Let it snow, let it snow, please?
Daniel Barchi wants to know what happened to winter.

Steve Bank / The Daily Pennsylvaniaian

History Professor and former University President Sheldon Hackney talks with William Ferris, Hackney's successor as chairperson of the National Endowment for the Humanities, before the opening ceremony of the Penn Humanities Forum yesterday afternoon.

Event kicks off Humanities Forum

Several distinguished scholars spoke as grants were awarded for research in the humanities.

By Eric Tucker

It may not be fair to call Penn's reputation as a university for pre-profs, but the new Humanities Forum could at least gain some publicity for the liberal arts across the campus.

The presentation of six different research fellowship and eight-speaker — including University President Judith Rodin, National Endowment for the Humanities Chairperson William Perris and History Professor Sheldon Hackney, who preceded Rodin and Ferris in their respective positions — highlighted the Forum's opening ceremony yesterday. Around 300 students, faculty members and administrators attended.

The Humanities Forum is a research center for undergraduates interested in the humanities. In addition, the Forum intends to foster intellectual exchange between faculty members of different academic departments and to involve the Philadelphia community in humanities-related activities.

Operating out of Bennett Hall, the Forum presented a total of five seminars this past year, according to Ferris, who received his doctorate from Penn.

"It was the students in attendance last September and the product should be a forum that will nurture that intellectual exchange," Ferris said.

"We can narrow the gap between academic life and what we call 'real life,'" Ferris said.

One of the speakers, History Professor and former University President Sheldon Hackney talks with William Ferris, Hackney's successor as chairperson of the National Endowment for the Humanities, before the opening ceremony of the Penn Humanities Forum yesterday afternoon.

"It isn't practical in the workplace or good preparation for students."

"Such a forum would allow us to connect what we do in the humanities with other disciplines," Ferris said.

"I have no way of knowing the answer to that," he said, adding, "I think it would be foolish on my part to speculate." See HUMANITIES, page 2

More change in 3401: Gap, Foot Locker to close

Rose's Florist will also relocate as part of the Gap's expansion.

By Karlene Hanks

The Gap clothing store in the 3401 Walnut Street complex will be moving to a location several doors away from the Foot Locker store that is closing.

"I don't see how this is going to help," Ferris said.

"When I was a student I don't know if this was even an option," Ferris said.

"But the University says it is in the students' best interest," Ferris said.

"We have to have an official policy on the use of sweatshop labor standards," Ferris said.

"Penn has never taken advantage of these situations," Ferris said.

"They have factories and reservation and the community service," Ferris said.

"But in the last three years, the culture of service," Ferris said.

"The policy is moving in the right direction," Ferris said.

"Auxiliary Board members will be hearing about these situations," Ferris said.

"It is an effort to ensure that sweatshops are not used in the production of Penn apparel," Ferris said.

"But the University acknowledges that people in some places are no longer paid well enough to do their work," Ferris said.

"Penn apparel is made under harsh conditions," Ferris said.

"We should be working towards making conditions better," Ferris said.

"Just because the University has an official policy on the use of sweatshop labor standards doesn't mean that they are following it," Ferris said.

"But the University says it is in the students' best interest," Ferris said.

"We have to have an official policy on the use of sweatshop labor standards," Ferris said.

"Penn has never taken advantage of these situations," Ferris said.

"They have factories and reservation and the community service," Ferris said.

"But in the last three years, the culture of service," Ferris said.

"The policy is moving in the right direction," Ferris said.

"Auxiliary Board members will be hearing about these situations," Ferris said.

"It is an effort to ensure that sweatshops are not used in the production of Penn apparel," Ferris said.

"But the University acknowledges that people in some places are no longer paid well enough to do their work," Ferris said.

"Penn apparel is made under harsh conditions," Ferris said.

"We should be working towards making conditions better," Ferris said.

"Just because the University has an official policy on the use of sweatshop labor standards doesn't mean that they are following it," Ferris said.
GE honcho brings world business to life

By Eric Dash

Business case studies came alive on Wednesday as members of America's foremost chief executive officers, including Chief Executive Officer Jack Welch, presided over an hourlong session of "Think Like a CEO." The new program, organized by the University's Wharton School, will draw an assortment of business leaders from around the country over the next several years to draw upon their experiences and insights.

Among the 25 or so executive officers who converged on Philadelphia from their home office to meet with students were Mr. Welch, chairman of GE; Marvin S. Miller, the president of the Association for Collegiate Licensing; and Fedex chairman, Fred Smith.

Mr. Welch was one of the first to address the students. "For the last 2 to 3 years,ＣＥＯs have realized that they have to create and maintain a culture that is going to drive the organization. I've always been a fan of the theories of management," said Mr. Welch, who spoke at the University of Pennsylvania's March of Dimes Civic House, sponsored by the University's Student Union.

"We all know that the markets are going to be in a different place in 2 to 5 years. This is not a time of stasis. What we need to do is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Welch said.

The other executives also stressed the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

But the executives stressed that executives cannot do it alone. They cannot do it by themselves. They need to bring people together, and that is why they do it, they said.

Mr. Welch said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Welch said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Miller, speaking about the association's role in regulating the relationships between universities and the licensing companies, said that the one goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Miller said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Smith also emphasized the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

The other executives also stressed the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

But the executives stressed that executives cannot do it alone. They cannot do it by themselves. They need to bring people together, and that is why they do it, they said.

Mr. Welch said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Welch said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Miller, speaking about the association's role in regulating the relationships between universities and the licensing companies, said that the one goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Miller said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Smith also emphasized the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

The other executives also stressed the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

But the executives stressed that executives cannot do it alone. They cannot do it by themselves. They need to bring people together, and that is why they do it, they said.

Mr. Welch said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Welch said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Miller, speaking about the association's role in regulating the relationships between universities and the licensing companies, said that the one goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Miller said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

Mr. Smith also emphasized the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do.

He also said that the other goal of the association is to build a culture that is going to be able to adapt to change. He said that he spends a great deal of time reading and learning about management, and that he has always been a fan of the theories of management.

"I think that we all have to be able to adapt to change," Mr. Smith said. "We all have to be able to change our minds. And that's what we have to do."

The other executives also stressed the importance of change, saying that it is now essential for business leaders to anticipate the next big step and get into the right attitude of mind in order to be ready for it.
3401's Gap clothing store to triple in size

Brighten up your Day—Read the DP!

"Leadership is not learned in a textbook. It is learned in real experiences."
— Dave Checketts

MODERN SQUARE CARD (CO)

MSG head talks leadership

By Charles Simon

It's a negotiation war with some of the sports world's most influential personalities, including Wayne Grets, Patrick Ewing and Pat Riley.

But yesterday, David Checketts, chief executive officer of Madison Square Garden, heard his latest challenge as he spoke to a crowd of Wharton MBA students.

Approximately 140 students attended the speech—held in the David Bilkenskis Auditorium—which was part of the Wharton MBA Sneaker Series and sponsored by the Office of Graduate Student Affairs.

At the event, Checketts discussed the value of leadership in contributing to success in business and in life. He also shared some tips on the management of daily operations in a multi-faceted enterprise.

Checketts has overseen all operations of MSG since becoming CEO in 1994. The corporation owns the New York Knicks and the Liberty of the WNBA, the New York Rangers of the NHL, the Hartford Wolf Pack of the AHL and the New York St. John's of the NBA. In addition, he owns the MSG Home Cable and the MSG Home Network.

In addition, because MSG has control over the MSG Network and Fox Sports Television, it has the cable television rights to the games of each of the nine major New York sports teams.

3401's Gap clothing store to triple in size

In a move that will make the site of several recent events—such as the Impending Destruction of the Old Bookstore Building to make room for Quadrangle construction and the temporary closing of the Houston Hall Quads—Gap will close its current store and open a new location that will provide the store with new and improved facilities.

The newly expanded Gap—almost triple its current size—will provide the store with a larger selection of merchandise. It will also be open year-round, with the exception of the holiday season.

Gap will open a two-part expansion that will include newly acquired store spaces and its current facility. The expansion will take about 13 weeks—Gap will remain open.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.

Forbes.
Former inmates said John William King told them the numbers were being violated because it was "in the grass." Prosecutors have said King killed Bill to gain credibility for a prison gang he was organizing.

Daimler-Chrysler fined

The automaker, the product of a merger between Chrysler and Germany's Daimler-Benz AG, was ordered yesterday to pay $3.8 million in punitive damages to the plaintiffs.

GODDEN/HINOJOSA, Virginia - Civilian and military personnel began packing yesterday in Kourou, but plans to launch a weather satellite will be delayed because of a weather-related delay in the mission.

WOLFORD, N.H. - Jon Bob Smith may stand with the little guy paying $4 to see Saturday's college basketball game and $10 to see the Super Bowl, but he's also the U.S. House representative who announced yesterday that he was seeking the Republican presidential nomination.

King said one of his first priorities as president would be pushing Congress to define abortion as a moral outrage in the United States.

The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, alleges that Beyer and the city failed to properly train and supervise police officers.

Wolfgang Puck and showcases Ireland's top dishes.

The lawsuit was filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, seeking $1 million in damages from the city and its police department.

The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, seeks $1 million in damages from the city and its police department.

The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, seeks $1 million in damages from the city and its police department.

H.N. Republican announces bid for 2000 presidential election

The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, seeks $1 million in damages from the city and its police department.

Wolfgang Puck and showcases Ireland's top dishes.

The lawsuit, filed Wednesday in federal court in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, seeks $1 million in damages from the city and its police department.

Former inmates said John William King told them the numbers were being violated because it was "in the grass." Prosecutors have said King killed Bill to gain credibility for a prison gang he was organizing.

Daimler-Chrysler fined

The automaker, the product of a merger between Chrysler and Germany's Daimler-Benz AG, was ordered yesterday to pay $3.8 million in punitive damages to the plaintiffs.

GODDEN/HINOJOSA, Virginia - Civilian and military personnel began packing yesterday in Kourou, but plans to launch a weather satellite will be delayed because of a weather-related delay in the mission.
Fugitive Einhorn to be extradited to the U.S.

The Penn alumni last left the country in 1981, four years after he allegedly murdered his girlfriend.

Bordeaux, France — A French court agreed yesterday to extradite American fugitive Ira Einhorn to the U.S. to stand trial on gun smuggling charges.

Einhorn, wanted in Philadelphia for the 1987 murder of his girlfriend, was given a draft contract for the convention. But parade officials are embarrassed about that.
Penn must formulate a policy ensuring that no licensed merchandise is being produced.

Somewhere in the Dominican Republic sits a factory where textiles are made, but no one on the line knows that their work is being sold to a retailer that shears off the logos of American universities and then sells the products in their hometowns.

There is no such place.

Penn apparel is made in such a place, but there is also no way to be sure. And that is a problem.

The suggestion is not a novel one: Duke and the University of Wisconsin have recently adopted similar policies. It is high time Penn did so as well.

The suggestion is not a novel one: Duke and the University of Wisconsin have recently adopted similar policies. It is high time Penn did so as well.
Penn has a team and it's pretty good

By Alex Mackowitz

The Penn ski team doesn’t just boast the men’s and women’s national championships it won last season, but it also has the regional championships for three consecutive years. It wasn’t that hard to realize that this team hardly missed going to nationals only because of a scheduling conflict.

The team also events among its members every year. In addition to the Allegany Ski Conference, which the team members use for warm ups, the team also has its own club ski racing team, their own members, and the PVAC. It’s all along the lines of, “We have a Dan Lewis.”

The profile of the team is due to the fact that the team is able to reach very high levels of success. The team is able to do this because they are able to offer the Quakers’ al¬ tered during indoor and outdoor play. The athletes must stay consistent in all courses of the season. The athletes who are not consistent are likely to wake up one game on the Quakers in the league.

The Penn ski team doesn’t just boast the men’s and women’s national championships it won last season, but it also has the regional championships for three consecutive years. It wasn’t that hard to realize that this team hardly missed going to nationals only because of a scheduling conflict.

The team also events among its members every year. In addition to the Allegany Ski Conference, which the team members use for warm ups, the team also has its own club ski racing team, their own members, and the PVAC. It’s all along the lines of, “We have a Dan Lewis.”

The profile of the team is due to the fact that the team is able to reach very high levels of success. The team is able to do this because they are able to offer the Quakers’ al¬ tered during indoor and outdoor play. The athletes must stay consistent in all courses of the season. The athletes who are not consistent are likely to wake up one game on the Quakers in the league.

The Penn ski team doesn’t just boast the men’s and women’s national championships it won last season, but it also has the regional championships for three consecutive years. It wasn’t that hard to realize that this team hardly missed going to nationals only because of a scheduling conflict.

The team also events among its members every year. In addition to the Allegany Ski Conference, which the team members use for warm ups, the team also has its own club ski racing team, their own members, and the PVAC. It’s all along the lines of, “We have a Dan Lewis.”

The profile of the team is due to the fact that the team is able to reach very high levels of success. The team is able to do this because they are able to offer the Quakers’ al¬ tered during indoor and outdoor play. The athletes must stay consistent in all courses of the season. The athletes who are not consistent are likely to wake up one game on the Quakers in the league.

The Penn ski team doesn’t just boast the men’s and women’s national championships it won last season, but it also has the regional championships for three consecutive years. It wasn’t that hard to realize that this team hardly missed going to nationals only because of a scheduling conflict.

The team also events among its members every year. In addition to the Allegany Ski Conference, which the team members use for warm ups, the team also has its own club ski racing team, their own members, and the PVAC. It’s all along the lines of, “We have a Dan Lewis.”

The profile of the team is due to the fact that the team is able to reach very high levels of success. The team is able to do this because they are able to offer the Quakers’ al¬ tered during indoor and outdoor play. The athletes must stay consistent in all courses of the season. The athletes who are not consistent are likely to wake up one game on the Quakers in the league.

Classified Ads

Regular line classified ads are priced by the number of words.
- 1 day $4.00 per word
- 4 days $3.50 per word
- 10 days $3.25 per word
- 30 days $2.75 per word

PLUS $5.00 per day regardless of the number of words for being listed on the "CP Interactive" Web site.

OPTIONAL EXTRAS
- Large Headline: A large (16 point), bold, centered, capitalized headline: $2 per line per day. Maximum 16 characters per line.*
- Jumbo Headline: A larger (20 point) headline is available: $3 per line per day. Maximum 12 characters per line.
- Bold Face: Make individual words, or an entire ad, stand out. $1 per word per day. $5 per line.
- Separate Paragraph(s): Separate multiple items, lists, or long text into individual paragraphs with space between them for an additional $1 per paragraph per day.

Classified ads appear on the "CP Interactive" Internet Web site of http://dailyPennsylvanian.com/classified.html

CONFIDENTIAL CLASSIFIEDS
- Classifieds appear in the classified section of The Daily Pennsylvanian. Classifieds are confidential unless indicated otherwise.

---

Hamilton Court

Your Best Court
Off-Campus Housing!

- Free Fitness Center!
- Only One Block To Campus!
- Evening Doorstep!

Furnished Apts!

CALL 222-2000

---

Advertisements

Classifieds appear in the classified section of The Daily Pennsylvanian.

- Classifieds are confidential unless indicated otherwise.
Clemens stricken with cancerous tumor

ATLANTA — Andruw Jones was one of the few who started spring training with a bang yesterday — putting Roger Clemens on the disabled list with eye problems.

The free-agent Cy Young Award winner won't play until at least the second week of April, with the Atlanta Braves not wanting to lose the services of their top pitcher, at least not for now.

Jones, a star for the Braves, has been a key player for Atlanta's World Series teams in recent years.

In other baseball news,左边

NBA Scores

POISON 99, 70 95
INDIANAPOLIS — Antonio Davis scored 17 points as Indiana hosted Philadelphia from 90-99 last night, as the Pacers' second-string defeated the 76ers in the first of two meetings this season. The game was tightly contested in the first half, with both teams holding impressive leads.

The Pacers took a 30-point lead in the first half and held on for the victory, improving their record to 10-6 for the season. Philadelphia, on the other hand, fell to 10-9.

Shoemaker, a native of Venezuela, took the loss with just 3-5 earned runs and 12 hits in nine innings. Showalter, a veteran of 10 years in the minor leagues, has a 3-5 record this season.

Game Recap

The Pacers' victory over the 76ers was their second in a row, having also defeated the team in the first meeting of the season.

In other NBA games, the Knicks defeated the 76ers 98-74 last night, while the 76ers themselves lost to the Pistons 83-72. The Chicago Bulls defeated the Indiana Pacers 99-95, with the Pistons scoring 13-6 in the final period.

Banks, a first baseman in the lower back and will miss the entire sea- son, will not require surgery. He will be released within a day of surgery, Galarraga, a native of Venezuela, snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 59-51 victory over crosstown rivals, GM.

The Pirates snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 59-51 victory over crosstown rivals, GM.

The Pirates snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 59-51 victory over crosstown rivals, GM.

The Pirates snapped a nine-game losing streak with a 59-51 victory over crosstown rivals, GM.
M. Track hopes to win Heps

The Penn men's track team is determined to beat archrival Princeton and Winthrop.

M. Track

The Penn men's track team is competing for the Ivy League championship in Cornell this weekend. One former Assistant coach would try to throw the long jump out of the scheduled Ivy League meet against Princeton this weekend, but that isn't because Ilavina is a six-four drive and an even further walk. Fortunately, Penn does have other ways to add to its victory. "We get out on the track and try to push the tempo," says senior tri-captain John Carbonson. But that is only if the Quakers win. The team's main machine is senior tri-captain Shana McDonald-Black's run. The team's uphill climb begins tonight at the Palestra. "We've got to get the first game and get confidence," says senior tri-captain Mark Piotrowsky (141 lbs.) said "It's just strange how your time here just sneaks up on you and ends." With No. 15 Cornell's recent 27-10 victory over Brown, the No. 14 Quakers need to beat Princeton to advance to the NCAA tournament next weekend. From now on, there's no time for sentimentality. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim edge. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim NCAA hopes will be gone. The team's uphill climb begins tonight at the Palestra. "We're definitely coming together as a team," sophomore Diana Caranottas said. "I think this group has contributed greatly to our success and we are once again poised for victory." This year's senior class has ample reason for celebration. With their impressive win over Princeton this weekend, the Quakers hope center Geoff Owens can turn in two games this weekend like he had the last time Penn met Harvard and Dartmouth, in a pair of wins over Princeton, Owens totaled 28 points and 13 rebounds.

The Quakers hope center Geoff Owens can turn in two games this weekend like he had the last time Penn met Harvard and Dartmouth. In a pair of wins over Princeton, Owens totaled 28 points and 13 rebounds.

The Penn men's track team is single-digit. In Sunday. Unlike the men's basketball team, which crumbled after building a 10-1 lead against Princeton this weekend, the track team has much to lose. Said assistant coach Rich Carlson, "I don't think we've ever been in this situation before." Senior tri-captain Mark Piotrowsky (141 lbs.) said "It's just strange how your time here just sneaks up on you and ends." With No. 15 Cornell's recent 27-10 victory over Brown, the No. 14 Quakers need to beat Princeton to advance to the NCAA tournament next weekend. From now on, there's no time for sentimentality. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim edge. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim NCAA hopes will be gone. The team's uphill climb begins tonight at the Palestra. "We're definitely coming together as a team," sophomore Diana Cara- nottas said. "I think this group has contributed greatly to our success and we are once again poised for victory." This year's senior class has ample reason for celebration.

The Quakers hope center Geoff Owens can turn in two games this weekend like he had the last time Penn met Harvard and Dartmouth, in a pair of wins over Princeton, Owens totaled 28 points and 13 rebounds.

Quakers hope to pin Tigers, Ivy title

Wrestling has a chance to finish undefeated in dual meets for the first time since WWII.

W. Squash can play, and how

The No. 3 Penn women's squash team will compete for the national championship in the Howe Cup this weekend at Harvard.

W. Squash

In a season marred in disappointments and missed opportunities, one final chance for redemption remains. With the Howe Cup mere weeks away, the team has been chasing that elusive national title all season long, they have put everything on the line today at the Palestra. The Quakers come in Sunday through Tuesday at Harvard's Mary Center. Beginning this weekend, the Howe Cup season results, the team that wins the Howe Cup, becomes the national champions. Penn (7-0, 3-1 Ivy League) enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed, followed by Princeton (7-1, 3-0 Ivy League) and Dartmouth (6-1, 2-0 Ivy League) respectively. But the Quakers have lost to both of Penn (7-0, 3-0 Ivy League) enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed, followed by Princeton (7-1, 3-0 Ivy League) and Dartmouth (6-1, 2-0 Ivy League) respectively. But the Quakers have lost to both of the Howe Cup, which symbolizes the role of spoiler. "We're going to have an intrasquad meet on Sunday and the next day we have to decide who's going to go," sophomore John Carbonson said. "It's a very big deal — especially for our senior and Ivy upstart Dartmouth in their drive to the NCAs.

The Howe Cup is in play for the first time since before WWII. With their impressive win over Princeton this weekend, the Quakers hope center Geoff Owens can turn in two games this weekend like he had the last time Penn met Harvard and Dartmouth, in a pair of wins over Princeton, Owens totaled 28 points and 13 rebounds.

M. Hoops heads to New England in search of title

The Quakers visit Harvard and Ivy upstart Dartmouth in their drive to the NCAs.

By Marc Chodock

After spending the past week reflecting on the season's ups and downs, the Penn men's basketball team continues its road to the NCAA tournament next weekend with a step in New England. The Quakers' road will see them against Brown and Yale after a disappointing weekend against Princeton this past week, the Quakers find themselves in the thick of the Ivy League championship race.

The Penn men's basketball team is competing for the Ivy League championship in Cornell this weekend. One former Assistant coach would try to throw the long jump out of the scheduled Ivy League meet against Princeton this weekend, but that isn't because Ilavina is a six-four drive and an even further walk. Fortunately, Penn does have other ways to add to its victory. "We get out on the track and try to push the tempo," says senior tri-captain John Carbonson. But that is only if the Quakers win. The team's main machine is senior tri-captain Shana McDonald-Black's run. The team's uphill climb begins tonight at the Palestra. "We've got to get the first game and get confidence," says senior tri-captain Mark Piotrowsky (141 lbs.) said "It's just strange how your time here just sneak up on you and ends." With No. 15 Cornell's recent 27-10 victory over Brown, the No. 14 Quakers need to beat Princeton to advance to the NCAA tournament next weekend. From now on, there's no time for sentimentality. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim edge. Another loss and the Quakers' already slim NCAA hopes will be gone. The team's uphill climb begins tonight at the Palestra. "We're definitely coming together as a team," sophomore Diana Cara-nottas said. "I think this group has contributed greatly to our success and we are once again poised for victory." This year's senior class has ample reason for celebration.

The Quakers hope center Geoff Owens can turn in two games this weekend like he had the last time Penn met Harvard and Dartmouth, in a pair of wins over Princeton, Owens totaled 28 points and 13 rebounds.

Quakers hope to pin Tigers, Ivy title

Wrestling has a chance to finish undefeated in dual meets for the first time since WWII.

W. Squash can play, and how

The No. 3 Penn women's squash team will compete for the national championship in the Howe Cup this weekend at Harvard.