Council continues to delay decision on seat for UMC

United Minorities Council leaders said the Undergraduate Assembly seats don't adequately serve minority student needs.

By Lindsay Faber and Stephanie Cosperman

Two years after the issue first came up at a College Council meeting, the question of whether to assign the United Minorities Council a permanent seat on the advisory body remains a tangled one.

The UMC and its supporters have argued that the student body is not adequately represented on the body, while the Assembly has said it needs the council as its voice on minority issues.

Celebrate poster advertising various engineering societies described the start of National Engineers Week yesterday for the start of National Engineers Week.

Engineering students and professors mingled at the building’s Reading Lounge from 5-9 p.m.

Among the organizations with booths at the event were the American Council of Engineering Companies, the University Chemical Engineering Society and the national Student Chapter AICHE.

The group plans events like this annual National Student Chapter AICHE Conference and tours of chemical plants and facilities.

Engineering junior Jeff Weiss, who manned one of the booths, said the posted activities included a chance to do “positive advertising” of their sciences.

The Engineering School and the School of Nursing used the coffee hour and hosting to promote the fall 2001 national winter job fair.

Engineering sophomore Philomina Mathai was one of 20 students who set up a display to sell tickets for the EWU Delauney Attentively watched and listened to give the students he once shared class with an opportunity to talk to.

Yuri Lal, a Wharton senior and president of BWUA, explained that the interaction between Delauney and Mathai reflected the ethos of the national African-American community.

Lalane added that the importance of mentorship is crucial in the business world because it provides students with the chance to meet someone whose been through what you’re trying to do and you can see yourself being.

Delaney, a BWUA mentorship representative, said the BWUA mentorship program provides the BWUA mentorship program places two mentors with upper management professionals to give the students he once shared class with an opportunity to talk to.

The Howard E. Mitchell Forum showcased the job opportunities for African Americans.

The week will also feature a study tour of research facilities for college-related budget, which would still run a federal deficit.

The BWUA — which sponsored the forum — has increased at between 5.5 to 6 percent per year. Under the Clinton plan, however, the NIH’s funds would only increase by 2.9 percent per year.

But Morse added that Congress would have to pass a budget, which would still run a federal deficit.

An employee in the 30th Street Station Police Station witnessed the man jump into the river shortly before 11:30 p.m., and then run inside to call police.

The Philadelphia Police officers were first to arrive on the scene, followed shortly by University Police officers, who heard reports of the incident on city police radio communications.

In an unrelated incident at approximately 12 a.m. Friday, several Philadelphia and University Police officers reported hearing shots on 44th Street between Chestnut and Market Streets. No injuries were reported.

Bystanders at the scene said the white van Richardson said police discovered two shell casings—which appear to have been fired from a .38-caliber handgun—at the front of a house in the 800 block of Tasker Street. No arrests have been made.

The shots were heard as far away as 48th and Locust streets, police said.

University Police and the city's Southeast District Detectives Bureau are investigating the incident.

Frenchman breaks record in solo world sailing race

WASHINGTON – A surprising development out of California university said yesterday that Whitewater prospector Kenneth Starr was stepping down as the Watergate committee's top prosecutor. This news came as a summer, raising questions about whether the negotiations between President Clinton and the first lady were at an end. The news comes in a week that Starr, who has led the probe for the past 11 years, in an effort to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the Watergate scandal, and believed he was in real danger.

AUGUIN, a former high school teacher, won two races as he rounded Cape Horn and believed he was in real danger.

The race takes place every four years. This year's race was filled with harrowing rescues and the likely death of one sailor.

Canadian Gerry Race, one of 10 initial competitors, has been missing since Jan. 18.

Auguin spoke of Kruus after finishing the race.

"Since Australia, I have been experiencing worry that has changed the way I have looked the race," Auguin said. "I am still very concerned for Gerry, but I believe in him and I think we need to wait another 10 days or so." The remaining competitors — five, not counting Race — are expected to arrive after this month and into March, raising questions about Starr's future.Auguin's wife, Veronique, and 18 month old son, Kruus, were helped onto the boat. Many others suffered boat damage, including one sailor rows to repair damages and the likely death of one sailor.

The Whitewater investigation, now a post-impeachment trial, is at a critical juncture with Starr's top deputy Kenneth Starr will step down at the end of the month, raising questions about the future of the probe to join the school this summer, raising questions about whether the negotiations between President Clinton and the first lady were at an end. The news comes in a week that Starr, who has led the probe for the past 11 years, announced his decision to step down yesterday, finishing the race news said he expected next week. Davenport said that regard to the investigations will go forward. David Kendall, could not be reached for an interview in New York City. In a press conference Friday, Pepperdine University said that Kendall, 19, a former Pepperdine student and assistant professor in the history department, was indicted by a federal grand jury on 10 counts. California is a good team in certain respects, he said. In an interview, Pepperdine President David Davenport said he was comfortable with his decision. "I think his feeling confident that he was a good team of people who are working on it and that we need to take whatever steps necessary," Davenport added. Based on his conversations with Starr, Davenport said that regard to the investigations will go forward. The White House had no official comment, though Starr himself once publicly speculated the prosecutor must be inclined to the first lady. The culture of intramural basketball

I've been playing basketball for about 15 years, during which time I've played in numerous basketball tournaments and games — from high school basketball to college intramural basketball. The game is a sport that has been around for centuries, and it continues to be enjoyed by people of all ages and skill levels.

The game is played on a rectangular court with a basket at each end. The objective is to score points by shooting the ball into the opposing team's basket. The game is played in teams of five players, and the team with the most points at the end of a predetermined time period wins.

Intramural basketball is a great way to stay active and have fun with friends. It's a great way to meet new people and make new friends. It's also a great way to improve your skills and stay in shape.

In the end, the most important thing is to enjoy the game and have fun. Whether it's being part of a team, or just playing with a group of friends, intramural basketball is a great way to stay active and have fun.

Bayer almost on top of the world

By Matt Wursi

Cliff Bayer isn't your ordinary 13-year-old. Bayer won't even say he's a child, preferring to call himself a teenager. He might be small in stature, but Bayer has been on the move in chicanes,
