The Interfraternity Council's Judicial Inquiry Board approved a fine of $2,000 against the Sigma Chi fraternity last night, IFP President Josh Gottheimer said.

"The fine stems from a series of violations of existing policy, which states that fraternities may not serve alcohol to freshmen," Gottheimer said. "Following a Sigma Chi rush event Jan. 23, Wharton freshman Jeff Ryan was taken to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania by several fraternity brothers for "vomiting and dehydration."

IFC Vice President Nick Freda told The Daily Pennsylvanian that the fraternity brothers must also attend mandatory DART workshops on drug awareness by February 15 Sigma Chi faces a probation period of two years which includes an "official probationary term of six months."

"This award supports our continued efforts to address certain Needs," she added. "This award is valued as such because of the academic and professional issues."

Phi Psi triples with pledge class

By Barbara Geen
The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Phi Psi Kappa fraternity recently added a new pledge class, which includes two faculty and five students.

"The addition of new members to the fraternity has been a positive experience," said Mark Silverman, a member of the fraternity.

The new members include two faculty members and five students, bringing the total membership to 25. The fraternity has a maximum membership of 30 members.

The new members are as follows:

Faculty:
- Professor John Smith
- Professor Jane Doe

Students:
- Student A
- Student B
- Student C
- Student D
- Student E

The fraternity is well-known for its close-knit community and strong support system.

"We are excited to welcome these new members to our family," said Silverman.

The fraternity hosts a variety of events throughout the year, including social gatherings, philanthropic events, and community service projects.

"We look forward to seeing these new members fully integrate into our community," said Silverman.

Editorial

Giving the Annenberg School Theatre to the Annenberg Public Policy Center, the pet project of Annenberg School for Communication Dean Kathleen Hall Jamieson, is deplorable.

It’s a well-known fact that the performing-arts community on this campus faces wonderful inadequacies when it comes to acceptable rehearsal and performance space.

When a cappella, theater and dance groups can find suitable rooms to use, they typically have to pay exorbitant fees or accept odd, inconveniently assigned use times. And that’s if they can find suitable space at all.

Now, even more than before, jam sessions in members’ living quarters do much to alleviate the space problems. In places such as the Nursing Education Building’s aesthetically question-able Dunlap Auditorium are the norm.

The proposed Perelman Quadrangle student center project won’t do much to alleviate the space crunch; it doesn’t include the sought-after black box theater performers clamored for and won in the now-scrapped Reydon Center.

The renovations that will get under way will include a highly touted “flexible proscenium stage” with variable capacity seating into Irvine Auditorium, which will be part of the Perelman Quad project, but after Irvine becomes first class performance space, it may be priced out of performing-arts use — or altogether lost limits entirely by administrators.

So we’re left wondering: Why take away even one more feet of the acceptable, in use performing-arts space at Penn, when it isn’t enough and so additions or improvements are in progress?

We know that a construction timetable for the Annenberg School Theatre conversion has not yet been determined. But we maintain that a program responsible for bringing in occasional, high-powered speakers — who usually don’t interact with undergraduates in any meaningful way while on campus — doesn’t deserve its own custom-designed corner.

Clearly, Penn’s diverse performing-arts community deserves better.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President Clinton today left town to spend a few days at his daughter's wedding, but the last thing on his mind was the Whitewater controversy that he has tried to put behind him.

The White House and Madison lawyer Paul Landis' office said yesterday that Clinton would testify about the Whitewater deal in a civil suit on the Whitewater depositions.

A White House source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said expectation that discussions with Mrs. Landis' lawyer will result in the president providing videotaped testimony.

Solar car displayed after U.S. tour, races

By Rob Jackson

After hours of work, a tour of the entire United States and the successful completion of one of the most difficult races in the world, the Penn Solar Racing Team has finally taken a rest. The team and its car—the Liberty Belle—were honored along with several other students and professors for their designs participating in the Philadelphia International Auto Show, held at the Philadelphia Convention Center this weekend.

The solar car, which is capable of speeds up to 78 miles per hour and runs on a combination of solar and battery power, was prominently displayed along with automakers such as Toyota and Ford. Several high school and college students were also given the opportunity to view the cars and work with their designers.

"It's fun to show off the car after U.S. tour, races during the auto show," said engineering graduate student Andreas Gudatlas, who has been working on the team for three years. "It's fun to show off the car after all the hard work, especially for the kids who are watching us work."

Gudatlas, who is responsible for driving the car, participated in the auto show along with Engineering junior Ryan Cowell and Engineering sophomore Richard Watts, explaining the car to numerous curious spectators.

The solar car team includes 18 members from the Wharton School, School of Engineering, and engineering students. Each member works on either the electrical, mechanical, or design aspect of the car. Some members, however, are responsible for both the design and electrical aspects of the car.

"Working under tremendous time pressure and with little available help, the team was able to replace the motor, repair the car, and drive it," said Cowell. "We learned a lot about working with unemployed people that we are lucky to have.

"The best advice we can give to other teams is to view the cars and work with their designers."

Schnur agreed: "It should be a real upset the Blue Jays. Since Swarthmore lost a number of girls as it moved from beginners to the swimming pool, it should be fun to watch." Zero wins, 26 losses. No questions asked, yet the Penn women's basketball team has no choice but to accept it. In the post-season season finale, undefeated in things are not looking nearly as bright for the Quakers as they were last week. This time around, it is Villanova that poses an obstacle in the nation's. For the Quakers (16-10), the game with Villanova has no chance of winning the Big East Challenge. Wildcats top Hoyas in Big East showdown

PHILADELPHIA — Freshman John Celestand had a season-high 19 points, while the Hoyas (19-4, 9-3) had a two-game winning streak snapped. Eberz, who bruised his hip in Saturday's win over Villanova, top Hoyas in Big East showdown.

The Hoyas never got closer than eight points the rest of the game. Thibault steared aside a low drive from Joe Sakic. He was unable to stop Scott Young, positioned in front of the net. Thibault made a pads save on a shot by Sakic. He finished with his 15th goal of the year.

Christian Laettner scored 23 points. Isaiah Rider added 18, and the Timberwolves up by 11. But then the Pistons, who trailed for the third time, had just enough left. Ewing hit a 14 foot fadeaway jumper with 1 02 remaining to help New York pull out a 97-91 victory.

Harvard surprises W. Fencing when epee squad stumbles

Quakers still rebound to beat Brandeis, Ohio State easily

By Marc Edelman

The Daily Pennsylvania

The Penn women's fencing team started the season with two losses, but rebounded Saturday against the Ohio State Buckeyes and the Brandeis University Bears. Saturday was the first match of the season for the Quakers, who finished with a 5-2 victory over the Buckeyes, followed by a 20-15 loss to the Bears.

"There were a lot of obstacles," said head coach Al Sapper. "The Buckeyes came in with a lot of momentum, and the Bears were unranked. But we managed to pull it out in the end." The Quakers' 5-2 victory over Ohio State was a result of strong performances from the epee and sabre squads, as well as a solid showing in the foil event. The sabre team won all three matches against the Buckeyes, while the epee team won two of three. The foil team also won two of three matches against the Buckeyes.

In the loss to Brandeis, the Quakers were outmatched, with the Bears winning all six matches. The epee team lost all three matches, and the foil team lost two of three. However, the sabre team won a close 4-3 match against the Bears.

"It was a tough day," said Mediterranean coach Al Sapper. "We had a lot of injuries, and our depth was hit hard. But we still managed to come out with a win." The sabre team's victory was a result of strong performances from the individual matches, with several fencers coming through with key points.

Meanwhile, the epee team was limited in their repertoire due to the absence of several fencers. However, the foil team managed to hold their own, with the team's only loss coming in a close match.

The Quakers have a long history of success in the sport of fencing, with a number of national titles and individual championships to their credit. However, the team has struggled in recent years, with a number of losses and disappointments. This season, the Quakers are hoping to turn things around and return to their winning ways. The team is led by head coach Al Sapper, who has been with the program for over 20 years. Under his guidance, the Quakers have achieved a number of successes, including several national championships and individual titles. This season, the team has set their sights on a strong showing at the national championships, where they hope to make a run for a place on the podium.

THE NOMINATIONS AND ELECTIONS COMMITTEE

WHOSE SCHOOL IT IS anyway?!
Welcome to the Nominations and Elections Committee’s first Spring Nominations Insert. The purpose of this insert is to provide the undergraduate students with different ways of becoming involved at the University of Pennsylvania.

The Nominations and Elections Committee is an independent and autonomous branch of student government. Our function is threefold: 1.) to run the Undergraduate Assembly Elections, 2.) to appoint undergraduates to these University-wide committees, and 3.) to maintain a system of communication between student government and such committees.

The Spring Nominations Process is one of the most important events our committee handles. It offers students the opportunity to work with administrators and faculty on interest-specific committees. The following page shows the breakdown of the committees into six different categories. Please take the time to read through the descriptions and apply to the committee(s) that most interest you.

I urge you to help strengthen the Undergraduate Voice and apply to a committee today!

Sincerely,

Ning Chi Hsu

AS EASY AS...
Dear Penn Students,

It’s now that time of year when the NEC runs Spring Nominations – the time when you have the opportunity to apply for one or more positions on over 40 University-wide committees. The committees work on various issues affecting Penn such as diversity and campus security. If there is an issue on campus that concerns you, the NEC can help match you with the appropriate committee.

There are many benefits of serving on a committee. First of all, it is a way to become active in student government. As a committee member, you will be representing all Penn students when you voice your concerns. Secondly, you will have a chance to work with administrators and faculty in affecting change on campus. By working with the people who have the power to enact changes, your involvement will affect the future of Penn.

All Penn freshmen, sophomores, and juniors are eligible to apply. Each committee position has a term of one year and most committees hold meetings several times each month.

So look for a committee that sparks your interest and stop by Houston Hall and pick up an application on the inside door of the NEC Office (Room 112). I challenge you not to complain about a problem you see affecting Penn, but rather to take an active role in changing it!

Sincerely,

Christina R. Glise
NEC Vice-Chair for Nominations

NEC ACADEMIC

Research
This committee is concerned with the research activity of the University. It has the responsibility of being aware of all matters of policy relating to research and the general environment for research at the University, including the assignment of research funds distributed by the University. It advises the administration on those proposals for sponsored research referred to it because of potential conflict with University policy. There are two positions available.

SAS Benjamin Franklin Scholars Advisory Board
The BFS Advisory Board is a new board, consisting entirely of students, that the Nominations and Elections Committee representative serves on. The Advisory Board is concerned with, among other things, fostering positive professor/student relationships. In addition to serving on the advisory board, the person who is appointed will serve in an advisory role to the Director of the General Honors Program in relation to curriculum issues and will also work with the program staff on recruitment issues. There will also be some dealings with expanding GH/BFS alumni ties. There is one position available for a BFS/GH College student.

SAS Curriculum
This committee reviews all proposals for new courses, majors, and undergraduate programs, and recommends to the faculty the approval or rejection of each proposal. The curriculum committee is divided equally among the three divisions of the School of Arts and Sciences. There are two positions available.

SAS General Requirement
This committee examines the General Requirement for the School of Arts and Sciences. Responsibilities include reviewing and recommending policy for the General Requirement and acting on recommendations from departments of courses to be listed in the various sectors. There is one position available for a College student.

SAS Undergraduate Education
This committee advises the Dean on all matters broadly affecting the undergraduate educational mission of the School of Arts and Sciences, including educational policies, proposed new organizational units, and reviewing of the advising system. There are two positions available for College students.

SAS Writing
This committee is responsible for overseeing the new SAS writing requirement. In doing so, the committee will be overseeing any changes as well as serving an integral role in deciding which classes will fulfill the requirement. There is one position available for a College student.

Wharton Undergraduate Curriculum
This committee is responsible for the review of the Wharton undergraduate course requirement and curriculum issues. A recent activity included the undergraduate curriculum review and implementation. There is one position for a Wharton student.

Wharton Undergraduate Executive
The Undergraduate Executive Committee is responsible for all non-curriculum matters in the Undergraduate Division. These include admissions policies, grading, teaching, and academic standards. Most recently it has been involved in teaching excellence and ongoing assessment of academic standards. There is one position for a Wharton student.

NEC COMMUNITIES

Communications
This committee is concerned with monitoring the internal communications and public relations activities of the University in its various formats which include electronics, audio, video, and print. It monitors the operations of News and Public Affairs, the Publications Office, and communications with alumni. The committee also serves to interpret the University to its many constituencies. Recent issues have included Quad mail and electronic mail. There are two positions.

Community Relations
This committee advises the University Council on the relationship of the University to the surrounding community. It helps make policy with respect to the community. It works with the Office of Community Relations to assure that the University develops and maintains a constructive relationship with the community. There are two positions.

International Programs
This committee reviews and monitors issues related to the international programs and other international activities of the University. The committee advises and makes policy recommendations in such areas as services for international students and scholars, foreign fellowships and studies abroad, and cooperative undertakings with foreign universities. There are two positions.

Wharton International
The Wharton International Committee advises the Associate Dean for International Relations. With this office it reviews exchange programs, foreign courses offered to exchange programs, and all international initiatives of the Wharton School. There is one position available for a Wharton student.

WXPN Policy Board
The Policy Board recommends program policy and standards and advises the station manager on implementation.
policies. It has the responsibility to advise the Vice Provost for University Life on current fiscal affairs, the selection and evaluation of the station manager, and long-range fiscal and administrative planning. Additionally, it has the responsibility to consult with various constituencies including faculty, students, support staff, alumni, members of the listening community, and public broadcasting professionals. There is one position.

NEC FACILITIES

Art Collection Advisory Board
This committee works with the art collection on campus. Its main purpose is to review and discuss any and all suggestions pertaining to the art collection which consists of objects from over 140 buildings throughout campus. There is one position.

Bookstore
This committee considers the purposes of the University bookstore and advises the University Council and the Director of the University Bookstore on policies, development, and operations. There are two positions.

Facilities
This committee advises, reviews, and helps make recommendations on issues involving the planning and operation by the University of its physical plant and all services associated with it, including transportation and parking. There are two positions.

Houston Hall Board
This committee’s purposes are to promote Houston Hall and Irvine Auditorium as a student union complex and center of extracurricular activities, to review and make recommendations regarding the daily use of the facilities which includes services and Mall and office space allocations, to advise the Director of Student Life Activities and Facilities in the development of Houston Hall and Irvine Auditorium, and to encourage and support programs to restore and renew the complex. There is one position.

Library
This committee advises the Director of Libraries on the policies, development, and operation of the University libraries.
