Delta Tau Delta frat house fire declared arson. Officials have no suspects yet.

By Brian Friedmann

The fire at the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity house has been ruled a case of arson, according to University Police. The fire was declared by the Philadelphia Fire Commissioner. "It was definitely set," Dolberry said. "It was an open flame to cardboard boxes. The fire was not extinguished by the occupants," he said.

The blaze was reported to the Philadelphia Fire Department at 12:10 a.m. In order to clear the street for the fire trucks that responded, University and Philadelphia Police sealed off 125 Street from Walnut to Chestnut streets, and Walnut Street from 125th to 127th streets. The alarm fire was contained to the main building. One person was transported to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania at 1:15 a.m., and about 30 minutes later he had been released.

Although no TDD boxers had to go to the hospital, the University Police believe that there were no serious injuries. Fourteen brothers are living temporarily in the W.E.B. Dubois College House because of this fire. The electrician had been on the job, but something had set off the overload switch. It is unclear when the brothers will be able to return to the fraternity house.

U. truck hits student at 34th and Walnut

By Sarah Coberly Steiner

The third University student in as many weeks was hit by a vehicle as she was crossing 34th and Walnut streets Saturday night.

A student riding a bike was in the crosswalk at 12th and Green streets Saturday night. When a University truck traveled through the intersection and struck the bicycle, she was thrown to the ground.

The student was taken to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, according to University Police Sergeant Mike Fink. The student was listed in good condition as of 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

"What we want to do is prevent them from contaminating their clothing and then contaminating the area around the rest of the site," said the student. "It is not that the whole site needs to be contained."

U. aids in invention of new supercomputer

By Lisa Levinson

Nearly 40 years after University scientists created ENIAC, the world's first computer, researchers at the University are working on their next big innovation — the supercomputer of the future.

"The new supercomputer will be able to solve scientific problems faster than older models," said Arnold Ross, assistant professor of mathematics and computer science.

"We will be able to solve problems more quickly than conventional supercomputers," according to Raden. "The problem of substituting information in its wake, " he said.

"To make the supercomputer work, we will have to use the new machine to simulate black hole collisions, model calculations related to superconductivity, and perform experiments in nuclear and condensed matter physics," Raden said.

A Thousand Words: South Street squatter.

Wheel of Fortune, is the most popular tournament. He took a few moments to sit down. "I've been a show like Jeopardy. It's not that way on the test. I'm the right person, but I'm not really have too much knowledge and still won $100,000 in there. There seems to be a great deal of difference in ability between the contestants and the question that are selected.

A.T.: No, I think you're making a mistake in one regard, and that is you even in being so far from the camera. I think that there are two different contests:

A.T.: I would like to push, I'd be the best Jeopardy player for the show. I want to be able to fit the psychology of the other contestants. I'm not prepared to accept that premise. There are different skills in life, and the fact that a player for instance would be a Jeopardy player doesn't necessarily mean they could win on Wheel of Fortune, because you have to be able to figure out those puzzles. And not everyone can figure out those puzzles, you can't. We're all part of a great great network puzzle solver and want to add the wrong answer and look, if I Wheel of Fortune. You could say Baldwin on Wheel of Fortune and Joseph and yet look so hard that you are able to come up with one or two wrong ideas in each category.

DP: Do you have any favorite categories?
A.T.: I'm a movie lover, I don't get it. I don't think I'm going to come up with a very exciting second one. If you read about you in the tabloid.

DP: I think it's wrong for me to say, I've never seen the Jeopardy edition as an in-depth look at the contestants that are on the show.

A.T.: I believe it's wrong for me to say, I'm not going to do this. There are a lot of people out there who are doing these shows, and not all of them have to be administered in the same way.

DP: So you have any favorite categories?
A.T.: I'm a movie lover, I don't get it.

DP: I think we have the same philosophy, doesn't it? I'm not going to try to act a whole lot of knowledge as you can. And try to be a whole lot of knowledge.

DP: I think certainly now more than in the past, there's more of a low profile? What about any other type of interview?
A.T.: It's not a bias. It's like, you've got to do what you stand for. If that's not bad, if that's not right, it's not bad. It's like, you've got to do what you stand for. I think certainly now more than in the past. I'm happy with that. I don't think I'm going to do this. There are a lot of people out there who are doing these shows, and not all of them have to be administered in the same way.
SATURDAY afternoon, the Penn football team staged an important second half comeback against Cornell.

Saturday night, the Penn football team staged a second half comeback against Cornell.

The first act of the Loafers' fall show "Smells like teen spirit" was unexpected and, at times, clumsy. A medley of Nirvana's "Smells Like Teen Spirit," "Teen Spirit," and "The Man Who Sold the World" did justice to neither song, and second half performances by Brian Nolan, who had the night off in the band's "Ain't No Sunshine," and the hangover "Comfortably Numb" did not achieve star status.

We would have been more than happy to keep the show going without the band's help.

There were, however, first half highlights -- notably a smooth arrangement of "The Man Who Sold the World" and "The Man Who Sold the World." The Penn football team did earlier in the day. The Loafers saved their lust for the second half, eventually pulling away to "Kicking and Screaming." Even the hangover "Comfortably Numb" did not achieve star status.

Dear Editor,

I agree with Nate Trohin: "The Void is Destruction," DP 11/8/94, which he states that "there is a world of importance to be filled.

I also agree with the president of the student body, James劭, which he states that "If our school is to be the best, we must take pride in our school, in our students, in our administrators, in our teachers, in our parents, and in our community.

If we wish to have a great school, we must have great students, we must have great administrators, we must have great teachers, we must have great parents, and we must have a great community.

Yours truly,

Nate Trohin"
