The University returned to the Ivy cellar in annual "U.S. News' ranking" of the nation's top universities.

By CARL TANAMACHI Daily Pennsylvanian Staff Writer

Responding to numerous complaints about the University's racial harassment speech code, Interim President Capt. Fagin is considering suspending the section of the code that deals with hate speech.

"I don't like the ranking," Fagin said. "It's why we have to do, we'll be supported," Fagin said.

"We are stopping and advising people before such a policy is in effect," Fagin said.

"I welcome the opportunity to have others test, "Fagin said. "The minimum cost will be incurred."

Memorial to be held for health educator

A memorial service is being held for Kate Webster, a 19th-century Penn health educator. Webster, who died July 7 at the age of 65, began working at the University in 1968 and was a founding member of the health sciences community. Webster was also a member of the executive committee of the AIDS Task Force. Webster's memorial service will be held at the University Museum at 4 p.m. on Monday.

Memorial for Jack McSorley

A memorial service will be held for Jack McSorley, who died unexpectedly last week. The service will begin at noon in the Music Hall at the Center for the Arts and Sciences. McSorley was a beloved member of the Penn hockey team.

PENN DEBATE Council

September 21st 1993

The Daily Pennsylvania
Two weeks ago I took my camera and went with a Daily Pennsylvanian reporter to the small park between DuBois House and the Free Library of Philadelphia. We were sent to find out how the homeless people there were reacting to a rumor that they might be evicted from the park.

While taking pictures of some of those staying in the park, I began talking with a homeless woman named Phyllis Green. We soon began an earnest conversation about her current situation and her past experiences. She explained how she once fought off a rapist but can no longer fully extend her finger as a result of the struggle.

She talked of the disrespect and inhumane treatment which homeless people face daily, such as kids throwing rocks at them for fun.

Phyllis described the difficulty of shopping for food in the city - how inner-city grocery stores charge more for the same products than supermarkets in the suburbs. Being homeless, she said, means she can't afford the prices of the city stores, much less travel to the suburbs.

There was a time when life treated her better. As a nurse, she had skills and training which most people associate with a stable lifestyle. But that was before a drug problem put her on the streets.

In her job, Phyllis said, she had seen the toll drugs could take on a person's life. She watched many medical professionals lose their careers to drug habits.

Phyllis proudly displayed a framed picture of Mickey and Minnie Mouse. She planned to sell it when she needed money for food.

During my conversation, Phyllis told me she did not expect to be homeless much longer. She said she was drug-free and that her boyfriend, Ronald - who also was living in the park - was looking for a job.

When I went back to the park several days ago to see how she was doing, both she and Ronald were gone. A man who knew them said he thought they had moved in with one of her relatives.

If there is a stereotype of a homeless person as uneducated and unmotivated, Phyllis breaks it. As a nurse, she has more education than many of the people who disparage her. As a former drug addict who has quit on her own, she demonstrates motivation that few can refute.

I wish her the best of luck.
Acacia is still trying to rebuild U. chapter

A cacia alumri held an introductory meeting to attract upperclassmen to join the house, but no one showed up. Another meeting will be held Thursday night.

Angela's national fraternity board, said Acacia is not the same fraternity it was in 1990. "It's a different group. It's a different organization."

It was just a summer job.
Now it's the rest of your life.

Remember when your biggest career concern was running out of paper cups? And when it was easy to handle any summer job because it was just a summer job?

Now you're graduating. You want a career that will challenge you every day and offer a variety of responsibilities. You want to work where the learning curve doesn't flatten out after a couple of years.

At Andersen Consulting, our challenges change daily, like the world in which we work. Our job is to help clients do what they do. Only better.

Come talk to us about a career with Andersen Consulting.

But no one showed up.
The fraternity is apparently still suffering from an image problem stemming from a 1991 sexual harassment charge filed against four former brothers.
The fraternity received permission for the incident, in which a nude photo of an Acacia member was photographed and distributed.

National and local alumni said last night they believe the fraternity's image problem is a temporary phase.

Ceremony is held for new Mayor's Scholars

By ABBY BKSHKIN

University and local officials gathered at City Hall yesterday to honor this year’s Mayor’s Scholarship recipients.

A brief ceremony, Mayor Ed Rendell was on hand to present the 30 scholarship recipients with a certificate. "This is a happy occasion for all of us—to give awards to their familey,” Rendell said. Rendell added that the best scholar-

Page said she intends to leave the speech code “in place” for now, which means that she “will not means to inflict any pain.”

"At present, the city and the University are the first to receive the award un-tion, and later a total of 125 for 15 years at the same time. As the University successfully defended itself in court, the president is asking the entire University com-unity to talk about that and I think we could articulate the University’s position on harassment.

UPPD Commissioner Kuprevich has come up with a plan to stop the rash of crime on Locust Walk. Say what?

It makes perfect sense.

In what he called a "new strategy," University Police Commissioner John Kuprevich decided last week to implement a new system that will put an end to the crime that sweeps across the very heart of campus.

Between August 19 and September 13, there were 14 crimes committed on Locust Walk. Although none involved a crime against a person, most unsecured and unattended bicycles were taken. Two or three people were mysteriously discharged in two High Rises. And one rear bicycle tire was stolen as well.

Meanwhile, right outside the campus, 124 criminal incidents were reported including 32 crimes against people — robberies, threats, and agriments.

But, as anyone who has been at the University for more than 30 minutes can tell you, this crime wave is sweeping across the very heart of campus.

During the last two weeks the University Police were unable to maintain an even presence on the campus. These law officers were not present student identification, the officers

Congress announces military base closings

WASHINGTON — Congress sealed the fate of scores of military bases nationwide, approving mass closures early Thursday in a move that could shave back 45 billion dollars in a money-saving effort that will cost tens of thousands of jobs.

By a vote of 305 to 116 the Senate rejected a motion to rescind the decision by the Senate's base-closing commission — the first time Congress has ruled to close bases in its history. The Senate committee has recommended closing 49 bases in a plan that will cost more than 12 billion dollars.

Supporters of the decision, which already has been endorsed by the House and backed by the White House, said their argument is that closing the bases will save about 16 billion dollars from fiscal 1995 to fiscal 2000 after one time closure costs of 1 billion dollars.

"One way or another people are going to have to go," said Sen. James Jeffords, R-Vt.

The plan could cost more than 70 billion dollars over the next five years and possibly more than 170 billion dollars over the next 20 years.

Congressional leaders said it was the "maximum that we could get," and it was in answer to a request for anything. And it also acknowledged the need for other defense cuts that still have not been made. The plan was part of the Defense Department's fiscal 1995 budget proposal.

"It's a done deal," said a House Republican aide. "Any attempt to stop it will only make it more expensive."

NEA nominee expected to earn confirmation

WASHINGTON — For more than 18 years, the National Education Association had a contract with the federal government that guaranteed its teachers a salary of $25,000 a year. This year, the association said, that salary will be increased to $30,000.

The NEA's new president, Linda Darling-Hammond, will receive a salary of $200,000 a year. The association also will pay for her housing, travel expenses, and other benefits.

"I'm looking forward to working with Congress on issues that are important to our members," Darling-Hammond said.

Tsongas, Rudman propose deficit reduction program

WASHINGTON — With a clock behind them clicking off the rising federal debt at a $12,000-a-second clip, two former senators offered a plan yesterday to reduce the annual deficit by $251 billion in the year 2000 by cutting entitlements and tax expenditures.

"Can you hear that?" asked Paul Tsongas, speaking the clock in the watch at which it clicked off at $6,344,594,356 — representing the federal debt.

Tsongas, a Massachusetts Democrat who was a leader in the presidency last year, and Warren B. Rudman, a New Hampshire Republican, proposed in an outdoor plaza on Pennsylvania Avenue, between the White House and the Capitol, work toward an end to budget deficits. They claimed on Monday to have members in 35 states after only five years.

The plan, which was unveiled just before the Senate adjourned for a two-month recess, is not expected to be considered in Congress before the Senate adjourned for a two-month recess.

The current health care reform proposals are not included in the coalition plan.

Dear Reader,

I am writing to request your support for the University of Pennsylvania's Honorary Degrees Committee. This committee is responsible for selecting recipients of honorary degrees for Commencement on May 19, 1994. Nominations are now being accepted, and your input is invaluable.

Please consider nominating someone you believe has made significant contributions to our community. Nominations can be submitted by filling out the form attached or by mailing it to the address provided. All nominations must be received by January 1, 1994.

Thank you for your assistance in making this special event a success. Together, we can honor those who have made a lasting impact on our university and beyond.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK

Cort Schilling pitched a seven-hitter, and the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets 7-6 last week in a 4:35 p.m. game on Montreal in the ML East.

John Kruk homered and drove in three runs for the Pirates. Schilling (13-6), walked two in the seventh, but there were no decisions on his last visit to the majors. Jaret Wright lost his fifth in six starts.

The only run Schilling allowed came in the 5th, when the Giants loaded the bases with one out and held eight runners stranded against an RBI fielder's choice. It was the fourth straight game without a walk for Schilling, who pitched to 0:86 in his first 87 regular season games.

The Pirates scored four runs in the second inning on a double by Barry Bonds, who added a two-run single in the fifth after it had been 2-0. Schilling was scoreless when Kevin Level drove in his ballet of the series.

Pitts.: 2-1

PITTSBURGH - The New York Mets marked the last of the regular season since 1907 as King and lady Met Barry Bonds went 0-4 for the Pirates in the final game of the season.

Bonds, who added a two-run single in the fifth after it had been 2-0, Schilling was scoreless when Kevin Level drove in his ballet of the series.

The Quakers are for real

For all four of you who listened to the房间里one show last Saturday, you helpedInsure the survival of a football team, but not enough to beat Dartmouth and Penn today. "They will probably finish 4-4 on the season and be around third place in the Ivy League." So said the impostor, who is currently cornying himself Dan Feldman. "I'm not good enough to beat Dartmouth and Penn today," the impostor said. "But I'm not good enough to beat Dartmouth and Penn today either, and I'm not good enough to beat Dartmouth and Penn today either."

It is time to set the record straight. Last Saturday, the real Dan Feldman, the real Dan Feldman, will not venture to predict who will win the Ivy League championship. Penn, he said, is actually rated lower than Dartmouth and Penn. After listening to the impostor's game, you see the real Dan Feldman game, you see the real Dan Feldman game, you see the real Dan Feldman game.

The Quaker defense knocked out Penn's chances this season.

M.X.C. finishes fifth at Spike Shoe Invit.

BY YSMENA BENSON

The Penn women's track team finished fifth overall at the Spike Shoe Invitational on Saturday. Although the Quakers did not win any events, they placed in the top five in eight of the 12 events.

"We're not running as a team, everyone is on their own," said Penn's leading athlete, Ann Mullen. "We've got a lot of places," said Mullen. "Penn's most promising runner."

"Matt did exactly what he was told," said Mullen. "He should be mentioned more than anyone else on the team because if everyone listened to coach Dan and worked like he did - things would be different.

"I didn't run a very good race, I went out in ten and I took it slow, but I think it was my fault and got caught up in things," said Mullen.

"I'm going to go back to racing my style - I'm not the one that I've ever been. I need to add my av-antage - my strength. Other runners are more talent than I am. I have to out-run them."
