...and promised to double its money if we could get the fund a few hundred thousand dollars. University and college officials were not available for comment. The university's sexual harassment policy defines a sexual relationship as "between a student and a faculty or staff member, or between a student and another student, that is characterized by the exploitation of the power imbalance..." The policy also states that "the university will not tolerate sexual harassment in any form, including sexual assault, sexual coercion, and sexual discrimination." The university has a code of conduct for students and employees that prohibits discrimination based on sex, gender identity, sexual orientation, or gender expression. The code of conduct also prohibits sexual harassment, which is defined as "unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature..." The university provides support services for students and employees who have experienced sexual harassment, including confidential counseling, advocacy, and reporting options. The university also has a Title IX coordinator to address concerns related to sexual harassment and other forms of discrimination.

"The university is committed to ensuring a safe and respectful environment for all members of our community," said Vice President for Student Affairs Mary Waters. "We take all allegations of sexual harassment seriously and work to address them promptly and effectively."

The university encourages students and employees to report any incidents of sexual harassment to the Title IX coordinator or other appropriate university officials. The university also has a sexual harassment policy that applies to all students and employees, regardless of gender identity, sexual orientation, or gender expression. The policy states that "the university prohibits sexual harassment in any form, including sexual assault, sexual coercion, and sexual discrimination."

IN BRIEF

Kuprevich may become UNM chief

Back to his first Commencement appointment, John Kuprevich is on the University of New Mexico’s short list of candidates for the next commissioner of public safety, according to UNM Police Lieutenant Allen Lewis. Lewis added that Kuprevich is one of four finalists for the position. “I thought he was outstanding,” Kuprevich confirmed, stating that he applied for a number of opportunities, and he was hoping to find a “final institution.”

He added that his decision had been made and that several qualified applicants were in the running, and he was hoping to open the door to the right time.

Kuprevich anticipated accepting at 17 to 21 p.m. in the University’s alumni building.

The Biological Basis of Behavior Program congratulates

Henny SU winner of the 1995 Eliot Stellar Award for outstanding research achievement.

and SIMONE BETCEN first winner of the Edward N. Pugh, Jr. Award for the graduating senior who exhibited academic excellence in the major.

Kuprevich said there were about 100 auto accidents, auto thefts and two murders in the past four years.

The University was the first commissioner of public safety and oversaw the University Police department and the Victim Assistance and Special Services unit since assuming the post in December 1990. Kuprevich has regulated that he will resign his position as the University Police Commissioner at that time.

Under the direction of Executive Vice President John P. Phelan, who entered Kuprevich’s letter of resignation, a national search is underway to identify people interested in working at the University.

Details of the search were not available.

U. research group used humans in Army chemical tests

Subjects in experiments using toxic chemicals were inmates in Philadelphia's Holmesburg Prison

Farrington claimed that workers from the University’s "national" office had participated in the radiation study by assuming identities of other people. He alleged that officials from the University and the prison lied about the risks of the experiment.

Farrington also wrote in the trial that he had worked closely with reporters on writing New Era. He had announced that he would reverse the experiment and completely stop all other experiments on human subjects.

U.S. Department of Energy, the Institute for Defense Analyses, the National Academy of Sciences, the National Research Council, and the University of California, Berkeley, all turned over huge financial sums to New Era.

The names of the subjects in the decision report are blanked out in the Army test file title. But the lack of knowledge about the specific tests or test instruments — or even which subjects were involved — makes it impossible to determine the health effects from the test.

Allegations of Human Radiation Experiments

In 1990, Edward Farrington, a former lawyer who stopped practicing law, claimed that he had defrauded the University of $39 million in scam related to Kligman’s dioxin

Kligman reported that radiocative material was ingested or swallowed, according to the contract that he had signed. But Farrington alleged that the University had not been fully informed about the dangers of the test.

"I think it’s one of the best jobs of my life," she said. "It’s rewarding."

Provost's council to release report on undergraduate education at U.

BY LISA LKVENSON

When the Provost’s Council on Undergraduate Education releases its report for faculty review this summer, the rubric concept of creating a 21st century undergraduate experience on campus will begin crystallizing into a set of joint programs and support faculty committees.

Provost Stanley Chodorow said last February — is intended to “provide the Residential Faculty Council in February — it is extraordinary in its richness — what we want to idol is to make it a bit easier to negotiate the system.”

PCUE was able to accomplish its goal of generating a report after just one semester of work. Chodorow also praised the group's "creativity and forthrightness, which he said often included criticism directed at him — as well as reports generated by committees charged with studying the state of undergraduate education at Penn in previous years.

He added that PCUE was able to draft an admissions application to guide and stimulate programs for improving the use of undergraduate advising system, opportunities for improving the undergraduate experience — such as study abroad or other "out-of-cultural-experience" work of Kim Morrison and Robert Lucid, co-directors of the 21st Century Project on the Undergraduate Experience.

Chodorow also praised the group’s "creativity and forthrightness, which he said often included criticism directed at him — as well as reports generated by committees charged with studying the state of undergraduate education at Penn in previous years.

Our Commissioner

The new University Police commissioner must have experience and leadership skills in order to be successful.

Following the murder of Mathemat- ic graduate student Al-Moh Almo- hammed and the shooting of Wharton senior Samir Shah last fall, security quickly became the foremost issue on campus. Frightened students called for tighter security and more proactive measures to prevent future tragedies.

The future again returns to the fore- front as the University works to pick a successor to University Police Com- missioner John Kupreichik, who re- signed last spring. Although the Uni- versity Police commissioners have the qualities necessary to lead the new unit, they have not been able to coordinate and oversee the new security

To the Editor:

I have been a resident of the South Campus for four years and I feel that the University and the administration have not done enough to improve safety on our campus.

In the past, South Campus was a safe place to live. However, in recent years, there have been an increase in crimes on our campus. This is unacceptable and it is time for the administration to take action.

CONGRATULATIONS!
You're Smart Enough
To Graduate from A Great University...

But Can You
Remember
A Reservation?

Every year Penn students make multiple reservations for their graduation celebration at local restaurants, waiting for Mom and Dad to choose their favorite. That's smart. But then they forget to call to cancel their reservations at other restaurants. That's dumb. And inconsiderate.

Therefore, as three of Philadelphia's Best Restaurants we're asking that you follow these thoughtful procedures:

To reserve for Penn Graduation Weekend & Monday:

- Tell the Host that You are Reserving for Penn Graduation
- Provide a credit card # and expiration date to hold the reservation.
- You will be given a reservation confirmation number.
- [If your mom would rather go to Le Bec Fin or you cannot fulfill your reservations obligation call at least 8 hours before to let us know if you are cancelling.]
- You will not be charged on your credit card if you call by then.
- If you fail to notify us you will be charged $10 per person if you do not show up for your reservation.
- If you are going to be more than 10 minutes late for your reservation please call and notify us.

Activists claim victory after U. ends dog labs

By JOHN GREEN

Athens - The University of Georgia announced its decision to end the use of dogs in research labs. The decision was made in response to the efforts of animal rights activists who have been working to end the use of animals in research for several years.

The University's decision to end the use of dogs in research labs was made long before the animal rights groups launched their campaign.

University officials said the decision to end the use of dogs in research labs was made long before the animal rights groups launched their campaign.

In First Prize Clinique, you’ll get: Facial Soap Mild, Clarifying Lotion 2, Pure Neutral Soft-Pressed Eye Shadow, Tawny Spice Long Last Lipstick, Cooling Buff Sensitive Skin Makeup SPF 15, Unbuyable extra: De-tangling Hair Comb.
The campus was filled with new people running and going, and it was very depressing," she said. "We would say goodbye to someone and find out six months later that the person was killed.

"It was not any kind of campus life that you guy know about," she added. "You were really checked out of college in those days. You didn't think you would do it for the rest of your life. War was war, and it felt," he said. "It's real bullets and real tears.

"You knew that somebody wasn't going to make it," he added. "You felt really terrible, but you accepted it."

Not only did war cause changes to campus, it also affected students. "It wasn't any kind of campus life," Golden said. "There were little corners," he added. "There was little interaction between the men and women."

Even on campus, Rothchild could not escape the ugly reminders of the stresses of war.

"They took over the dormitories and they took over most of the fraternity houses," Golden said. "There were more of them than there were civilians."

When World War II ended, more than Class of 1945 were left planning for their futures and coping with their losses. During this painful process, classmates never really got to know each other.

"I felt that we lost something," Bernstein said. "I don't think I have the long-lasting memories that someone who went to college 10 years later would have."

And this lack of class cohesion has been a problem for the reunion planning committee. King admits.

"I met more people planning for the 50th anniversary than I knew on campus." he said. "There was only one person on the committee that I knew in college and only a handful that I attended class with."

But Golden does not hold any grudges against the University because of his experience.

"It wasn't the fault of the University — it was the war."

U. mourns death of slain graduate

Kathleen Sullivan, a social work graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, was shot and killed April 11, 1993. Sullivan, a leader of the Kite and Key Society and founder of the Penn Volunteers Network, was active in community service at the University, even after she graduated.

Sullivan was killed on April 11 when a double-barreled shotgun was fired at her car while she was driving on 47th Street.

"In my view, the Committee's action on that point rests on a misunderstanding of the events," said Madden. "We are talking about the administration's right to decide who should hold an administrative position."

"The Committee's report was to be published this week in The Daily Pennsylvanian, but outgoing Provost Stanley Chodorow said Madden and Chodorow asked him to delay publication so that they could meet with the Committee to discuss the group's findings."

"The report is to be published, and we're just delaying publication as a courtesy," said Madden. "It's not about changing the facts or reversing it."

"However, added Sullivan would have been involved in the denial of Cass's proposed appointment, including Chodorow and Madden; removing Madden from her post as Penn Provost for Graduate Education, and apologizing and compensating those people I'll ever know," said Conahan. "When I come into Penn now, unlike in previous years, my stomach turns. At this point, I have absolutely no in-"
Safety kiosk plans near completion

Construction on security kiosks to be placed around campus should be completed by 5 p.m. Saturday, according to University Police Commissioner Ken Kuprevich.

The kiosks will serve as the primary base of operation for security officers-patrolling along recently designated Community Walks, he said. Walks are major arteries of campus that will receive special monitoring by University Police.

The kiosks will serve as the primary base of operation for security officers-patrolling along recently designated Community Walks, he said. Walks are major arteries of campus that will receive special monitoring by University Police.

Walks are major arteries of campus that will receive special monitoring by security officers patrolling along recently designated Community Walks, Kuprevich said. Walks are major arteries of campus that will receive special monitoring by Allied security guards began patrolling campus in February, according to this plan, Community Walks will run through the center of campus and along other heavily traveled arteries. The Blue Walks and new blue-light phones are placed at the base of these walks. Kuprevich said the program in a safety initiative incorporating different campus members to improve their own personal safety.

The idea is that if something happens to be a time when a security officer is on patrol, they can get a breath and the security officer should return to that site within a matter of minutes," Kuprevich said. "The Community Walks program is part of the University's new master safety initiative. This walk will be started with street. Further south, it will extend from 3rd Street to the Community Walk area, which will be the University's responsibility to support.

According to this plan, Community Walks will run through the center of campus and along other heavily traveled arteries. The Blue Walks and new blue-light phones are placed at the base of these walks. Kuprevich said the program in a safety initiative incorporating different campus members to improve their own personal safety.

“Our model for years has been that safety is everyone's right and everyone's responsibility," he said. "It is the University’s responsibility, in particular, to supply safety initiatives, it is up to individual campus members to utilize them... Either add patrols in the area north to north, west to west, west to east, or east to south, where you have high traffic, you have high crime or other situations where prevention is potentially possible or likely to happen, others," he said.

A second walk begins at the corner of 36th Street and Chestnut streets down to 36th Street and continues west along the north side of campus. The phones should be in- stalled outside of the kiosks to ensure safety at times when the officers, who will be required to spend between 15 and 20 minutes of their patrol time walking these areas.

"If someone comes to the kiosk and they will be walking their patrols along recently designated off-campus areas, the phones will be available," Kuprevich said. "The idea is that if something happens to people and someone needs to get help they should be able to look around and somewhere within 400 feet they should see a blue-light phone," Kuprevich said.

Crime reports down since Allied began patrolling

There has been a decrease in the number of crime incidents reported since Allied security guards began patrolling campus in February, according to this plan, Community Walks will run through the center of campus and along other heavily traveled arteries. The Blue Walks and new blue-light phones are placed at the base of these walks. Dear Trustees,

You have undoubtedly heard or read about the unhappy events which Claudia Stachel and I refer to—some with black humor—as the "founding affair" regarding this notorious matter. I enclose a report by the Faculty Senate Committee on Academic Freedom and Responsibility. The report recommends, in my opinion correctly, that my complaints to the University's Academic Senate were not well-founded. I would like to add that I believe the Faculty Senate was not well-founded for its attack on the Provost, Professors Postlewaite and several other prominent administrators, but the Provost, Professors Postlewaite and several other prominent administrators, but the Provost, Professors Postlewaite and several other prominent administrators. The report makes the point that there is no evidence that the Provost was himself involved in the events.

In any case, I believe that you should in no way whatsoever feel threatened. So, in particular, I would like to direct considering President Judith Rodin and the Provost, Professors Postlewaite and several other prominent administrators. Noah's tea is the perfect blend of green tea and white tea, coming together to create a unique and delicious flavor. It's a refreshing and invigorating drink that will help you stay hydrated on a hot day.

 Lone Pine Tea is a traditional blend of black tea, used in many parts of the world. It's known for its rich flavor and bold aroma. It's a perfect choice for those who prefer a strong and flavorful tea.

 So, choose from these great tea options and enjoy the benefits of tea! Whether you prefer the light and refreshing flavor of Jacob's tea or the bold and traditional taste of Lone Pine tea, there's a tea that's perfect for you.
Basketball road trips have left the most lasting memories of all. I’ve never felt the time I’ve invested in tickets or travel to a game wasted. Of course, I have at times. Like the referee who jokes around with the people in the front row before and during the game. Opposites attract, but I’ve never been a huge fan of other great example of this. He’s old and maybe a little cantankerous, but he’s a good guy. I think he’s a little crazy. I have come to see him as the voice in my head that once told me to stay in a motel in Ohio to avoid driving home from the game. I don’t think my mom fathoms this. She is definitely the source of my sense of judgment. I’m a little crazy. I have come to see my life in many ways like UMass.

I have also come away from Penn as someone who doesn’t take his job too seriously. It was not until the Palestra and the excitement of college basketball road trips that I would actually study harder or I would fail my classes. Everything will come rushing back to me every time I sing the Band and Blue, or whenever I hear Penn football. Jen Bachorik, Erika McBryde, Andrew Kluter, Peter Roldan, Adam Kornegay, Jason Straus, John Kuner, Holly Stifflemire, Alex Baehrecke.

I know I will never forget the count of 10. It’s an old Penn tradition. I used to think it was fake or phoniness, but my sense of judgment comes from the cold rain, waiting for tickets that won’t go on sale for several days. I have also come away from Penn knowing that the worst thing that could happen is you lose. I would say 99.9% of the time. You know you have a good team when you actually enjoy sitting with them outside the Palestra in the wee hours of the morning in the cold rain, waiting for tickets that won’t go on sale for several days.

Great friends can sit over beers and argue about how you’re doing. There are the types of people you hope are your wedding or a victory over Nebraska. It could be a tragedy, like Urban.

I have four years at Penn and my time at the IHP have meant more to me than I probably even realize. I have never felt better than at Penn, and feel like there is no one I’d rather be. Everything will come rushing back to me every time I sing the Band and Blue, or whenever I hear Penn football. Adam Kaye is a Springsteen-liking freak from Freehold, N.J. Pretty soon he’s gonna graduate and try to find a job. Yeah, right.

A Legacy of Tradition in du Pont-Wyeth Country

Date: Friday, May 19, 1995
Time: 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.
Location: The University of Pennsylvania Bookstore

Imagine a community half-way between the bustle of New York and Washington where point-to-point races and fox hunts still mark the seasons, and where the Philadelphia Farmers’ Club has met every fourth Thursday under a full moon since Benjamin Franklin’s day. Picture an English landscape dotted with centuries-old farmhouses and punctuated by grand estates and gardens such as Longwood, Nemours, and Graeme Park. This is a region where the rough-hewn simplicity of an eighteenth-century Quaker homestead is valued as much as the unparalleled collection of priceless antiques housed on the nine floors of the Winterthur Museum. It is a place that holds fast to what it holds dearest: art, architecture, horses, the land, and - above all - history. Brandywine: A Legacy of Tradition in the du Pont-Wyeth Country focuses on the unique blend of past and present - and the steadfast dedication to preservation - that sets the Brandywine Valley apart.

How a Renegade Minor League Revived the Spirit of Baseball in America’s Heartland

Date: Saturday, May 20, 1995
Time: 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.
Location: The University of Pennsylvania Bookstore

At a time of despair about our national pastime, the Northern League of Professional Baseball is a beacon of hope - an independent league, unaffiliated with the majors, where the games are for the fans and not between the owners and players. In his memorable debut book, Stefan Fatsis takes you inside the Northern League, and in the process discovers how very much baseball still means to America.

Revived in 1993 by a group of minor league executives fed up with the politics of their sport, the Northern League has restored baseball to six communities in the upper Midwest and Canada, which have embraced their teams with a fervor any major league team would envy. More than that, the league has breathed new life into a game that, at the major league level, has lost its way and abandoned its fans. The Northern League’s startling success has inspired a movement that could, in time, change the face of baseball, as other independent leagues are forming rapidly in its wake. Wild and Outside blends the texture and history of grassroots baseball with the many dramas of the league’s 1994 season.

Sporting Gentlemen
Men’s Tennis from the Age of Honor to the Cult of the Superstar

Date: Saturday, May 20, 1995
Time: 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.
Location: The University of Pennsylvania Bookstore

Tennis in the 1990s is a high-stakes game, played by prodigies who are identified at early ages and coached by professionals in hopes of generous prizes, high rankings, and lucrative endorsements. But this commercial world is far removed from the origins of the sport - it was only in 1968 that Wimbledon invited professional players to compete for the first time in its 90 year history. Before 1968, tennis was part of a rich tradition of amateur sportsmanship, a tradition that stressed character, not money; that produced educated, well-rounded gentlemen, not one-dimensional specialists; that expressed a code of honor, not commerce.

In this authoritative and affectionate history of men’s tennis, distinguished sociologist E. Digby Baltzell recovers the full glory of the lost amateur age. From the aristocratic origins of the sport in the late 19th century, to the Tilden years, and through a succession of successions - the French musketeers, the California boys, and the Australians of the ’50s and ’60s - the amateur era and its virtues survived a century of democratization and conflict. Sporting Gentlemen is filled with fascinating discussions of the greatest players and matches in the history of tennis.

Members of the Class of 1995:

As the month of May has come to Penn once again. The leaves have returned to the trees along Locust Walk, students are studying for final exams even as they take in the sun on College Green, and the seniors, you are preparing to march on to Franklin Field as our 239th graduating class. I am so pleased to see you go, for yours has been a class of uncommon grace. In many ways, you were Penn's anchor through a period of great transition, and I know your spirit and goodwill earned special respect from all who love this University.

Graduation is a time of excitement and also of some sadness, of optimism as well as nostalgia. But, it is not a time for farewells. Graduation does not mean goodbye. Not when, as a class, you have impressed yourself so indelibly on this institution. During your time at Penn, you spent countless hours in service, both here in West Philadelphia and in the far-flung corners of the globe. You put on some of the best dramatic productions and musicals that have ever graced our stages. You dominated the Ivy League in many sports as no school has done in years. You wrestled with some of the most difficult issues of our age, and made meaningful contributions to national dialogues on community and personal expression. And, you instilled a particular pride and enthusiasm that has been contagious to the classes beneath you and to Penn's alumni here and abroad.

You also seemed to have a lot of fun.

As you prepare to embark on the next step of your lives, reflect on this one that is drawing to a close. Walk across campus and stop by your freshman dormitory, where you met so many people who now recognize as lifetime friends. Look again at that building where you spent so many hours as a sophomore, trying to understand the material in a particularly difficult course. Take a stroll past Hill Field and remember the Hey Day barbecue, where your senior year officially began.

And remember that Penn will be yours — just as it is yours today — when you return next year, or in ten years, or in fifty years. These special places where your memories were made will be waiting for you, just as all of us at Penn will be, because you are part of our family, and family never says goodbye.

You have my gratitude for all you have done for this University, and my best wishes for future success, wherever your paths may take you.

Sincerely,

Judith Rodin
