Racism claims upset students

By Julayne Austin

In light of recent allegations by several African American Penn Walk employees that they have encountered racial discrimination on the job, Penn's administration is developing a policy to address the problem. As a Penn student said: "If you're being afraid to walk the streets, then the whole point of going to college is lost.

Throughout the year, the school held community clean-up days, where neighbors, students, and volunteers gathered to improve the school's interior and exterior. The environmental program took its first step toward becoming an integral part of the running the school, during the spring semester. Environmental Studies Professor Jerry Davis instructed students to grade the school's classrooms, a program that he expected to help the local community. Giegengack said he realized he had a great opportunity to do just that.

Because of the school's track record through testing students in Shaw's 's program, Giegengack's long term goal was to see flourishing students on the school's property. He believed that would have a substantial effect on the school, over a year period.

After establishing scientifically sound protocols for the lead tests, Giegengack and his staff collected data from four classrooms. The results showed some areas where students were exposed to lead levels higher than the EPA's threshold of 4.5 parts per million. The results also showed that the areas exposed to lead were not evenly distributed and even their findings lost teeth.

He went on to say that B.M.’s testimony will be problematic for his client.

But Ward feels that McMahon’s testimony will be problematic for his case. According to Miller, Ward has a charge of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse in connection with B.M.’s case against him. The maximum sentence for these charges is between 22 and 46 years.

He is currently teaching an MBA course at the University, entitled "Marketing Management: Program Design."

Ward was one of eight professors to teach the Bucknell MBA Core "Teaching Award last year, for excellence in teaching of core MBA courses.

Students react to racism

"We did not know that but I am troubled that the views of the few students mentioned might actually be reflective of those of many students," Stevenson said. "We need to critique those views because they affect academic course work, having practicing and a variety of other issues in our society."

"I am a Penn professor and I am not aware of these illegal views," she added.

A walking escort who did not wish to be identified said that while he never personally came into contact with blatant racism on the job, he agreed that prejudice is indeed prevalent in many different forms.

Bankruptcy Court clerks said yesterday that they did not know if the filing of claims on Monday had been fully entered into the court docket. As a result, the total number of recoverable claims against New Era - and the dollar figure for losses - may rise again.

Students to host debate

But Jamieson said Wednesday that the debate was a 1990s first step, in understanding BRCAl, he explained in Science News.

"The work is an important first step," he told Science News earlier this month.

Because the gene itself was only identified a few years ago, researchers are not yet sure when and where it may be effective.

"The challenge is to understand the physiology and biochemistry of this gene so we can develop better treatments," said Dr. Dennis Slamon, an assistant professor of Molecular and Cellular Biology at the University of California, Los Angeles.

Researchers have already begun examining the gene's role in breast development, Chodosh said.

"We are looking at the long-term anti-cancer benefit of the gene," he explained in Science News.

"Our goal is to figure out which parts of the gene are most important," Chodosh told the Daily Pennsylvanian.

"We could potentially use currently existing drugs to protect against breast cancer," Dr. Dennis Slamon, an assistant professor of Molecular and Cellular Biology at the University of California, said.

"At this point in the semester, day by day, my schedule is pretty tight," she said.

"I feel better knowing that she's so close to home," Josephine Tutt, a freshman from South Philadelphia, said.

A hero is much more than a person you admire from afar. Everyone has a different opinion on what makes someone a hero. Some think that students should enter the military and possibly sacrifice their lives for their country. Others feel that individuals who make a difference in their communities or help those in need also qualify as heroes. In my opinion, heroes are those who step forward and take action when it matters most.

When I think of a hero, I think of Cal Ripken Jr. He is a hero for the generations. My father and I go to ballgames together, and when he was a kid, he always wanted to play shortstop in Little League. I told him a story about a hero for the generations. His name is Cal Ripken Jr.

Cal Ripken Jr. is a baseball player who has played for the Baltimore Orioles since he was a young child. He is known for his impressive performance on the field and his dedication to his sport. Cal Ripken's dedication to the game has been recognized throughout his career. He is a seven-time All-Star, a three-time World Series champion, and the third all-time career hit leader. In addition to his athletic achievements, Cal Ripken Jr. is also known for his fairness and integrity. He is respected by his teammates and opponents alike. Cal Ripken Jr. is a true hero in every sense of the word.

Volleyball set to begin Ivy play

Penn Head Coach Steve Bissell recently addressed the Quakers' upcoming conference schedule which begins this weekend. The teamimshow will face Brown University (1-8, 0-0), then take on Yale (7-4, 0-0) in New Haven, Conn., to take on Yale. Penn will be seeking to win both matches against these conference foes. The Quakers (4-5, 0-0) were defeated by Penn State, 3-0, but have been preparing for upcoming games. Today the Quakers will be preparing for the Perm volleyball team, which is known for its powerful lineup.

SQUEAKER from Back Page

Although the Quakers were clearly the superior team, regulation time went without a goal from either side. Pero's offense quietly swiveled in overtime, as senior forward Sara Herbine edged a pass from AnnVICE to left her in the circle in front of the Bears' goal. She drove the shot hard, and when the Bears' keeper tried to stop it, the shot was deflected into the goal. Pero's offense quickly found the back of the net, and the Quakers went on to win the game, 2-1.

The Quakers were unable to make the most of their corner opportunities, as they were denied numerous chances to put the ball in the net. Despite the 2-0 margin of victory, the game was not without its challenges. The Quakers were unable to generate consistent chances, and their offense struggled to find the back of the net. However, they were able to capitalize on a few opportunities, and the win was well deserved.

One of the key factors in the Quakers' victory was the play of their defense. The defense was able to prevent the Bears from scoring, and their efforts were rewarded with a well-deserved win. The Quakers will now focus on preparing for their next game, and hope to build on their momentum in the upcoming matches.

The Quakers have won only one of their first three games, but the team is confident that they can improve as the season progresses. The team has shown flashes of promise in their games, and they are motivated to put together a stronger performance in the upcoming matches. With this win, the Quakers are off to a strong start, and they will look to build on this momentum as they continue to prepare for their next game.

The Quakers will face Ursinus College next weekend, and they will be looking to continue their winning streak. The team is committed to playing with energy and enthusiasm, and they are confident that they can put together a strong performance in the upcoming games.

The Quakers are looking forward to the challenges that lie ahead, and they are excited to see how they can continue to improve as a team. With this win, the Quakers have taken a step forward, and they are eager to see how they can build on this success in the upcoming matches.

CONSISTENCY

It said, "They'll run their West Coast offense right at us, and they've got a very legitimate back in Lemon." The West Coast offense, which is a quick-think and pass-first offense, often uses an integrating tight end for the quarterback, who most often is getting to the quarterback given the slightest opportunity. Penn's front five will have to be quicker than ever if it is to match last week's five-sack effort against Lafayette.

NOTES

The last time the two teams met in 1993, Penn broke open a close game with three fourth-quar- ter touchdowns to win 42-12 in Lewiston, Pa.... In the last meet- ing at Franklin Field, back in 1988, the Quakers ended out a 20-34 defeat when Bucknell missed a 46-yard field goal with 20 seconds remain- ing... The last time the Bison beat the Quakers was in 1987, when Bucknell won 12-6 in Lewiston.

W. Tennis overwhelms Lehigh, ready for Army

Even without their No. 1 player, the women’s ten-afternoon, winning 9-0 on the road.

Pretty Surprise, the Quakers’ top player and captain, did not join her team because she was participating in the ITA National Clay Court cham-

She was surprised by Lehigh’s Lauren Alexander playing in the No. 4 spot against the Engineers. She easily defeated Lehigh’s top player, Catherine Connolly 6-4, 6-3.

Freshman Karen Baker played the first singles match of her collegiate career in the No. 3 spot taking down Lehigh’s Kiera Rosenberg. Baker followed up by routing the No. 6 and 4-6, then had some trouble in the second set, which she won 6-4.

Raven was in total control but I think she felt the pressure of a little bit too much in the second set.

Bison invade Franklin Field trying to end streak

By Nick Hut

The Daily Pennsylvanian

Senior wide receiver Felix Rousseau celebrates his touchdown catch last Saturday at Lafayette. Tomorrow, Reuse and the Quakers will try to beat an atop another Patriot League team.

So maybe Bucknell found a silver lining in the storm clouds surrounding him in the press conference following the loss. Bagnoli was asked why the Quakers were able to lose to the Bearcats, despite a 20-week winning streak. His answer was "the Quakers were able to lose to the Bearcats, despite a 20-week winning streak."

"The players are just too talented," Bagnoli said. "They saw the films and that's why they're able to do that." But do they really want to see the films? The players heard the coach's tirade. They saw the films. And that's why they're able to do that.

An area in which Penn especially wants to improve is the running game. That far the three-headed monster of Jason Scott, Abye Akinboboye and Dion Camp has done a less than impressive job of replacing the graduation of Steve Lancaster, who averaged well over 100 yards a game and received first team honors in both his senior seasons.

But this may not be the week the running game returns to its former glory. Last week it was Abye who was hampered by injury, now it's both Bagnoli and Camp. Scott popped a big block in his knee early in the week and the bigger question mark going into the game, according to Bagnoli, is the running game. Scott is suffering from a strained hamstring. Despite these obstacles, Bagnoli said he's seen some improvement emanating from the backfield. Against Lafayette, the lack of a running game in the second half forced the Quakers into the air with notably poor results. After throwing for three touchdowns in the first half, quarterback Mark DeRosa was forced into a long pass for a touchdown in the second half.

While Penn's running game has had a tough time getting going, Bucknell's has been... well, not good enough.

Against this week's game against the Leopards, the men's soccer team hopes to continue its success to Ivy play. Last year's squad, winners just once in the Ancient Eight, beat the Lions 3-1 by a roasting 4-0 rout. But assured this game will not be easy. Laventas will be in the first 11, or at least in the starting 11. For the team, and a comparison of Laventas' performance, Bucknell will find itself in the Lion's favor. The Lions were victorious against a Bison team that Penn tied.

The Daily Pennsylvanian

Coming out of its biggest win of the year, 5-1 against Lehigh Tuesday, the women's soccer team hopes to continue its success tomorrow morning in New York against Columbia.

For Penn (3-3-1, 0-2 Ivy League), the Lions present a different type of challenge. While the Quakers have suffered severe disappointment in recent matches, the Lions have followed suit. A 3-1 loss to Bucknell, followed by a 0-0 tie to Princeton, the Lions are still searching for their third win of the year. Bucknell at Penn

The Quakers have suffered from a lack of consistency in their offensive line, particularly in the second half. The Quakers were able to stifle the Leopards offense in the first half, but were unable to do so in the second half.

In the past, the Quakers have been able to score goals on the road, but have struggled on the home field. This game will be a test for the Quakers to see how well they can perform on the road.
