Prof's attorney questions charges

It's business as usual in Ward's class

Former President Sheldon Hackney returned to the campus yesterday as if nothing had happened.

"How delighted I am to be back in the 'hood," said Hackney, who now heads the National Endowment for the Humanities.

"The people here have been wonderful," he said.

The ex-President also talked about the need for honesty and integrity in the University's administration.

Hackney addressed a group of students and faculty at a special convocation to mark his return.

"We must always remember," he said, "that we are part of something greater than ourselves."
Block closed after report of gunman

The 400 block of South 34th Street was closed Tuesday evening, Oct. 12, after it was reported that a man in one of the houses had a gun. The report was made at about 5:30 p.m., and police and paramedics responded. The man was reportedly in the process of taking down his gun, which had been involved in the incident. The investigation is ongoing.

Safety forum for women wanted

A "Safety and Security Forum for Penn Women" will be held Wednesday, Oct. 14, at 7 p.m. in the Houston Hall basement. The forum will provide an opportunity for women to discuss their experiences with safety and security issues on campus.

Counseling support

Pennsylvania standards for the University's counseling services, including therapy and support groups, will be discussed at a Wednesday seminar. The seminar will be held from 3 to 4 p.m. in the Houston Hall basement. More information can be found by calling 384-7500.

A walk home turns into near-rape terror

Kim, a sophomore from the University of Pennsylvania, was attacked on Locust Walk on Oct. 12, 1993. She was returning from class and was walking alone when she was approached by a man who said he was a security officer. He asked her to "come closer" and she refused. He then grabbed her and tried to rape her. She fought back and was able to escape. She later reported the incident to police.

Quote of the Day

"How delighted I am to be back in the States," said Shackney. "The University provided me with an honorary degree and a lifetime membership in the University's alumni association." He added that he was looking forward to spending time with his family and friends.

Ward himself would not agree to an interview, but said, "I have no comment other than I am innocent of the charges and will be vindicated in court." However, he has never been involved in any student-organized accomplishments and one said, "He's an amazing professor." Ward's award; that alone makes him an amazing professor.

"If he wasn't confident that he was innocent, he wouldn't be here teaching," according to Wharton graduate student Marcus Lindsay. "No one agrees with his alleged charges, and I think he's doing a great job.

"Most of the students in Ward's Marketing 621 class seemed to feel that way. Many refused to comment, saying Ward's personal life was none of their business.

"He's here today and that's all we can say," a member of the office staff said.

"Ward's classes seemed to be undisturbed by this weekend's activities," said one student. "He was very excited in class. It doesn't seem like it would affect his teaching.

The Committee on Commitment

The University is certainly not immune to the lure of committees. For while any standard English dictionary lists the term with the singular, "committee," the University appears to think of only the plural. For example, take the case of the College and the University, and the fact that there are more committees than students in the Class of 1989. But what is equally clear is that there have been and continue to be many committees working together to deal with all of the problems that arise.

First, there's the Free Speech Task Force which is working on ending the University's free speech code, and continuing it in the University's free speech code. And continuing it in the University's free speech code.

The problem is not one of ideals. It is a problem of misdirected energy. For no matter how positive the intentions of a group of people, committees at this University routinely serve only two goals: to shield and to delay.

I've never been one to worry about being seen in the right place at the right time. Not in high school, not in college, not here. I wouldn't know where to look. Penn is the perfect party the right type and -- believe me, not beer won't turn the woman. Social opportunities are a topic I'm not sure to assure me if I was definitely part if a social event. But the empty scene can't deter me in the event of the scene because we can't "have art" as a college student. Looking back on the weekend, we see that beer is more important.

The ROTC committee has yet to be commissioned. The committee is expected to report back in early spring. In 1991, University Council voted to kick ROTC off campus by June 1993, unless the Pentagon ended its ban on gays in the military. President Clinton's "don't ask, don't tell" policy on gays in the military is still in conflict with the University's policy of non-discrimination. Critics argue that Clinton's policy is not in conflict with the University's non-discrimination policy.

Hackney continued, "I still feel myself a real Penn student. I won the DPy every season." Hackney's wife, Lucy, said that even though all three seniors aren't "unpacked yet," she and her husband are happy to have their new home. "There's nothing like being the boss," she said. "It's not to have to form a committee for everything." She added that the committee has been conducting interviews and will hold a confirmation vote tonight to approve the candidates selected by the interview process.

Hackney said the task force has not even started interviewing the candidates, saying "that is in my past. I have been fully answering the questions posed to me for some time." Interim President Claire Fagin from the University told Hackney to "not to have to hang just to see the committee set up and really get going." She said, "I realize that's important but I just want to see something get moving on the ground. HANOI, Vietnam — Remains presumed to be those of 16 Americans missing from the Vietnam War were handed over to the United States yesterday for further identification.

The bones were carried on a U.S. Air Force C-141 transport plane from Hanoi to Stansted Airport in Britain by honor guard from each branch of the U.S. armed forces.

American and Vietnamese investigators recovered the remains in central and southern Vietnam in a search that ended last month. Elusive teams unearthed some of them and Vietnamese civilians turned over others.

U.S. Ambassador Henry S. Kendall, commander of the U.S. military mission in action in Hanoi, said a preliminary forensic review indicated that the remains were of two individuals. Further analysis will be conducted at the laboratory in London.

The Economics of the Citibank Classic Visa card. How Student Discounts and Price Protection contribute to upward growth. A variety of factors have been suggested as contributing to the economic growth of students, including (1) more lottery winners between the ages of 18 and 22, (2) a 37% increase on earnings from bottle and can returns, (3) more students doubling earnings in the lightning round of game shows, and (4) the Citibank Classic Visa* card. It's this last one, however, that affects most students. The Citibank Classic Visa card offers immediate savings to student cardmembers. You can save up to 26% on long distance calls versus AT&T with the free Citibank Calling Service from MCI! And you can capitalize on a $20 Airfare Discount for domestic flights. Savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music also abound. Maximize these savings with a low variable interest rate of 15.4% and no annual fee, and you can significantly improve your personal bottom line (especially if one's net income tends to be pretty gross). Put another way, one might even have enough savings to reinvest in a CD or two (the musical kind, of course). On the way to the record store, or any store for that matter, take stock of the 3 services concerned with purchases made on the Citibank Classic card. Citibank Price Protection assures one of the best prices. See the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150. Warranty" can extend the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years. But perhaps the features which offer the best protection are your eyes, your nose, your mouth, etc.—all featured on The Photocard, the credit card with your photo on it. Carrying it can help prevent fraud or any hostile takeover of your card. (Insiders speculate that it makes quite a good student ID, too.) Even if one's card is stolen, or perhaps lost, The Lost Wallet Service can replace your card usually within 24 hours. So never panic. As we all know, panic, such as in the Great Panics of 1837, 1857, and 1929 can cause a downswing in a market. But with 24-hour Customer Service, there's no reason for it. A question about your account is only an 800 number away. (Panic of the sort experienced the night before Finals is something else again.) Needless to say, building a credit history with the support of such services can only be a boost. You're investing in futures—that future house, that future car, etc. And knowing the Citibank Classic Visa card is there in your wallet should presently give you a sense of security, rare in today's—how shall we say?—fickle market. To apply, call. Students don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd simply like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. Here's the number: 1-800-CITIBANK, extension 19. The Law of Student Supply and Demand states, "If a credit card satisfies more of a student's unlimited wants and needs, while reducing the Risk Factor in respect to limited and often scarce resources—with the greatest supply of services and savings possible—then students will demand said credit card." So, demand away—call.

Now for this week’s edition of the McGehee Watch. The Quaker kicker, known for his all-time School record of 218 yards against the Rams, raised his all-time total to 2,626 yards.客服

Penn certainly knows what it is like to be the underdog, to be looking for any slip the opponent might make that would allow for the upset.

The Owls (4-1), coming off one of the most lopsided losses in Temple history, dominated the Quakers, who have struggled defensively this season. In its first three games this season, Penn has allowed a total of 11 goals. Included in this comedy of errors were two Owls goals that turned a routine extra point into a 35 yard field goal.

Penn has amassed these statistics despite the many Quakers felt desire was lacking. In its first three games this season, Penn has amassed a total of 29 penalties accounting for 202 yards, many Quakers felt desire was lacking.
