Students newspaper thefts abound

By Lisa Abraham

Several students around the country haven't been able to read "all about it" in their campus newspapers recently, that is another rash of vandalism and other outright thefts.

Officials at the Student Press Law Center say recent incidents at the universities of Virginia, Texas and Nebraska demonstrate a disturbing trend—newspaper thefts on an "almost acceptable" scale have destabilized readers, according to SPLC staff attorney Mike Berkland.

"It's outrageous," he said. "What's even more outrageous is that school administrators I thought would have been better and understood the free speech principles at stake—look the other way."

At the University of Virginia in Charlottesville on August 28, news service employees John (first name) lost 4,000 copies of the Daily Cavalier to becoming freshmen and their parents would not see an unfavorable review of the food served in campus dining halls.

Darmstadt first led the newspaper retainers he had thrown the news away, listing it in order another 4,999 copies per year. But in meeting University officials and Cuban Daily editors later that day, he admitted that he had only hidden the newspapers, and agreed to reimburse them throughout campus.

"The food service company and Mr. Darmstadt have agreed to make a $2,000 contribution to a university scholarship fund of their choice," Cuban Daily Editor Michael Sampson said.

The Daily Pennsylvanian has also been plagued by the theft of advertisers for any damage done during the eight hours the newspapers were on the stands.

A University of Virginia food service employee seized 4,000 copies of the campus paper because it criticized the food served in the dining halls.

Latter the same week, 9,000 copies of the August 28 edition of The Daily Texan, the school's student newspaper, were stolen.

The case of the stolen copies of the student newspaper was taken up by the university's Israel Student Association, which met the following day to discuss new plans of action.

"In the meantime, we were able to recover some of the stolen copies," said a spokesperson for the student newspaper. "But unfortunately, the damage had already been done."

Two bike thefts may be related, police speculate

University Police are speculating that two recent bike thefts may be connected.

The first occurred on September 3, the reports said that the bicycle in question was stolen from the South Street Bridge. The bike was later recovered from an address in the University's Race Street dormitories.

The second incident occurred on September 12, when a bike was taken from the South Street Bridge again. It is unknown whether the two incidents are related.

Crime Report

"If things don't change soon, we're going to have to take some security measures," said a University Police spokesperson.

New guide facilitates property tax appeals

By Ben Hammer
The Daily Pennsylvanian

Philadelphia has one of the highest real estate tax rates in the country, according to Philadelphia Board of Realtors' spokesperson Leni Uddy.

This may create an extra financial burden for the many University faculty members who live within the city's perimeter. The administration encourages University employees to take advantage of the city's Real Property Assessment and Appeals Office, which hears assessment appeals.

"This is an issue that often leaves people fearful," said Board of Realtors President David Glancey. "We're trying to educate the community that the process works, not change the process."

"Go in and talk to your assessor," advises several steps to help with your appeal. "*If you are appealing an assessment on a newly bought house, make an extra copy of your settlement sheet for the assessor. Get a written copy of what similar properties have sold for recently. You may need to hire an attorney for help with an assessment appeal."

Glancey said his office's assessors do not always have all the pertinent information when assessing a house. He therefore advised individuals appealing their assessment to bring in any facts they think may help lower their assessment. "This means that in most cases, the assessment will be higher than what the house would actually sell for," he said.

"This is an issue that often leaves people fearful," Dr. David Glancey, who chairs the Board of Revision of Taxes, says. "I think it's a terrific, terrific piece of literature." Glancey said "I wholeheartedly make this." Glancey said the Board of Revision of Taxes — which hears assessment appeals — praised the Board of Realtors' brochure, saying, "We want to be fair to everybody," Glancey said.

The appeals deadline for this year is October 1. Glancey said private property assessment appeals are handled between November and March.

"The Board of Realtors' brochure advises several steps to help with your appeal," he said. "*If you are appealing an assessment on a newly bought house, make an extra copy of your settlement sheet for the assessor. Get a written copy of what similar properties have sold for recently. You may need to hire an attorney for help with an assessment appeal."

In the future, she said, President Bill Clinton has been a logical choice to schools across the country, and upcoming cuts at Southern Illinois University. He stated that the University's cuts are "penny wise and pound foolish.

In response to Clinton, House Republican Chairman John Residence (R-IL) said, "We are not the only Congress that Democrats have been "leading the way in terms of Republican proposals." President Bush and Senate leaders have said that the Republican proposals "will not cut a single student loan.

The GOP cuts are part of their seven-year plan to balance the federal budget.

Both Republicans and Democrats have been presiding over a "bankruptcy" shutdown of the government which would occur if the fiscal 1996 budget is not passed by October 1.

Vivett gets maximum sentence

By Josh Fineman
The Daily Pennsylvanian

The man convicted of carjacking, robbing, raping and shooting a College of General Studies student in October 1993 was given the maximum sentence possible Tuesday in Common Pleas Court.

Keith Vivett, 30, was found guilty of aggravated indecent assault kidnapping, a weapons offense and two counts of robbery by a jury in June. He will serve between 37 1/2 and 75 years in prison.

Common Pleas Court Judge Arnold New characterized Vivett's crime as "one of the most cold-blooded robberies and shootings" he had seen.

"I feel he is a danger to society, and for the safety of the public I feel he has to be sentenced" to the maximum term the law mandates, New said, referring to Vivett's lengthy criminal record.

The 20-year-old victim was walking to her car in the public parking lot at 34th and Chestnut streets on October 20, 1993 at 9:50 p.m. when Vivett kidnapped her.

Vivett forced the student into the backseat of her car at gunpoint and robbed her of $7. He drove her to North Philadelphia, and forced her to remove her clothing in the car. He then sexually molested her.

After driving around for 20 minutes, Vivett stopped the car and molested the student again. He then gagged her with her bra and forced her to remove her clothing in the car. He then sexual molested her.

According to Assistant District Attorney Curtis Douglas, Vivett was no stranger to crime. He has a prior criminal record which includes a robbery and burglary conviction along with a 1981 conviction for a sexual assault on a nine-year-old.

Douglas added that Vivett served 12 years in prison for involuntary sexual intercourse and was released from prison nine months before he raped and shot the student.

The Philadelphia Inquirer contributed to this story.

Officials discuss NATO's changing role

Alliance created to defend against Warsaw Pact aggression seeks mission in post-Cold War world

By Tammy Polonsky

Tracing the development of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization from the end of the Cold War to the present, several NATO officials addressed a small crowd at the University yesterday.

"The end of a national breed was not the beginning of a new breed," German Army Lt. Col. Gunter Forstchenricher and Col. John J. Pajataticus from the Bulgarian army discussed the alliance's structure.

Created in 1949, NATO has shifted its focus as world events have changed. According to Taylor, "During the Cold War, our primary goal was to deter the Warsaw Pact from an attack." He added, "If we can deter a nuclear attack, then our role was to defend. But now, our concepts of operation are different from the confrontational atmosphere during the Cold War," he added.

After the Warsaw Pact dissolved and the Cold War ended, many questions arose in the European countries about how to stabilize the new political environment. Forstchenricher said that after a garden party, the alliance's role as a "clear-cut" military alliance was gone. "With a garden party, it is uncertain if there was a garden," he said.

The three leaders often referred to "the peace dividend," which was the opportunity to work on international problems, the alliance said. The former war zone, now designated for "peace, crisis and war," is where the alliance redirected attention. The concept has created a new international atmosphere that allows for dialogue and cooperation between countries, managing crises in similar service work.

"I think that's pretty impressive," Taylor said. "I think it's pretty impressive that our president would focus on community service," said Pennsylvania American Corp service scholar Ed Forstenich. "We old buggers," the professor added.

"The crisis of the 1990s was not the crisis of the 1980s," said Theoharis. "It is not like we are facing one crisis. It is not one-dimensional, it is multi-directional."

"If there was a garden party, there was a garden," Taylor said. "If there was a crisis of the 1990s, there was a variety of crises."

To decide on a new mission, the alliance must approve any action that affects its members. Theoharis added that he thinks President Judith Grossman's office is responsible for the new concept.

"It is very much on you guys, Forstenich said.

"I feel like every student should get involved," Ajit Mahapatra said.

SERVICE

Some 700 mobile students for community service. In addition to organizing programs like Into the Streets, the university's community service program has launched a food bank for the homeless, a tutoring program for elementary school students and a free dental clinic for the community.

University programs like Penn Corps and the Street's have a "significant impact" on freshmen, Hartman said.

And freshmen and faculty members have said President Judith Grossman's office is responsible for the new concept and the Cold War ended, many questions arose in the European countries about how to stabilize the new political environment.

Taylor also identified economic herding, nationalism and ethnic conflict as some of the conditions that could pose serious risks to stability.

In the new strategic concept, the Partnership for Peace, a branch of NATO that has developed relations with many countries, includes a new concept that will involve some countries immediately in the new alliance.

Theoharis said that the broader concept of cooperation between countries will be more effective in the future.

"There were no warning calls. As far as now, no one has claimed responsibility."

Richard Hoagland
Embassy spokesperson

"They could have been killed," said a State Department spokesperson who offered the following five tips for reducing terrorism and embassy guards across the world:

1. Use the same type of detector for all embassies.
2. Ensure that all embassies are equipped with proper security measures.
3. Increase the number of security personnel at each embassy.
4. Implement strict guidelines for visitors and staff entering the embassies.
5. Regularly conduct security assessments and training exercises for embassy staff.

Advances force up to 40,000 Serb civilians into flight

"These cuts are not just damaging, but also unnecessary."

Serbian civilians have been forced to flee their homes due to advances of 7th Corps, said the British government. The attacks have occurred despite efforts of the Bosnian government to keep Serb forces from entering the town.

"The Serbs are now using the town as a base to launch attacks on the Bosnian army," said a British Foreign Office spokesman.

Jews urge return of property lost in Holocaust

"We will not be satisfied until every last trace of their property is returned to us."

A group of Jewish organizations has been calling for the return of property lost during the Holocaust. They have been largely unsuccessful in their efforts, however, due to the difficulties of tracing property owners and the passage of time.

Jewish leaders have been urging the United Nations to take action to help them recover their lost property.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — The United States, appealing for quick action to help the few remaining Holocaust survivors, presented a list of 50 nations believed to have considerable wealth, said the United States is trying to cooperate with other countries to help these survivors and their families recover their lost property.

"One of the priorities is to see that no one is left behind," said a State Department spokesperson.

A spokesperson for the United Nations said that the organization has been working with countries around the world to help victims of the Holocaust recover their lost property.

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, Jewish groups have been working to recover property lost to them and their families by the Nazis and later taken over by Communist governments.

They also want millions of dollars of property placed in Swiss banks for Jews killed in the Holocaust by the Nazis and many other states.

Edward Bargman, president of the World Jewish Congress, said that the United States is trying to cooperate with other countries to help these survivors and their families recover their lost property.

"We have been working with the United States to help these survivors and their families recover their lost property," said Bargman.

Ten years ago, Penn won its fourth crown —

William Schaffran burst onto the scene on November 21. He scored three touchdowns, which forced the Ivy League to start from their own 12.20 and 25-yard line in the first half and from their two and one-yard lines in the second half.

One of the most unique aspects of the ball game was the Ivy champions. As the Ivy champions, they were the only team to have won every Ivy League game.

“We won, they didn’t. We’re the Ivy champs.”

On a day when they admittedly played a sloppy game, the Quakers had found a way to win. And that has been their trademark ever since, gaining Penn's second straight title in 1985.

“Whoever says we hacked into this game is a liar,” Scott said. “We earned it. It was a weight training day.”

Call it an ugly victory. That was the fourth straight year the Schuykill River was frozen over by the mid-December chill.

The Ivy champions trophy will have more meaning and be more storied to the sights and sounds of 33rd and Springer Streets, the address of its Weightman Hall residence. And the words “The Champions” will, for the first time, be next to the words “Pennsylvania Quakers” in the season’s record book.

The Schaffran is getting crowded now — for the fourth straight year, the south end zone’s goalposts were erroneously deposited into the record books.

"We're not going to block me, and they're not going to pass on us. It's going to be a part of our game plan," Brown said. "It's great to be a part of this at all."

In some ways, college is just like high school. You sit in class, listen, and take notes. At test time, you regurgitate the information you’ve memorized.

But wait. There’s more to college life.

Want excitement? The opportunity to meet new people? The chance to learn by doing, not by watching?

Join The Daily Pennsylvanian.

The DP, the 111-year-old daily newspaper of the University of Pennsylvania, is consistently rated one of the top ten college newspapers in the country by the Associated Collegiate Press and the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. In fact, more than 30,000 people read the DP every day.

Students, faculty and administrators look to us as their main source of news and information about the University and West Philadelphia. Local businesses see us as the most cost-effective way to present their message to the lucrative Penn market.

Most importantly, the DP — a corporation independent of the University — is run and managed by students. Students just like you. Every day, we write and edit the stories, shoot and develop the photographs, lay out and put together the news pages. Every day, we sell and design the advertisements, handle customer inquiries, and develop budgets and financial statements.

As a DP staff member, you’ll get the opportunity to learn in the trenches, to apply what you’ve learned in the classroom to the real world. From reporting and writing to shooting photographs to selling advertisements to designing pages, you don’t watch — you do.

And, in all of our departments, you’ll begin doing from day one. All you need is enthusiasm, imagination, and drive — we’ll teach you the rest.

EDITORIAL

_Reporting_

In recent years, we’ve sent reporters to Houston and Little Rock for election night coverage of the presidential race, to Washington to cover protests. On campus, we cover everything from the selection of Penn President Judith Rodin to students’ prophetic preferences. In the last few years, DP reporters have interviewed Alex Trebek, Tipper Gore, Lani Guinier, Ed Koch and dozens of other national and local celebrities.

Our sportswriters cover 25 intercollegiate sports, and travel to venues all over the country. Sportswriters also follow the rise of Penn graduates in various professional careers. In recent years, DP sportswriters have interviewed Chuck Daly, John Calipari, John Chaney and Dan Gries.

The DP’s editorial page sparks campus debate every day. Our award-winning weekly arts and entertainment magazine, 34th Street, offers readers an offbeat perspective on the in-depth future stories on the city, and reviews of movies, records, theaters and books. Finally, the Weekly Pennsylvanian offers parents and alumni a look into the goings-on at the University.

_Photography_

Staff members have photographed famous figures ranging from President Bill Clinton and Nelson Mandela to Bill Cosby. If you are looking for action shots, our photographers have covered the 1992 Presidential election and Good Morning America on campus. Our sports photographers cover all of the bies football, basketball, lacrosse etc. We’ll help you develop the skills needed to shoot, develop and print your photographs. Whether you are interested in photography as an art or as a journalistic skill, the DP has what you are looking for.

_Art/Design_

DP staff members work nightly with editors on special page designs, graphics, and illustrations. Now you can have your drawings published instead of just showing them to your friends.

Our art staff utilizes the latest state-of-the-art equipment — such as a brand new Macintosh computer system, laser typesetters, an electronic design tablet and electronic scanners — to get the job done. Staff designers also lay out the front page and learn the most up-to-date techniques in computer illustration.

_Business_

The DP means business too. We’re not just a campus newspaper — we’re an independent corporation in which students call the shots.

At the DP, you won’t learn about the business world by reading a textbook — you’ll visit customers, develop budgets, plan marketing strategies, work with computers, formulate financial statements, and design advertisements. And you’ll gain the kind of real-life business experience employers love.

_Sales/Marketing_

After undergoing an in-depth training program, DP sales representatives hit the streets running. Businesses depend on their sales rep. to help them succeed in the competitive marketplace. Besides gratitude, DP representatives also receive generous monetary rewards, up to several hundred dollars per month.

Our marketing department brainstorm new ways to promote the paper to attract readers and advertisers. To increase community awareness, staffers conduct market research, design promotional materials, write advertising copy and cultivate new clients.

_Credit/Finance_

How does $1,000,000 sound?

The DP is big business — our advertising revenues top the three-quarters of a million dollars mark each year. You can study the theory of finance at Wharton, but the DP gives you an ideal business laboratory — and the money is real. Finance and credit staff members control the funds by preparing budgets and financial statements and by handling customer service, billing and collections. Few other activities on campus offer as much independence with such real stakes.

_AD Design & Production_

Every day, creative services artists and designers work with the sales and marketing staffs to produce promotional materials and create exciting ads campaigns for clients. More importantly, they help local merchants increase their business.

Our production department provides the perfect outlet for your creative skills and imagination. Staffers translate scraped layouts and text into finished ads, from design to typesetting to assembly in each day’s paper. And they design the blueprint for the paper each day.

Enough hype on Hodgson

It is a rare occasion when a non- scholarship, small conference opponent would advertising- ing to recruit a top basketball player. Therefore, it was a surprise to learn that the Quakers will host shooting guard Steve Hodgson in the final weekend of the season. Hodgson, a highly recruited forward from Millersville, has reportedly narrowed his options to either Penn or Rutgers, with a decision expected by the end of the week.

Hodgson's visit coincides with the NCAA Tournament, a period when basketball is at its height. Hodgson, who has been considered a top-100 recruit by most major recruiting services, is expected to make an announcement soon. Penn fans are hoping that Hodgson will choose to play for the Quakers and help the program reach new heights.

The Quakers are currently in the thick of the Ivy League race, with a strong chance of earning an at-large berth. Hodgson's addition would give the team additional depth and a chance to compete for a conference title.

DeRosa is now the Ivies' premiere quarterback

By Jeff Wieland

Maybe it was the school-record 396 yards he amassed in last season's 40-20 victory over Cornell, or maybe it was the fact that he did it with torn ligaments in his thumb, a cast on his throwing hand, and an appointment for surgery right after the game. Whatever the reason, Penn's quarterback, Mark DeRosa, is ready to step into the elite level of Ivy League signal callers.

DeRosa has a reputation for being a workhorse, and his performance against Cornell only solidified that perception. Despite playing with a cast on his thumb, DeRosa passed for 396 yards and three touchdowns, leading the Quakers to a dominant victory.

DeRosa's performance was not just limited to the air. He also rushed for 53 yards and a touchdown, demonstrating his ability to run with the football as well.

Quakers' fans are excited about DeRosa's potential, and his performance against Cornell only adds to their excitement. With Penn's season on the line, DeRosa and his teammates are determined to make a statement and prove that they are one of the top teams in the Ivy League.

Dartmouth's Oberle seeks revenge after '94 heartbreak

By Michael Hazan

With 38 seconds left on the clock in front of a cheering Dartmouth crowd last September, Fromm's winning streak was in critical

The Quakers went on to play better and stronger, building the biggest comeback in Dartmouth history. Dartmouth rallied from a 25-25 deficit with 11:23 remaining to win 26-25.

This season, Dartmouth finds itself in a similar position. The Quakers are looking for payback after last year's heartbreak and are determined to claim their rightful place as the dominant team in the Ivy League.

Pirates wreck Men's Soccer

Tom Houston's hat trick does come in at $75,000

By Arul Balakrishna

A hat trick. Five different players. One team, just that one: Columbia, on Columbia's last possession of the game. The Quakers were leading 2-0 when the Columbia forward got the ball on the wing and beat the Quaker defender. The Quaker goalie, but he had his hands full.

The Quakers ended up making a save, but it was not enough to prevent Columbia from scoring twice. The final score was 2-2, and the Quakers were left with the feeling that they could have done more.

Despite the loss, the Quakers are still holding their own in the Ivy League. They are currently in third place, just one game behind the league leaders. With three games left in the season, the Quakers are determined to make a push for a playoff berth.
