Polls show the GOP incumbent holding onto a 40-point lead.

The polls don't open for another six days, but the results of the 1998 Pennsylvania gubernatorial election are already clear: Gov. Tom Ridge leads his nearest challenger, Democratic State Rep. Ivan Man, by 40 points, the campaign has announced.

Among that poll's findings Ridge leads Itkin among Democratic voters. He leads in every region of the state, with 9 points and 18 percent of voters were undecided.

The polls don't open for another six days, but the race is already over.

Gov. Ridge likely headed for landslide

The television spots have been running, the face of the campaign has been everywhere, and the battle lines are drawn. It's all over but the shouting.

Tom Ridge: Republican

Years in public life:

10 years in Pennsylvania House of Representatives (1973-1983)
2 years in Pennsylvania State Senate (1983-1985)
10 years in US Congress (1985-1999)
6 years as US Senator (1999-2005)
6 years as Governor of Pennsylvania (2005-present)

Political Experience:

Served as Pennsylvania's state senator from 1983 to 1985.
Served as the US senator from Pennsylvania from 1999 to 2005.
Served as the governor of Pennsylvania since 2005.

Ridge has been cautious — wisely so, by most accounts.

Itkin: Democrat

Years in public life:

3 years in Pennsylvania House of Representatives (1976-1979)
8 years in Pennsylvania State Senate (1979-1987)
3 years in US Congress (1987-1990)
8 years as US senator (1990-1998)
6 years as Governor of Pennsylvania (1998-present)

Political Experience:

Served as Pennsylvania's state senator from 1976 to 1987.
Served as the US senator from Pennsylvania from 1987 to 1998.
Served as the governor of Pennsylvania since 1998.

Itkin has been running a strong campaign, but Ridge has been running a stronger campaign.

Ridge has been cautious — wisely so, by most accounts.

BERKELEY CAFE, 66 WHEELER — A University of California at Berkeley student who was found dead in University Village has been identified by police and family as Lauren Lisitski.

Lisitski, 18, was alert when she was found by a resident advisor at a C-Mall apartment on Wednesday, Oct. 28, police said. She was later declared dead by emergency medical technicians.

Lisitski was a junior in political science and was a member of the University Housing Council. She was also a member of the University of California Student Association and had been a member of AEPi, a fraternity for men.

Lauren and Alexander Lisitski, Lauren's parents, said their daughter was not in any way involved in the frat party the night she died.

Lauren had been a member of AEPi for two years, said Alexander Lisitski.

The investigation continued Friday night, after Lisitski's body was removed from the C-Mall apartment. A neighbor, who wished to remain anonymous, described Lisitski as "quiet."

"She had difficulty speaking English, but she was very nice to me," said a student who lived in University Village for nine days before she died.

Lauren's family, who was on campus when she was found, said they were shocked by the news.

There is no indication of foul play, according to a resident advisor at a C-Mall apartment.

Lisitski's family, who live in Rold, Israel, have been contacted by the Israeli police, and the family will be notified about funeral arrangements, according to University Housing Executive Director Joseph Lurie.

A neighbor, who wished to remain anonymous, described Lisitski as "quiet."

"She had difficulty speaking English, but she was very nice to me," said a student who lived in University Village for nine days before she died.

Lauren had been depressed before her death, her father said, in the fact that she was in a foreign environment, she had a body through the window.

"When she was living in University Village, she was living in the United States, the neighbor said. "She was trying to adjust to the change in culture, but she didn't understand the language.""

The September 15 campaign finance disclosure revealed that Ridge had $27.7 million in the bank. Itkin had a mere $8,000, or about 1 percent of Ridge's resources. Even Lukash, a third-party candidate unlikely to pull in more of the vote than Itkin, has outraised them by far.

Ridge took 12 percent of the vote in his native county. Lukash has probably captured similar numbers in the polls this year while focusing on similar issues. Both Ridge and Itkin are pro-choice, though Ridge favors public funding of abortions for women, a position most voters said the same of Ridge. Even so, the potential of more of the vote than Itkin, has outraised them by far.

Ridge's resources even though his campaign has been temporarily shunted aside against near-forthcoming primaries. Itkin has called for a primary, but it is unclear whether it will be held.

Looking at the positive sides at life at Penn

To the Editor:

When I first laid eyes on the University of Pennsylvania, I fell heir to the same excitement and awe the campus evokes in students and faculty. However, as January 31st approaches, I find myself pondering the ways to make the most of my four years at Penn. What should be the key points of focus each day? How can I best utilize the resources and opportunities that Penn has to offer? Is there a sense of dedication and commitment that permeates the campus, or is it a place where people come and go without really engaging with their surroundings?

As I reflect on these questions, I am reminded of the quote by William Bridges, "If you don’t like where you are, you have two choices: you can either change where you are, or change where you are going." While it is tempting to focus on the external factors that influence our lives, it is important to remember that we have the power to shape our own experiences. By focusing on what we can control and what brings us joy, we can find fulfillment and contentment in our lives.

I submit this letter in the hope that it may serve as a catalyst for others to think more deeply about their own experiences at Penn and to consider how they can contribute to a positive and meaningful campus culture. Let us together create an environment where everyone feels valued, respected, and supported.

Sincerely,

[Name]

NEW YORK — The NBA and the players' union, finally seeking common ground after nearly three months of labor talks, finally reached a tentative deal Tuesday night and the union agreed not to strike.

The agreement, which was reached after nine hours of meetings at a secret location in Philadelphia, was for a hybrid system incorporating aspects of both the Bird and CNN systems. The players' union, which had been seeking a Bird system, was pleased with the result, and the league was also pleased that it had reached an agreement.

The sides discussed a hybrid option, which would allow players to continue receiving their guaranteed salary, play in the CBA if they want to continue receiving their guaranteed salary, and go into the CBA if they want to continue being guaranteed salary. The league was pleased with the result, and the players' union was also pleased that it had reached an agreement.

The new policy, which will be discussed at the next meeting, is expected to be in place in January. The NBA and the players' union have reached a tentative agreement on a new collective bargaining agreement that will run through the 2007-08 season.

The likely focus of the owners' discussion will be on the number of players that can be considered for the Bird system. Brosius one of many to file for free agency

NEW YORK — Albert Belle and Mike Piazza were two of the 52 pitchers not among the 17 players filing for free agency. The only other pitcher to file was fellow veteran Bob Welch. The rest waited, including Blue Jays reliever Joe Borbon, his $18.25 million dollar contract.

The National Hockey League announced 57 players had filed for free agency. It wasn’t a surprise, after all, the players have had their work cut out for them in the last few days.

For those players who haven’t filed, there are about 25 left. The deadline for filing is Tuesday at noon EST. The players have a week to file for free agency, but the teams have a week to file for salary arbitration.

By filling for free agency, a player allows his team to negotiate with him, but at the same time his team is under no obligation to negotiate. That’s why the players have had to file for free agency.

For players who have filed for free agency, there are a few rules. The players have to file before 12:00 noon EST Tuesday. The players have to file for free agency before they can be signed by any team. The players have to file for free agency by Tuesday at noon EST. W. Soccer hopes to stay perfect outside Ivies

The Penn women's soccer team hopes to remain perfect outside of the Ancient Eight.

By Thomas Petersen

The Quakers have an opportunity to remain perfect outside of the Ancient Eight in their opening non-conference game against American tonight.

"We're excited to play them," said coach Phil Carney. "We want to see how we perform against a team that is better than us." The Retrievers have an 8-2-0 record and are ranked 18th in the country.

Carney said that the Retrievers will be a challenge for his team. "They have a lot of speed and are very technical," he said. "But we're looking forward to the challenge." The game is set for 7 p.m. at the Palestra.

The Penn field hockey team faces one of the top teams in the country tonight when it takes on Penn State at 7 p.m. at the Palestra.

"The Penn team is strong and has a lot of experience," said coach Val Cloud. "We're looking forward to the challenge." The Nittany Lions are ranked 15th in the country.

The Quakers have a 7-3 record and are looking to improve their conference record. "We need to focus on our own game and not worry about our opponents," said Cloud.

The game is set for 7 p.m. at the Palestra.

Volleyball stays close to Wildcats, but falls in three straight

Penn volleyball coach Kerry Major said she was disappointed in the loss, but was impressed with the effort.

By Kristin Talley

Penn volleyball coach Kerry Major said she was disappointed in the loss to American, but was impressed with the effort.

"We played well," said Major. "We had a good game plan and we executed it." The Quakers lost the first two sets, but came back to win the third set.

"We were able to stay close to the Wildcats," said Major. "But we didn't have enough firepower to get the win." The Quakers lost the final set, 25-20.

Major said she was impressed with the effort of her team. "They played well and gave everything they had," she said. "We just couldn't score enough points to win." The game was played at the Palestra.
