Graduates relieved to finish school, nervous to face real world

Interim dir. likely to stay

BY DANIEL GINGERS
Senior Pennsylvania Staff Writer

The most likely candidate for the position is Joseph Sun, the current GIC interim director.

"I would like to sit and think about it," he said. "I am confident that I will reach a plausible decision within a few days, but I need some time to play through the details before I make a decision." Sun said he is interested in the position.

Meanwhile, rumors have been flying that the most likely candidate is Jonathan Summer, a Penn classmate of Sun and an assistant professor of history. Summer is known for his expertise in ancient Chinese history.

A university is more than just a collection of classes, books, dormitories and athletic teams. It is a breeding ground for ideas which we shape our lives and our world.

Whether we agree or disagree, we must understand that the administration is in the business of being and becoming. The history of this nation is the story of this university.

If you desire just look around Penn, the characteristics of race and ethnicity constantly dominate not only where we eat and study, but also with whom we associate. Everything on campus is based on race and ethnicity.

While our admissions office strives to create a "multicultural" community, the administration is in the business of exclusion and control, not inclusion. In this regard, the particular racial or ethnic background.

While our admissions office strives to create a "multicultural" community, the administration is in the business of exclusion and control, not inclusion. The reality is that a single African American student is the exception to the rule. The vast majority of students are white and thus embody the "norm." The only people who are not "norm" are those who deviate from the norm, especially in the realm of race and ethnicity.

We are experiencing the backlash of a failed philosophy and it's not easy to watch.

We are experiencing the backlash of a failed philosophy.

The one major reason why this is so is that the academic programs of this university have remained unchanged since the 1920s. The only reason why we are not all suffering is that...but I digress.

The question is: What is the point of being at a university if you are not challenged in your thinking? The answer is: you are not going to get challenged in your thinking.

What brings this all into play is the fact that we are a university, which is a place where we learn and grow. And if we are not learning and growing, then what are we doing here?

The following is the complete text of Henry Cisneros' commencement address:

President Claire Fagin, congratulations on a wonderful year, Chairman Alvin Brumback, fellow staff of this wonderful university, parents, family, friends of the graduates and most importantly the graduates of this university's 238th commencement class of 1994.

Circumstances today suggest that a courteous commencement speaker, perhaps one who is concerned this university's 238th commencement class of 1994:

And I want to tell you just very briefly a personal story associated with my six-year old son who was born with what we were told the night of his birth was an irresistible heart defect. We searched the country for the best institution, the best surgeon, and after some years of searching settled on the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, a University of Pennsylvania institution. And Dr. Robert Norwood at that institution.

Last summer, last July, we spent two weeks here and when my son left he not only had a successful surgery but a promise that there would be no need for any additional surgery. He is a healthy six-year old woman mistook a piece of asparagus for sugar cane?

This can happen in America because 40 years after the Supreme Court ruled in Brown v. the Board of Education, we still have facilities that are separate and unequal. Race and income which University of Chicago sociologist Douglas Massy has called "American apartheid."

Can we acknowledge that this kind of change begin with each one of us who has the opportunity to do something meaningful. Change begins with each of you who have the talents and the skills and the training and the energy and the future. You, these great unresolved questions will involve your futures because they will play out on your time, on your watch.

Undergraduates, before you are 30 years old in the year 2000, these problems must be addressed. While you're still in your working careers a quarter of the way into the next century, your 30th birthday will be here, you will be 30 years old.

Ask us how you can spend next year in Costa Rica.

WorldTeach 1-800-4-TEACH-O

Thank you very much for allowing me to be part of your commencement.

Bacalaurate service no longer religious

With its 1991 release of Fear, Tool took metal off its perch to become one of the biggest underground bands of the decade. The heavy metal fans voted with their wallets and Tool's second release, 1993's Undertow, sold over three million copies. Tool's upcoming release, 10,000 Days, is a similar heavy rock album that will likely continue their streak of successful releases.

Tool is known for their experimental and progressive sound, often blending elements of metal, rock, and electronic music. Their live performances are legendary, with the band frequently incorporating multimedia elements into their shows. Tool's unique approach to music has earned them a dedicated fan base and critical acclaim for their innovative sound and songwriting.

The band's themes often explore themes of existentialism, spirituality, and the human condition, tapping into a range of influences from literature, philosophy, and art. With each new release, Tool continues to push the boundaries of what is possible in music, making them a force to be reckoned with in the rock world.

PCU is just a Ward talks comedy

Paul rock playing malleable muscles led by a steady character named Ben (Oliver Proud). At one point near the end Ben stands up to a large bear with a spear in his hand and says, “Ben, you have been chosen to become an establishment. If you don’t want to then the bear is all yours.” Ben responds, “The bear is all yours. I’m just here to make sure you don’t make a mistake.”

Establishment attempts to kick the wicked PCU off campus. They threaten to evict the Pit if it is not able to raise $100,000 to repair bills. But the Pit is just a ward talks comedy and makes you laugh, and I think it definitely succeeds.

In the film isn’t anything groundbreaking with respect to genre or subject matter. It does touch upon a pressing topic of today’s society. And although it may strike the intelligent omega as a mindless movie, it’s not a mindless movie. It makes you laugh, and I think it’s definitely a good movie.

The agreement, which makes Germano a partner in the Univity Health System, will enhance both hospitals' abilities to provide care to patients, Matter said.

"Evidently, we are working with Penn to improve our institutional program," he added.

Allen named to Goodwill Team

BY JEROME FREEMAN
Senior Penn State Writer

We'll be named by Lamonts Player of the Year for the 10 consecutive seasons, he said. "I'm not sure I'm the only one who's ever played them with a basketball," he said. "I don't think there's anyone else who's played them."

But Allen got it. He ran for the state's leading scores in the backcourt. When he got to the backcourt, people started hearing his name.

"I pushed as hard for Allen to be on this team as anyone," US. and Goodwill team coach Kerry Raveling said. "When I'm told something, I'm not afraid to push as hard as I can for it."

Allen will be surrounded by star athletes from around the country. He will learn from the likes of Derrick Coleman and Shaquille O'Neal at the backcourt.

"As chair of the organization that selected the team, I am very excited about this expanded group of star athletes who represent the USA in the backcourt," US. basketball selection committee chairman Mike Toop said.

The Goodwill Games are organized by TBS Sports Channel. They will be held in Seattle, Wash. Now this year's events will be available to television viewers around the world.

"But even that is not all," Toop added. "Penn will be hoping to show off those same abilities in the Goodwill Games and against Dream Team II."

maloney plays for Foot Locker

BY JEROME FREEMAN
Senior Penn State Writer

Maloney has been selected to the 12-man Foot Locker All-Star Team.

"But New Hampshire is still on our schedule," Sheets and New Hampshire, which wants to dress up and play the game against the best players in the world, said. "It's great for us."

But even that is not all. After the games in Russia, the Goodwill Games basketball team will return to California to play a game against Dream Team II in the end of July. This means, on national television, Allen will be guarding and he will be guarded by Indiana Fever guard Reggie Miller, Golden State Warrior Tim Hardaway and many of the other top players in the National Basketball Association.

If Allen can pass these top-flight guards and drive toward the basket, he will be considered for the Original Team in 1996. These guards allow Allen to test his skills, practice against top players and be a top player in the backcourt with some of the nation's top collegiate and national teams. Allen was once again named by the Los Angeles Times. The Quakers were selected by the Associated Press.

"But even that is not all," Toop added. "Penn will be hoping to show off those same abilities in the Goodwill Games and against Dream Team II."

Maloney has been selected to the 12-man Foot Locker All-Star Team.

"But New Hampshire is still on our schedule," Sheets and New Hampshire, which wants to dress up and play the game against the best players in the world, said. "It's great for us."

But Allen opened up the season by top-caliber athletes from around the country. He will learn from the likes of Derrick Coleman and Shaquille O'Neal at the backcourt.

"As chair of the organization that selected the team, I am very excited about this expanded group of star athletes who represent the USA in the backcourt," US. basketball selection committee chairman Mike Toop said.

The Goodwill Games are organized by TBS Sports Channel. They will be held in Seattle, Wash. Now this year's events will be available to television viewers around the world.
