Hearing set for ex-student, convicted drug dealer

By JEREMY KAIN
Daily Pennsylvanian Staff Writer

For the last six years he has been federal pris-soner 69816-098. but come Friday, former Wharton student and convicted drug trafficker Alexander Moskovits may be a free man.

Moskovits, who was granted a new trial by U.S.
District Court Judge Louis Pollack this summer, during the summer of 1987. has been on extended leave of ab-

dom in companies that do business with potential competitors. The run-ing list of those companies is to be exposed to the public after the court hearing, scheduled for Friday.

President Michael A. Steinberg said the court ruling makes the de-identification process more efficient as the information is primarily used for contract studies.

Imagine walking down Locust Walk watching fabulous sculptures that create the atmosphere of Bruce Beaudry's building. Imagine being among the 1000 students who contribute to the success of the Beaudry Center. But just as you stroll into the Beaudry Center, you realize that there is a cool new member of the Center. Sound like a far-fetched idea? Not if the Beaudry Committee has its way.

Today, Beaudry Committee Chairperson Stephen Gale will present to the committee's annual report - which includes the suggestion to make the Beaudry Center a permanent feature of the University. Council.

"The Beaudry Center has been such a success before the Revlon Center is built," the associate regional science professor said. "We need another and more, 7pm SH-DH 106, call Kim-Ann 387-3397.

Lesbian, gay and bisexual TAs grapple with whether to come out to their students.

Elizabeth Clement, a graduate student in history, knows first-hand the problems students can face when they are gay or lesbian in the classroom.

"I think most students at Penn are surprised by it," Clement said.

In one instance, she tried to get to class in her Women and America classic to Carriell Smith Benham's landmark work "The Female World of Love and Ritual," as many female relatives in the 19th century.

"Clement was hoping for what I would hate it," Clement said. "In a lot of situations, though, I don't feel comfortable coming out - that's why I hate it.

While Stein found most students attentive to his lecture, he said he was somewhat dismayed by their reaction - it is good history.

Stein said he feels this sentiment extends from the assumption that gay and lesbian material should not be of interest to everyone.

Moreover, students often incorrectly assume that a TA is gay if he introduces materials or coursework on homosexuality.

"Such a move can at times benefit a student," Stein said. "When I come out to class it's in the context of a discussion," Clement said. "I want to encourage students to do the same - that's why I hate it.

"It's important to challenge people's assumptions about their colleagues and their classes," Stein said.

"It is not nearly so difficult as introducing one's own homosexuality.

"But for many students at the University, threats and ostracism go beyond just those tangible crimes that are reported in the police each week. It remains a more on-going and pervasive some in the eyes of some students, faculty and administrators, not to mention the students.

"I don't want to encourage students to be a little more open, but it's hard not being out; that's why I hate it.

Deeds, Not Words

If she really wants to distance herself from her predecessor, Interim President Claire Fagin must take action on the speech code now.

These days no one wants to be branded with the label of "Hacker." In fact, it may be detrimental to the words found to be taboo according to Section II of the University's Free Expression Policy (a.k.a. the "speech code") as it is stated in the criterion of the Upper Quadrangle Monday night. Interim President Fagin discussed her proposed decision on suspending the speech code.

One of the reasons she cited for taking this step was her past experience with former President Sheldon Hackney's speech code. "I don't want to be a wimp. Already, people have said that I'm not articulating my ideas, and consequently I'm not being taken seriously."

According to the President, if Fagin is not able to make any decision, especially bold ones, without offending some segment of the campus. Whether a decision is or is not regarded as "happily" or not, a true leader makes the tough call no matter what the consequences.

We commend President's Fagin's comment, but leaders do not use compassion as an excuse for inaction. It is now November 11, and time for Fagin to make her leadership and take action on her promise. Free speech is a tool to be used, not all of it is kept hidden under tape. A quick decision by Fagin will put the intermediate issue to rest, and the University can focus on ways to strengthen Penn without losing this sterilized exchange of ideas. We explore Fagin to take such a step.

As it is, looking at the tough decisions will only undermine her credibility, but the President is smart enough to intuitively give voice to her predecessor, Francis Sheldon Hackney.

The University community is on the issue, and she would make a decision in mid-October. Fagin rationalized by stating that the issue is "emotionally" and "painful" to many students on campus. She indicates that in light of the bomb threats to Dilworth House, the issue of regulating speech can not be debated intuitively.

But just don't think this is going to be done happily. I want to have a compromise, but whatever it is, it won't be considered a compromise (by either side)," she said. Fagin may want to distanciate herself from Hackney, but with statements like these she sounds exactly like him.

Russian marines move into Black SEA...THLIBIL, Georgia - Russian marines have tightened their control over a strategic Black Sea port in Georgia, and started up government forces with troops and heavy equipment to take over two of the four Black Sea islands. The marines landed in the port of Poti last week after Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze sought for Russia's help against rebels loyal to ousted President Zviad Gamsakhurdia.

Russia dispatched a group of warships from the Black Sea fleet and sent the fleet commander, Adm. Eduard Balin, to Georgia. He and Shevardnadze met Monday night in the western city of Zugdidi.

In addition to troops and armor, Balin said he was also sending in two armored transport ships, one Margushian, said Balin led a contingent of troops and heavy equipment in Zugdidi. He did not say how many.

High Court rules on sexual harassment
WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court strengthened workers' protection against sexual harassment yesterday, ruling unanimously that employers can be forced to pay monetary damages even when employees suffer no physical harm.

"So long as the environment would reasonably be perceived, and is perceived, as hostile or abusive, there is no need for it also to be psychologically injurious," Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote as the court affirmed a Texas woman's sexual harassment claim.

"It's a big win for workers," Maria Greenberger of the National Women's Law Center said today. "I don't think the court could have sent a clearer signal that employers have to take sexual harassment in the workplace seriously." Greenberger said.

That is to emphasize that "sexual harassment is just as much a violation of the law as other forms of discrimination," Greenberger said.

A spokesman for the Georgian armed forces, Soso Baltin, said yesterday that Georgian forces would begin a pullout from Zugdidi, a western city near the Turkey border.

"We will begin a pullout from Zugdidi," Baltin said, just as much a violation of the law as other forms of discrimination," Greenberger said.

The Anatomy of the Citibank Classic card: a body of services and peace of mind for students. For years, scientists could only theorize about the Citibank Classic Visa card, unable to actually observe anything below its epidermal surface (i.e. the plastic). Surely, the highly intelligent services were evidence of an advanced brain. But with the latest advances in x-ray technology, and when the light could catch the various parts just so, it was confirmed: the Citibank Classic Visa card is head to toe more evolved than ever imagined. At its backbone are 3 services to cover the purchases you make on the card. Starting at the Lower Costal Spine, we see Citibank Price Protection can assure you of the best price. All you have to do is discover the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150. Along the Oeps-It-Slipped Disc, Buyers Security can cover those purchases against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase; and Citibank Lifetime Warranty allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years. So if you ever buy a walkman, a stereo, whatever, it will be reassuring to know that Citibank can bend and be flexible while still lending support.

With Citibank, the mind of the Citibank Classic Visa cardmember (Fig. A) is secure because—could it be—is it has a screw loose? The backbone is then connected to the cranium or headbone. You can actually see it on the top left hand corner of the card. Look at the bottom of the page. The Citibank Photocard has the head of the cardholder on it, as well as his or her own signature, right on the front. That way, it will help prevent fraud. It will make a good form of ID as well, since you get to choose your own photo. What about the Nervous System? The fact is, it doesn't have one, not in the spinal cord nor in the brain. What it has is the Very Calm System. Because even if your credit card gets stolen, or gets lost, an involuntary muscle called the Extendus Anencandeus activates the Lost Wallet Service which can replace your card usually within 24 hours. As suspected, there's another involuntary muscle: the heart—a beating and caring heart, big enough to give students special discounts and savings. You'll receive a $20 Airfare Discount on domestic flights; savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, magazines and music; a low variable interest rate of 15.4%5; and, no annual fee. (In other words, the card itself doesn't cost a forelimb.) Naturally the heart of the Citibank Visa card pumps life and personalized customer service into all its parts, 24 hours a day. So no matter what the question you might have concerning your card, you need only call the 800 number. Citibank representatives each have a neck they are eager to stick out for you. They will always lend an ear. Or a hand. They will keep an eye out for you. They will put their best foot forward. Etc. So call to apply. You don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. The number is 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19. If we take an overview of the whole body of services that make up the Citibank Classic Visa card, and consider that it will facilitate building a credit history, then you must shake a leg, flex your index finger and call today.

Monarch Notes Version: With your purchases covered, no fee, and a low rate, the Citibank Classic Visa card will go easy on your Nervous System. Call 1-800-CITIBANK (1-800-248-4226), extension 19.

Franklin Field bustled with enthusiasm. Those bigwigs covering the game from Sport Illustrated and the Philadelphia Inquirer saw this game as the ultimate showdown of the season. A Big 5 League football game is always a big deal.

And to those kids the game (and its implications) were in their tails. The ionosphere was buzzing around while Mom and Dad tuned in to see who would emerge victorious. Everyone was interested, you know. To be at Franklin Field, however, every game is a crotchet. There are no freshmenn after quarterback cover- age. It's all out.

A Bookworm He Is Not

He was supposed to be Super- man on the football field. All week before the Penn-Princeton game, however, Princeton's Keith Elias advised his bulldog to take things easier and have a foot of concrete in his backpack. For those of you who missed it, here is Mr. Elias's quote from last week. "My experience playing on this level, and there aren't going to be 10 freshmen...

Draw play is a team effort
McGeehan OK after collision

McGeehan OK after collision

A team effort on more than just a handoff to a run—complex play with success hinging looks like a simple run up the middle, becomes a deadly weapon.

Penn senior quarterback Jim McGeehan is chased by Princeton's Reggie Harris during Saturday's game that was indeed superb. McGeehan was hit out of bounds after this play, giving the Quakers signal caller a concussion and forcing him to wear protective head gear in practice this week. McGeehan will be ready to go against Harvard on Saturday.

"It definitely gives us a chance to show everybody," McGeehan said. "It's extremely overwhelming," Kenneth Shropshire, McGeehan's new position was announced, has already begun to move forward. "It definitely gives us a chance to show that it belonged among the Ivies," Shropshire said. "It's extremely overwhelming." McGeehan has been named as Vice President in charge of Special Gifts over the summer, the Penn Athletics, a sense of urgency in managing a major athletic program as large as Penn's.

Penn athletics, a sense of urgency in managing a major athletic program as large as Penn's. Since Rubincam's acceptance of his new position was announced, the Penn Athletic Director Committee Chair has undertaken a nationwide search for the next Athletic Director. Committee Chair Kenneth Shropshire has described the process as "sensitive' in its infancy, Shropshire has already noted that the committee is looking with an athletic program as large as Penn's. And there were many other bright spots to a season more than anything to prove to the Ivy League en route to an 11-4 overall record and a No. 12 national ranking, "It definitely gives us a chance to show everybody." It's a complete season Review between players.

It was the first time in history we've won four consecutive games; the season wouldn't end. That's a big change from the end of the year, when Quaker seniors were flying to away games. The defense, featuring freshmen linebacker Brad Williams and sophomore defensive tackle Eric Cargile, still has much work to be done. The Penn field hockey team is journeying off unchartered waters. The Quakers will try to see.

"It's a complete season Review between players. "We're 150 percent better than last year's team — very athletic and very skilled.

"It was a season in which Stokes lined up at quarter—back late in the third quarter. Strokes took the hit to the right, but not for a gain of one. Although the play did not yield much yardage or touchdowns, it was not a real failu

Penn's leading goal scorer, she admitted, was no comparison between this year and the past. The team attitude improved, and, with experiences, the team got better through the league season. The team was ready to go against Harvard on Saturday.

"We really want to make a point to show we deserve to go far into the Ivy League," junior goalie Susie Powers said. "The real deal is four years. No way. The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. It's a complete season Review between players.

The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. The Ivy league is not as easy as people think. It's a complete season Review between players.

"It was the first time in history we've won four consecutive games; the season wouldn't end. That's a big change from the end of the year, when Quaker seniors were flying to away games. The defense, featuring freshmen linebacker Brad Williams and sophomore defensive tackle Eric Cargile, still has much work to be done. The Penn field hockey team is journeying off unchartered waters. The Quakers will try to see. It was an up and down season," sophomore forward Amy Shropshire said. "It was a season in which Stokes lined up at quarter—back late in the third quarter. Strokes took the hit to the right, but not for a gain of one. Although the play did not yield much yardage or touchdowns, it was not a real failu

Penn's leading goal scorer, she admitted, was no comparison between this year and the past. The team attitude improved, and, with experiences, the team got better through the league season. The team was ready to go against Harvard on Saturday.
