy security system. What is she directing?

To Diversified Search and the University for hiring them. They patched a simple background check of now Executive Vice President Janet Hall that took two students one hour in Van Pelt to complete.

To National Endowment for the Humanities' bound Sheldon Hackney, for not taking a firm stand on freedom of expression. Where will be stand about expression?

To the Undergraduate Assembly, for unanimously supporting the Quad mail fiasco and a shoddy security system. This unprecedented dedication to education is refreshing.

To the Senior Class Board of 1993, for showing total disregard for freedom of expression and far and open hearings.

To the Undergraduate Assembly, for unanimously supporting the Quad mail fiasco and a shoddy security system. This unprecedented dedication to education is refreshing.

To the Senior Class Board of 1993, for showing total disregard for freedom of expression and far and open hearings.

To the University, for bringing split at a Greek college. Working class family. And now, for four Penn years later, here we are.

To the Editor.

I put my expensive cap and go for a stroll outside of campus. What am I directing?

To Interim Judicial Inquiry Officer James C. E. Higginbotham and Professor Evelyn Jamieson, for listening to student outcries.

To the University, for inviting to campus and leaving another year of college away in a box full of VHS tapes. And my credits? I have 35, but my credits? I have 35, but all I needed to succeed was a Penn degree. All I needed to succeed was a Penn degree. All I needed to succeed was a Penn degree. All I needed to succeed was a Penn degree. All I needed to succeed was a Penn degree. All I needed to succeed was a Penn degree.

To to the Standing Committee on Academic Integrity, for investigating several cases of academic dishonesty. Many students, faculty and staff are not clear as to what constitutes an academic dishonesty.

To the Editor:

I think it's good that I've been able to do this, but I think it should happen more often. Making my way to weekly practice for a living. It's not a bad idea.

To the Editor:

I came here the product of a blue collar, working class family. And now, I am preparing for my new status as a young urban professional.

"[You] get used to [the noise]. We don't even hear the sirens anymore." Sheldon Hackney

Washington will not compare to the one he has now — $80,000 last academic year versus the $123,100 he will receive at the NEH — his Washington neighbors probably cannot compare either.

"You get used to [the noise]." Hackney said. "We don't even hear the sirens anymore."
Germany lowers interest rates

BERLIN — Germany's central bank lowered interest rates yesterday in the latest attempt to boost the nation's economy and ease currency turmoil in the eurozone.

The Bundesbank, which is 50 percent owned by the German government, announced after its weekly meeting in Frankfurt that the main interest rate was reduced from 9 percent to 7.25 percent.

The decision is the Bundesbank's biggest rate cut since it started lowering rates to 9 percent last year to ease its monetary policy and spur economic growth.

But the bank, concerned about soaring inflation, has said it is ready to raise interest rates if necessary to maintain price stability.

The Bundesbank has been under heavy pressure for more than a year to ease its monetary policy and spur economic growth.

For more than a year, the Bundesbank, concerned about fueling inflation, has maintained interest rates at their lowest level in seven years.

But the bank, concerned about inflation, has said it is ready to raise interest rates if necessary to maintain price stability.

BYOB policy is finalized

The soul of the Caribbean was given dancing last night in Philadelphia.

The Caribbean-American Student's Association presented "An Evening of Culture" by Rasa Smith reading books. About 75 people turned out to experience the poetry and dance of the islands.

The evening began with a lecture by Trinidad native Von Martin, an emeritus professor at Temple, and a former diplomatic Envoy to Trinidad and Tobago. On Martin gave a brief history of island music, from the birth of Calypso to today.

The IFC's stance has changed drastically since the initial public interest. At the time, Massel said "we established that as a goal, that we would not to have anyone dancing on the property." Allen added in the statement that "This is an important agent of this policy in that Greek chapters must now purchase our policy for the purpose of alcohol."
"Thus for the time being I have sent to the East only my 'death's head unit' with the order to kill without pity or mercy all men, women, and children. Who still talks nowadays of the extermination of the Armenians?"

Adolf Hitler
22 August 1939, Commands to Generals

"When the Turkish authorities gave the orders for these deportations, they were merely giving the death warrant to a whole race; they understood this well, and, in their conversations with me, they made no particular attempt to conceal the fact.

"The great massacres and persecutions of the past seem almost insignificant when compared to the sufferings of the Armenian race in 1915."

Henry Morgenthau, U.S. Ambassador to Turkey
Ambassador Morgenthau's Story (1918)

On 24 April 1993, Armenians around the world will remember the brutal deaths of their parents and grandparents.

The attempted genocide of the Armenians in their historic homeland in 1915 by the Ottoman government resulted in the inhumane murders of 1.5 million men, women, and children.

This event has been denied by the present government of Turkey and it has not been officially recognized by the United States government.

We, the descendants of the survivors of the Armenian Genocide, will never forget the heinous crime committed against our people.

Arkansas men are true dynasty.

Sure, the Duke men's basketball team had its nice little run for a while, highlighted when the team grabbed all three championships in 1992, and has been known for showcasing the best conference cross country champion—five years, and of course, the men.

But each of us would be lessening our claim by mentioning one in the college ranks. The Duke men's basketball team had its nice little run for a while, and Miami has seen its recent share of recent successes to the Penn Relays and has won 18 titles since 1984. Now that's a dynasty.

The Wisconsin men's basketball team had its nice little run for a while, highlighted when the team grabbed all three NCAA championships in 1992, and has grabbed 10 consecutive titles, making Arkansas the only team in NCAA history to win 10 straight titles, making Arkansas the only team in NCAA history to win 10 straight titles.

And this year, in the 99th installment of the NCAA Women's Track and Field Championships, Wisconsin was firmly in control. In the women's 3000-meter steeplechase, Wisconsin's Cleo Gubicza breezed to victory in a time of 9:12.18. Last night, she was second to her championship was intact.

Women's 5,000-meter race was not so successful, though. Cornell's Pam Hunt, who was seeded first in that event. Hunt, however, was upset by second-seeded Wisconsin's Michelle Jones.

In the past, the Penn Relay Carnival has been known for showcasing the best of the world's track and field event. It was here that the concept of the Penn Relays was born, and it is now one of the largest track and field events in the world.

The 99th Penn Relays will be held at 5:50 p.m. tomorrow afternoon. The finals in the 4x400m relay, the 4x800m relay, and the 4x100m relay will take place.

Women's 4x400m relay team, was taken care of 20 years ago.

Seniors ZIVKOVIC and Eichner's strong move down the stretch that put up a win in a time of 1 minute 7.72 seconds. Goddard straightened across the finish line a second later for Villanova's second consecutive Division I victory in the 4x400m relay.

The Razorbacks have brought their recent successes to the Penn Relays and have won 18 titles since 1984. Now that's a dynasty.

Lady Tigers seemed destined to dominate the competition and have an opportunity to reign.
The Arkansas men's track team is one of the best ever and will be competing in a slow of events, it will make some people nervous. Martin will also be joined by former Arkansas, who finished with the fastest leg on the team last year's race. M. Tennis hopes for win in Big Apple

By LEES GORMLEY

The Quakers would love to have the opportunity to compete in the Big Apple Invitational, a tourney that has been won by Penn in recent years.

Penn is looking to leave the ITA and Eastern Intercollegiate League behind and concentrate on other things. The Quakers are looking for their first Eastern Intercollegiate League championship in the Ivy League, and according to coach Hans Helmers, this season is the time to make it happen.

"We had a great season last year and we want to continue that success this year," Helmers said. "Our team has a lot of depth and we're looking to take that success to the next level."

THE TRUTH
As of March 3, 1993, TURKEY has shipped 47,330 tons of wheat (with more to come) to Armenia, and TURKISH Red Crescent 11 tons of humanitarian supplies. TURKEY has agreed to supply 25% of Armenia's energy needs. The frontier between Armenia and Turkey is open--bus, train, and plane--so that international aid can reach it. TURKEY has invited and welcomed Armenia into the Black Sea Economic Cooperation Project (BSECP). All this, despite UN condemnation of Armenia's renewed military attacks outside Nagorno-Karabakh; and the International Red Cross having to rush supplies to over 20,000 Azeri Turks--all of them civilians--fleeing the fighting.

The Islanders, who also won in overtime in Game 1, tied the series 1-1 in the best-of-five Patrick Division semifinal that resumes tomorrow.

Steve Thomas and Pierre Turgeon scored late in the third period to give the Islanders a 4-3 playoff victory over the Washington Capitals last night.

These teams have a playoff history of 27-7.

Ferraro, scoring a goal in his third game since joining the Eagles from the Islanders, took the lead 1-0 with a power play goal 1:54 by the Islanders at the Capital Centre.

IS THERE LIFE AFTER PENN?

Six months from now, when you are asking yourself...

"Where did all the fun go in my life? Just six months ago, I was hanging out on the green, parting all hours, enjoying the vegetative state of being a couch potato."

"But, now I am working 70-80 hours a week and my only fantasy is to sleep uninterrupted for 8 hours a night. Why did I leave Penn?"

"But college was so easy, if I had known grad school was this insane, I would have gotten a job instead. Why did I leave Penn?"

Here is an idea. Return to those fun and interesting times at PENN, by joining our fellow graduates in the many Alumni Clubs across the county and overseas. The clubs help keep the PENN spirit alive by offering a variety of social, cultural and intellectual activities in which you can enjoy with your fellow PENN alumni.

Information on other cities is available at the Class of 1993 fair or contact Alumni Relations.
