U. is 'cool' school, mag reports

By CHARLES ORNSTEIN
Daily Pennsylvanian Staff Writer

For a magazine article, the University is a big place to get a story.

Or so says seven magazine editors.

But according to legend, the University is listed as one of the eight "cool school" in the new magazine. "It's a very unusual phenomenon," University President Donald P. Bellamy said yesterday. "I think it reflects that Penn is on the cutting edge of a lot of things." The magazine is scheduled to be sold in newsstands by the end of the week.

Quote of the Day

By the late 1960's, America was entering a new era, one of great social change and reform. The Vietnam War was raging, civil rights were being fought for, and the counterculture movement was gaining momentum. People were questioning traditional values and challenging the status quo. In this context, the quote from Seventeen magazine, 'Why the United States is training schools' in the nation lost.'

Students are newest Commission members

By CARA TANAMACHI

Two students will be appointed to the Union’s Commission for Strengthening the Community, committee chairperson Gloria Chisum said yesterday.
The 17-member commission, which was formed without students in June, will evaluate the University’s 12 academic schools, including diversity, free speech and civility.

In July, several student leaders protested the absence of students on the commission this fall, but did not specify in what capacity.

This week, Chisum said one graduate student and one undergraduate student will fill commission seats. She said they will be chosen from a list that will be submitted to Fagin in the next two weeks by the Undergraduate Assembly, the United Ministries Council and the Graduate and Professional Student As-

A New Look at Crime

This semester marks a new approach to how we cover crime.

Yesterday, the first day of regular publication for the fall semester, the Daily Pennsylvanian began a consultation with the police last month.

One happened four blocks from the edge of campus, and chillingly, one happened behind a building right off South Street.

None of it came to our usual school not expecting crime. But regardless of location, rape is a hideous crime.

Consequently, yesterday's news received a bit of an editorial in the paper, and in the weeks to follow we will give this issue considerable fi

At the same time, we will be experimenting with a new approach to crime.

As was the case yesterday, a particularly horrible and extra-ordinary crime was reported. These type of events will continue to receive great attention.

Rape and other serious crime will not be swept under the rug in the glad ignorance of other University concerns.

Therefore, this semester we have begun a daily crime report section which will run the police report given to us everyday. We hope, the optimism and good wishes of all our trustees.

It is gratifying to see the tremendous interest so many people have in Penn and their history so it must be done because God.

We have engaged a consulting firm that is experienced in the area of public relations.

Indeed, the optimism and good wishes of all of us will be needed to prevent sensationalism and hysteria.

But it didn't just happen anywhere - it is a fact.

And Johnson's Committee recommends a plan which was given in a political speech gives in a political context designed to show the majority recognizes the fact.

We have asked them about the broad challenge of diversity, tolerance, and appeasement.

It is a time for us to stand together, to look forward to our future, to fight for diversity and tolerance.

It claims to be all-inclusive, yet it is true.

It seems to be the most diverse group ever as it continues to exist.

At Penn, in 1993, this fact seems to indicate a passionateless desire to saturate the audience to remember the "values of liberty in the face of the people I dislike the most."

Wig, "7th Night," a fall production, is offering a free show Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the Zellerbach Auditorium. Expect a mix of the Wiggers’ favorite hits from their fall shows of the past 11 years.

Directed by Michael Shanes, the free show is aimed at freshmen who don’t know whether or not they’re a group for them.

"Their fall shows of the past 11 years," Moneta said. "We’re ready to broadcast our vision and how it appears to the public at large," Moneta said, adding that he feels that UTV’s impact has been strengthened just by the act of its being a university station. "We’re not trying to say that we’re the next big thing. But we’re saying that we want to do some stuff that could be really good. And there is already the perception that there is really something new and different going on."

Real World Experience

Have you ever wanted to:

- Be a network administrator?
- Work in a big business?
- Test software?

Train 200 staff members in the latest computer technology?

Computer Services at The Daily Pennsylvanian:
The opportunity you've been looking for.

Editorial Computer Services
Monumental changes await The Daily Pennsylvanian this semester and the new Editorial Computer Services staff will help to pave the way. We plan to install a brand new Mac network which will be used by our 200-member Editorial staff. This is your chance to learn how to serve as a network administrator and become an expert in a wide range of applications and utilities such as QuarkXPress, Aldus Freehand, NOW Utilities, and Microsoft Mail.

This is the big time! When the deadlines near and the tension is high, be prepared for a little frenzy. It will be your job to help ensure that one of the nation's best collegiate papers comes out on time every day. It won't get any more exciting than this and the experience will be invaluable. If you always wanted to use computers in the "real" world, it is time to join the Editorial Computer Services staff.

Business Computer Services

The days of Ben Franklin manually typesetting his newsletter and recording his accounts with quill and scroll are over — The Daily Pennsylvanian has moved to the computer age. Our Business departments use software such as Microsoft Excel and FileMaker Pro and rely heavily on our state-of-the-art computer network. Of course, if no one knew how to use the computers, our system would be worthless.

The Business Computer Services staff ensures that our award-winning business department has the best computer technology available. We administer the system, install the latest software, and teach the staff how to use it. This semester we will also be testing and installing a custom business program. All told, you'll come away with knowledge that you can turn into a number of computer-related careers. Come join us this Fall.

Volleyball out to claim Ivy League title

Fenney was pleased with her team's performance as it managed to win two out of five games.

"It was a hard-fought match," Fenney said. "We played well in some parts of the game, but in others, we struggled a bit. Overall, though, I'm happy with the way the team played." She noted that the loss was a learning experience for the younger players on the team.

Fenney seems pleased with her team's recent performance, all of whom have shown great enthusiasm for the game. Especially impressive is Lee, who has starred for the Canadian provincial team and will start in the middle for the Quakers.

Fenney, entering her fourth season as head coach, will work with assistant coach Ian Mann. Fenney says she likes to learn by having fun, but that she has set some serious goals for the team this year - to finish first in the regular season, win the Ivy League Tournament, and reach the NCAA Tournament. These standards are motivating both the players and the fans, who are looking forward to watching the Quakers compete this season.

Before Ivy League play begins in October, Penn will play a tough non-conference schedule. Besides hosting two tournaments and challenging fellow Ivy League teams, the Quakers will also travel out of conference to play three matches in California.

This year's team has been challenged by injuries, including a knee injury to senior captain Mary Shushan, who will miss the first few games. However, the team is confident in their ability to overcome these obstacles and succeed this season.

Bench-cleaning brawl highlights Phils win over Cubs

Winfield nears 3,000; Owners approve realignment for '94 season; Pioli tops Medvedev

The Giants, who led the division by 1½ games on July 1, won only 11 of their last 23 games. Second-place San Francisco, only 3 games back on July 1, fell 4½ games behind. Pittsburgh's 9-4 win over Houston clinched the NL West. The Giants, second in the NL West, lost last night to San Francisco in Candlestick Park. Kent Mercker, making only his fifth start of the season, pitched eight hitless innings for the Braves. But he was charged with two earned runs on a wild pitch by reliever Rickdyn T nursing a 14-0 lead on June 14 despite making his second start for San Francisco. (see next page) in August trade with Montreal.

Desi Arnaz (13-0) worked 2 1/3 innings and gave up five runs on 11 hits in the Phillies' 6-3 win over the Mets. The Cubs and Giants had similar records, having finished the third and fourth quarters of the National League East, respectively, with identical records. The Cubs won both games, and 10 of 12 in the season series.

The proposal passed today called the following players into the All-Star Game:

NEW YORK — Another day, another upset. Cedric Pioline became the first foreign-born player in 6 years to win the U.S. Open tennis tournament増え

The plan, subject to the approval of the players' association, would lead to an expansion from 26 to 30 teams, beginning in 1996, and end the perpetual free-for-all that has left some clubs shorthanded because of its own mistakes. Pioline, tucked back in a flurry of 20 errors and a double fault on seven breaks, will be 20 if he wins the first set. The proposal passed today called the following players into the All-Star Game:

A great university.
A great newspaper.

And 8 Great ways to get involved.

In some ways, college is just like high school. You sit in class, listen, and take notes. At test time, you regurgitate the information you've memorized.

But wait. There's more to college life.

Want excitement? The opportunity to meet new people? The chance to learn by doing, not just by watching?

Join The Daily Pennsylvanian.

The 'DP', the 109-year-old daily newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania, is consistently rated one of the top ten college newspapers in the country by the Associated Collegiate Press and the American Newspaper Publishers Association. Up to 34,000 people read the DP every day.

Students, faculty and administrators look to us as their main source of news and information about the University and West Philadelphia. Local businesses see us as the most cost-effective way to present their message to the lucrative Penn market.

Most importantly, the DP — a corporation independent of the University — is run and managed by students. Students just like you. Every day, we write and edit the stories, shoot and develop the photographs, lay out and put together the news pages. Every day, we sell and design the advertisements, handle customer inquiries, and develop budgets and financial statements.

As a DP staff member, you'll get the opportunity to learn in the trenches, to apply what you've learned in the classroom to the real world. From reporting and writing to shooting photographs to selling advertisements to designing pages, you don't watch — you do.

And, in all of our departments, you'll begin doing from day one. All you need is enthusiasm, imagination, and drive — we'll teach you the rest.
