The Interfraternity Council's Executive Board meets last night with fraternity presidents at the Sigma Nu fraternity house to discuss Penn's new alcohol management policies.

The Consultation Process
Propovvists task force

By Rod Barts

Propovvists Bartich will begin meeting with a "working group" of both student and faculty leaders tomorrow to discuss the future of the University's alcohol policies.

Bartich invited "as broad a cross-section of student life as possible" to participate in the new alcohol management policies and Penn has decided upon.

"This is far beyond our expectations," College senior Scott Melker said of the new policies. "This could have happened to you or me, to anyone who was partying last night."

But Barchi, who said last night that he was not familiar with that specific incident, maintained that students would never get to "be a bystander to a tragedy."

"It absolutely remains in our policy that the action is not on the alcohol, it's on the alcohol-related first, period," he said.

The Interfraternity Council's Executive Vice President An-dra Rossow, a College junior and Chi Omega sister, said University officials are trying for the University to make the final call on whether or not alcohol will be permitted at Penn's annual downtown costume party — if it can still throw its annual downtown costume party — including on- and off-campus parties, fraternity chapters downtown, sorority chapters and any other registered function held at bars or restaurants that serve alcohol — from doing so.

The Friars Club, a senior honors society comprised of students of legal drinking age, can no longer hold regular social events or distribute alcohol to all undergraduate students at its parties — including off- and on-campus parties, fraternity chapters downtown, sorority chapters and any other registered function held at bars or restaurants that serve alcohol — from doing so.

Special Egg Dowor – Not Needed! Living, vibrant, colorful eggs are symbolizing an occasion of joy. The only sad thing is that they are often beautiful when they are in their shells. For this is the reality of life. We are all unique, and our lives are just as beautiful. However, we must remember that eggs are not meant to last forever. Similarly, our lives are not meant to last forever. They are meant to be enjoyed and cherished. In this spirit, please enjoy the eggs that are available in our campus stores. They are a reminder of the beauty of life and the joy that we can share with others.

The Task Force

Penn drinks project is a student initiative that seeks to create a campus-wide culture of responsible alcohol consumption. The project is led by the DART-sponsored "Penn Drinking Project" and is supported by students, faculty, and staff. The project aims to promote responsible alcohol consumption and to reduce the negative impact of alcohol on students and the community. For more information, please visit www.penndrinkingproject.com.

A University of Pennsylvania student was taken to the hospital in an ambulance last night after suffering a blood loss of more than a liter during a hazing incident at a fraternity party. The incident occurred at about 11:30 pm at the Beta Theta Pi fraternity house at 3539 Locust Walk. The student, a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, was taken to the hospital by paramedics who arrived on the scene within minutes of the incident.

The incident was one of several that occurred on campus last night. At least two other incidents involving alcohol were reported at different locations on campus. One incident occurred at the Penn Fraternity and Sorority Center, where a group of students were reportedly engaged in a series of drinking games. The other incident occurred at the Penn Student Union, where a group of students were reportedly consuming alcohol in violation of university policy.

The Campus Police Department is investigating all of the incidents. The university has a zero tolerance policy on alcohol consumption on campus, and students who violate this policy can face severe consequences, including suspension or expulsion. The university also encourages students to report any incidents involving alcohol to the Campus Police Department.

The university has a comprehensive alcohol policy that includes provisions for the responsible consumption of alcohol. The policy is designed to promote a safe and healthy campus environment and to prevent alcohol-related incidents from occurring. The policy includes provisions for the prevention of alcohol misuse, the responsible consumption of alcohol, and the responsible use of public transportation.

The university encourages students to participate in alcohol-free events and activities and to make informed decisions about alcohol consumption. The university also provides resources and support to students who are struggling with alcohol addiction.

The university is committed to creating a safe and healthy campus environment for all students and employees. The university takes alcohol misuse very seriously and will continue to take all necessary steps to prevent alcohol-related incidents from occurring on campus.

New collection caters to Asian-American Studies

At a celebration in Williams Hall Thursday, the Asian-American Studies Undergraduate Advisory Board presented the grand opening of the ASAM Resource Collection.

The collection — housed on the eighth floor of Williams Hall — is a compilation of Asian-American books, magazines and other "first-hand materials for students in their courses," according to published librarian Barbara Reicher, a member of South American Regional Board.

The initiative for the resource center was undertaken last fall by Warton sophomore Stephanie Hwang, a member of the club.

Hwang said the "goal of the coltection" is to build awareness of Asian-American issues and give students an alternative for Asian American studies.

Currently, Asian-American Studi is only offered as a minor to the College of Arts and Sciences with two professors in the department. For next year, however, the department has been authorized by the faculty to be a major, a professor, Reicher said.

"With these three professors in place, we hope to move to a major as soon as possible," Reicher said.

as those as part of the Celebration on Culture event held Friday after-on on College Green. The event — annually by the United Mente-ties Council — was jointly sponsored by the UMC and the Junior Class Board.

Celebration of Culture is meant to draw students together to "celebrate the rich cultural heritages" of each group on campus, according to UMC Programming Chairperson Anees Ghalia, a College junior.

The event's organizers estimated the audience was between 500 and 1,000 people who attended the Friday's event, in which over 15 groups participated by selling food and distributing information.

Four performance groups — including the
The Kwe Do Club — also participared.

"When students see the UMC (as sponsoring an event), they think it's just for minorities, but we're for everyone," Talata said. "I think that Black Board attracted a different because other students who did it was not a majority event.

Junior Class President Lisa Marshall said, "I think people really enjoyed the event and it helped bring a little culture to Penn."

But Talata admitted that many groups which had not previously participated in the Celebration of Culture — the UMC and the Student.American Studies — were involved in the event this year.

Student groups seemed pleased with the event and many said they would participate again next year.

"It's an opportunity to share our cultural wealth with students," said Penn Taiwanese Society President Jenny Jau. a College and Wharton senior.

Have a number of concerns in the wake of Penn's first weekend under the new alcohol policy.

This past weekend saw unprecedented numbers of students engaged in alcohol-related events, with a prolonged ban on alcohol at registered undergraduate parties, rather than sitting in solitude, found other venues in which to Police officers would do their best to avoid getting into fights.

If truly interested in the health and safety of its students, the University would do well to remember that they feel comfortable taking their friends to the hospital, without fear of citation or repercussion. But the police enforcement came in the largest context of the ban on alcohol at undergraduate parties. It was a ban that raises increasingly troubling issues. While we initially believed that these bans were positive and reflecting period, our expectations were not born out by the weekend's events, and we can only expect the problems to grow with time. Certainly, regulations have an important role to play in shaping the drinking environment, and should be occasional-ly reviewed. However, we feel that the demand to suspend the current existence during this evaluation period is inappropriate.

By doing so, administrators are either afraid of the power of regulation or placing greater value on the health and safety of students.

Reflecting on Penn's decision to emphasize the value of rules at the expense of responsibility, the responsibility of individual students for their own health and the health of their friends ought to be the defining value in this discussion, not the administration's parochial dic- tates.

Penn can best serve its student body by being flexible to a system which facilitates, rather than impedes, the responsible drinking of alcohol as soon as possible.

Andrew Gold

Michael's death is an enormous expression of the powerlessness that is alcohol. Why? Because for four years at Penn, my friend came home drunk — and for three of those years I did this with Mike. We'd be walking around the campus, playing the game of meander and the field as young guys having fun. And yet, we sometimes want to point fingers at alcohol in itself. From what I can gather, both of them were partying, and neither of them was driving. I freely admit that I drank — a lot. That was a silly reason to die, and it was the only time I drank. And yet, there is no way in the world we can put this on anything but the police force.

The alcohol-related deaths of two close friends are a reality that the University and its administrators have to deal with. When my good friend, 1994 Penn graduate Mary Bantu, was killed by a drunk driver in San Antoni-o, one of my first thoughts was my friend's memory.

What if Michael had not been drinking. Would we feel differently? Would we feel bad that he killed himself? I'm not sure. If you put him together with his friends, the people he loved, the people he cared about, you can still have a balanced perspective on the tragic event.

WASHINGTON — The American pilot who bailed out from a damaged jet yesterday said he was raising the risk to NATO planes but also holding the pilots of the 10-warplane formation under fire by Saddam Hussein's regime. The incident is the third this month involving the U.S. and British forces.

The American pilot, who bailed out from a damaged F-117A stealth fighter, was rescued hours after his plane went down in Yugoslavia on Saturday, the Pentagon said. The downing and dramatic rescue were the most harrowing moment so far in the four-day military action against Serb forces.

The pilot and the combat res- cue team that picked him up are said to have been briefing Kenneth Bacon at a hastily called news conference.

Paraguay's president resigns amidst impeachment controversy

ARANDUIN, Paraguay - President Carlos Cubas resigned yesterday evening nearly a week of political turmoil that left the Socialist nation's 10-year-old democracy in tatters. Cubas said he resigned the fateful in the streets that led to the start of his impeachment trial last week on charges of abuse of power. He also asked for the forgiveness of all Paraguayans who voted for him.

Later, before a packed chamber of legislators at the congressional building, Senate leader Luis Gonzalez Marchi was sworn in as Paraguay's new president.

Cubas said he resigned the fateful in the streets that led to the start of his impeachment trial last week on charges of abuse of power. He also asked for the forgiveness of all Paraguayans who voted for him.

After a straightforward interview, he was asked if he had any last words to say. "I have just finished signing my resignation," he said, finished his last words and with a dozen signs standing behind him.

Cubas also called on the governing Colorado Party to maintain unity and said he regretted "unbowed attack against me and my family." Cubas, who took office in August, was rescued from the U.S. pilots who bailed out from a damaged F-117A stealth fighter, was rescued hours after his plane went down in Yugoslavia on Saturday, the Pentagon said. The downing and dramatic rescue were the most harrowing moment so far in the four-day military action against Serb forces.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — For three-time defending champion Purdue, it was a good day.

After starting the season by losing to Kentucky and then falling short of its fourth straight trip to the NCAAWomen's Basketball Tournament in 1999, Purdue ended its run of mediocrity on the national stage.

The Boilermakers (34-1), who finished four games back of Tennessee in the regular season, outscored that rival 49-32 in Monday's national semifinal.

Purdue finished the season with a 15-4 margin in its first NCAA championship game and an overall record of 34-4. The Boilermakers will play Duke in the title game on Monday, March 29, 1999.

But for those who look at the numbers, it was a sour taste for White-McCarty and Figueras. Purdue started the season with 18 to earn the award as the outstanding player in the Final Four.

After the 6'6" VanGorp sank a free throw and the Boilermakers had an extra shot, Katie Douglas scored on a drive to tie it. The Boilermakers then went up 32-30 on another free throw by Dougl

The championship was all the sweeter for White-McCarty and Figueras because of what had already occurred early in their careers. They played in four coaches in first three seasons at Purdue and saw four team members run away.

After the 6'5" VanGorp sank a free throw and the Boilermakers had an extra shot, Katie Douglas scored on a drive to tie it. The Boilermakers then went up 32-30 on another free throw by Douglas.

Purdue led 22-17 after a first half and had a 14-0 lead in the final 10 minutes, extending its record to 10 straight wins in the NCAA tournament.

Gymnastics impressive on floor at ECACs

With just one tick left on the clock in the 14-11 contest, Red and Blue fielded a balanced attack...
Lakers beat Knicks

INGLEWOOD, Calif.—At times, you could almost believe that Shaquille O'Neal was playing for the Los Angeles Lakers instead of the Knicks. But with a 104-87 victory over New York last night, O'Neal, the 7-foot-1 center, scored 21 points with 11 rebounds in a game of five starters out for the Knicks (16-14) suffered their fifth straight loss for the Lakers (20-11), while losing ways.

Shaquille O'Neal had 21 points and 11 rebounds as Los Angeles improved to 10-2 since Feb. 1.

Chicago Bulls chairman Jerry Reinsdorf said he will buy the Chicago Bulls when major league teams last played in baseball players in the world. Michael Jordan as an executive.

Three weeks removed from his spring training in Arizona, Cooperstown, who is in charge of Cuba's most renowned player, singled out the most sparkling of several Cuban players who showed they could play at a major league level.

Don't expect the Cuban players to show up for the Olympics. And that was it. It was a so-so season for the Knicks.

This exhibition — agreed upon after midnight administration decided in January to ease the four-decade-old trade embargo against Cuba — will take place March 30 in Havana and April 5 in Santiago de Cuba. The game is a national pastime.

The game was marred by several physical fouls. The game was marred by several physical fouls.

The Bulls led by as many as 27 points in the first half, and the Sonics were blown out of the game. The Bulls are a plus.
Although Penn finished fourth in its title defense, Molly Sullivan was named the ECAC Gymnast of the Year.

By Tom Filat/Gibson

The Penn gymnastics team knew it would be one of the top two teams in the conference when the season began. Hopes were high that the team could pull off another impressive year and bring home a second straight Ivy League title.

However, the question of who would be the next head coach of the gymnastics team remained unresolved. The Penn coaching staff was still searching for the right successor to Head coach Anne Sage, who was let go following the 1998 season.

The team had been in limbo for 24 days now, sinceits coaching situation was unresolved. As the season drew closer, it was unclear whether the team would have a new coach in place for the upcoming season.

While the coaching situation was unresolved, the team was still striving to improve. The 1999 season was a time of transition for the gymnastics team, as it worked to adjust to new leadership and new challenges.

Gymnastics cannot repeat at ECACs

BY JESSE SPECTOR

The Daily Pennsylvanian

Penn's last ECAC title was in 1996, and the team hasn't won a national title since then. With the coaching situation still in flux, the team faced a difficult task in trying to build upon its recent success.

"Our goal is to make sure that we have a strong team for the future," said Penn athletic director John V. Engler. "We have made some progress, but we still have a long way to go."

The team was determined to prove that it was still a force to be reckoned with in the conference.

The Penn men's lacrosse team stepped onto Harvard's Oxford Field on Saturday afternoon, looking to continue its streak of dominance over the Ivy League's top teams.

The Quakers were favored to win, with their record of 13-2 heading into the game, against the Crimson, who were 8-7. The Quakers had already won six straight games, including a 15-12 win over Yale in their last meeting.

"We're looking to continue our winning streak," said head coach John W. Van Arsdale. "We've been playing well recently, and we want to keep that going into the season."

The Quakers dominated the game, with a 10-3 victory over the Crimson. They scored nine of their 10 goals in the second half, and only one in the first half. The Crimson was held without a goal for 48 minutes, 25 seconds in the second half.

"Our defense was strong today," said senior co-captain Matt Hepler. "We were able to keep the Crimson from scoring, and that allowed our offense to find its rhythm."

The Quakers now have a 14-3 record on the season, and are 3-0 in Ivy League play.

W. Lacrosse still winless after 0-2 weekend

BY JESSE SPECTOR

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Quakers dropped home and away games to George Washington and Boston College.

"We're still working on our offense," said head coach Neil Z. Levine. "We need to find a way to score more goals."

The Quakers were held to just one goal in each game, against the Colonials and the Eagles.

"Our defense was strong in both games," said senior co-captain Matt Hepler. "We held them to just one goal in each game, and we need to keep that up."

The Quakers are now 0-2 on the season, and 0-2 in Ivy League play.

Bats quiet in home losses for Softball

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Penn softball team lost two games to Delaware, 7-2 and 2-1, on Saturday.

"Our bats were silent in both games," said head coach Anne Sage. "We need to find a way to score more runs."

The Quakers were held to just two runs in each game, against the Blue Hens.

"Our defense was strong in both games," said senior co-captain Matt Hepler. "We held them to just two runs in each game, and we need to keep that up."

The Quakers are now 4-6 on the season, and 4-6 in Ivy League play.

Dear Applicant,

If you have been searching for a meaningful way to get involved at Penn, serving on one of the over thirty Undergraduate Committees is the way to do it. The time and effort you put into serving on these committees is rewarded with the meaningful results that each committee generates every year. These Undergraduate Committees bring about REAL change, and you can be a part of that change. If you have complaints, concerns, or suggestions about how this University can be improved, here is your chance to not only be heard, but be directly responsible for the improvements.

Applications will be available beginning Monday, March 29 and they are due between 10:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. in the lobby of High Rise South. Applications can be found in most residential buildings, the Office of Student Life (OSL) located in the Carriage House, and online at the Nominations Homepage: www.sas.upenn.edu/~bkr.

I encourage you to apply for these Undergraduate Committees. In addition to the many NEC committees to choose from, this year you can also apply to serve on Trustee Committees, which only take new members every other year. Please, use the information in this insert, along with the information on the web to find a committee that addresses your concerns and skills and then apply. Here is a chance to change things at Penn, for the better!

Good Luck,

Brian Rosenzweig
Vice Chairperson for Nominations
The Nominations and Elections Committee
The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania develop policies and manage the University.

Through reports prepared by the President's office and other divisions of the administration, the Trustees help to set policy and decide the course of many projects vital to the betterment of the University Community.

General Qualifications of a Trustee Liaison

Student representatives must commit extensive time and energy during the period immediately preceding the Trustee's meetings. Outside research may also be an integral part of the Liaison responsibility. Students who are appointed are expected to have a thorough knowledge of confronting and confronting the University. Any full-time undergraduate student—with the exception of seniors—may apply for any of the following Trustee Liaison Committees. Students may apply for as many as they wish but will not be selected to serve on more than one.

1. Committee on Academic Policy: Membership on this committee shall include, but not be limited to, selected trustee chairpersons of the boards of overseers and other advisory boards. Within its purview are matters of general policy relating to the faculty, including academic appointments, tenure, academic freedom, and faculty classifications. The academic planning processes and procedures of the University shall be subject to review by this committee. Similarly, organization, including the addition or deletion of degrees and the establishment of schools, shall be submitted to this committee for review. Policy guidance on the University library and guidelines for research and admissions are also the responsibility of the committee. Finally, the Committee on Academic Policy acts for the Trustees in the coordination and review of the boards of overseers and other advisory boards.

2. Committee on Budget and Finance: This committee is concerned with University finances. It reviews and approves the operating and capital budgets and budgetary procedures of the University and shall monitor budget compliance. The Trustees shall delegate to the committee the authority for approval of the disposition or acquisition of real property involving less than $1,000,000, provided such action is consistent with the University's capital budget. The committee shall be responsible for University policies and program review in matters of insurance/risk management and for review of the monetary impact of human resource policies. The liaison's role will be to examine the budget to be approved and to raise any questions that he/she feels concern the students.

3. Committee on External Affairs: This committee is concerned with the public and governmental relations of the University. Public relations includes the interpretation of the University through communications to its many constituencies, both internal and external, at local, regional, national and international levels. Government relations include relations with legislators and executive branches at the local, state and federal levels.

4. Committee on Facilities and Campus Planning: This committee considers all aspects of facilities and campus planning, including real estate development, capital projects, and maintenance of buildings and grounds. The committee specifically monitors physical planning for the campus and surrounding area, including buildings and grounds controlled, owned, or used by the University, and the acquisition or sale of real estate. All capital construction projects and the acquisition or sale of real estate will be reviewed by this committee for its recommendations prior to action by the Budget and Finance Committee.

5. Committee on Student Life: This committee is concerned with policy and planning for support services affecting both graduate and undergraduate students. Specifically, but without limitation, its area of responsibility includes on- and off-campus housing conditions, dining accommodations, fraternities and sororities, student health care, student-run campus news media, other University-sponsored or recognized extracurricular student activities, security, financial aid, career planning and placement, student/trustee and student/alumni relations, student government and student judicial and disciplinary systems.

NEC Committee Descriptions

NEC UNIVERSITY POLICY

1. Academic Planning and Budget: The purpose of this committee is to bring together academic planning and financial planning so that informed advice might be provided to the administration on both short-term and long-range resource allocation. It shall provide the administration with advice on the composition of the annual budget and on multi-year financial plans for the University; take into account, study, and report on long-range implications of current budget issues and alternatives; and provide systematic thought about the evolving educational mission and educational needs of the University, and their present and futures budgetary implications.

2. Admissions/Financial Aid: This committee considers matters of undergraduate and graduate/professional recruitment, admissions, and financial aid that concern the University as a whole. It carries out and studies on existing recruitment and admissions procedures and their relationships with existing policies on admissions and financial aid and reports to the University Council on such matters.

3. Affirmative Action: This Counsel is an advisory committee appointed by the president to review the University's affirmative action program. It recommends change, develops policy proposals, and monitors the performance and progress of programs relating to affirmative action throughout the University.

4. Open Expression: This committee is concerned with monitoring the communications processes to help prevent conflicts, recommending policies and procedures for improvement of all levels of communication, investigating alleged infringements of the right of open expression of any member of the University committee, advising administrative officers where appropriate, and participating in the evaluation and resolution of conflicts arising from incidents or disturbances on campus. Recent issues have included the noise levels of demonstrations at Trustee's meeting and the alleged threatening of a speaker with a rally.

5. Pluralism: This committee advises the University Council on ways to develop and maintain a supportive atmosphere on campus for the inclusion of appreciation of pluralism among all members of the University community. It also addresses specific diversity issues that arise on campus.

NEC STUDENT AFFAIRS

6. Alcohol and Other Drug Task Force: This task force advises senior administrators on alcohol issues pertaining to policies, education, and services. The committee is currently divided into five subcommittees: Policy and Education, Treatment and Recovery, Teleconference, Data Collection, and Social Planning.

7. Career Planning and Placement Center: The purpose of this committee is to present and address ideas and complaints from the student body concerning the center's effectiveness and responsiveness to student needs. It attempts to troubleshoot any specific problems involving CS, which may arise. This committee prefers students who have had experience with CS.

8. Fraternity/Sorority Advisory Board: This committee advises the Director of Student Life with regard to policies toward fraternities and sororities. It advises on issues pertaining to the Greek system such as pledge practices, chapter recognition, and disciplinary procedures, and it reviews charges levied against the organizations. Only students who are not nor have ever been in a fraternity or sorority here or at any other university are eligible. Applicants for this committee may not be, nor ever have been a member of a fraternity or sorority here or at any other university.

9. Recreation and Intercollegiate Athletics: This committee advises and makes policy recommendations on recreation and intramural and intercollegiate athletics and their integration with the educational program of the University, including the planning and provision of adequate facilities for various sports, and recreational activities.

10. Student Affairs: This committee has cognizance of the conditions and rules of undergraduate and graduate student life on campus. The committee gathers and analyzes information concerning student life and student affairs and makes recommendations to the University Council. This committee also reports information and recommendations concerning student life and student affairs to the Vice Provost for University Life and other appropriate administrative offices. In addition, this committee also monitors the performance of all student services and recommends ways in which services to students may be improved.
NEC Academic

11. Research: This committee is concerned with the research activity of the University. It has the responsibility of being aware of all matters of policy relating to research and general environment for research at the University including the assignment of research funds distributed by the University. It advises the administration on those proposals for sponsored research referred to it because of potential conflict with University Policy.

12. SAS Curriculum: This committee reviews all proposals for new courses, majors, and undergraduate programs, and recommends to the faculty the approval or rejection of each proposal. The curriculum committee is divided equally among the three divisions of the school of Arts and Sciences. Only students in the College may apply.

13. SAS General Requirement: This committee examines the General Requirement for the School of Arts and Sciences. Responsibilities include reviewing and recommending policy for the General Requirement and acting on recommendations from departments of courses to be listed in the various sectors. Only students in the College may apply.

14. SAS Undergraduate Education: This committee advises the Dean on all matters broadly affecting the undergraduate educational mission of the School of Arts and Sciences, including educational policies, proposed new organizational units, and reviewing of the advising system. Only students in the College may apply.

NEC Communities

15. Communications: This committee is concerned with monitoring the internal communications and public relations activities of the University in its various formats which include electronics, audio, video, and print. It monitors the operations of the News and Public Affairs, the Publications Office, and communications with alumni. The committee also serves to interpret the University to its many constituencies. Recent issues have included Quad mail and electronic mail.

16. Community Relations: The Committee advises the University Council on the relationship of the University to the surrounding community. It helps make policy with respect to the community. It works with the Office of Community Relations to assure that the University develops and maintains a constructive relationship with the community.

17. International Programs: This committee reviews and monitors issues related to the international programs and other international activities of the University. The committee advises and makes policy recommendations in such areas as service for international students and scholars, foreign fellowships and studies abroad, and cooperative undertakings with foreign universities.

18. WXPN Policy: The Policy Board recommends program policy and standards and advises the station manager on implementation policies. It has the responsibility to advise the Vice Provost for University Life on current fiscal affairs, the selection and evaluation of the station manager, and long-range fiscal and administrative planning. Additionally it has the responsibility to consult with various constituencies including faculty, students, support staff, alumni, members of the listening community, and public broadcasting professionals.

NEC Facilities

19. Art Collection Advisory: This committee works with the art collection on campus. Its main purpose is to review and discuss any and all suggestions pertaining to the art collection which consists of objects from over 140 buildings throughout campus.

20. Bookstore: This committee considers the purposes of the University Bookstore and advises the University Council and the Director of the University Bookstore on policy, development, and operations.

21. Facilities: This committee advises, review, and helps make recommendations on issues involving the planning and operations by the University of its Physical Plant, other university holdings, and all services associated with it, including transportation and parking.

22. Library: This committee advises the Director of Libraries on the policies, development, and operation of the University libraries. Recent concerns have regarded the impact of new budgets on library facilities, the declining national status of the library, obtaining specialized periodicals, and security.
23. Safety and Security: This committee advises the President, the Director of Public Safety, and the administrators or directors of specific buildings, offices, or projects on all matters concerning safety and security in the conduct of their operations. Its principle responsibility is to consider and assess means to improve safety and security on campus.

24. Wharton Computing and Technology: This committee acts as an advisory body to Wharton’s two computing areas, Academic Technology Services and Information Technology Services. The committee guides overall Wharton School policy on the use of computers in research, teaching, and administrative applications. Applicants must be in the Wharton School and have successfully completed OPIM 101.

25. Honorary Degrees: This committee solicits nominations from faculty, staff members, and students for honorary degrees to be awarded by the University at Commencement and at special convocations and submits a slate of nominees for action by the trustees. In the past, student representatives on this committee have helped select such notable recipients as Hillary Rodham Clinton. Hence, being a member of this committee offers prestige and the possibility to assist in the presentation of the Honorary Degree to the recipient. This committee may also make recommendations to the president regarding Commencement speakers and the conduct of special convocations. If you are interested in working on your Commencement, this committee gives you a great opportunity to do so. Only JUNIORS may apply for this committee.

26. Lindback Awards: This committee solicits nominations from the University community for candidates for the Lindback and Provost Awards for distinguished teaching. Every year these awards are presented to faculty members who enhance Penn students’ education through their charismatic and creative teaching methods. The committee reviews the candidates and submits recommendations to the Provost for final consideration. If you are concerned about not allowing excellent teaching to go unnoticed, apply for this committee.

27. SAS Ira Abrams: The Ira Abrams Award for Distinguished Teaching is presented annually to a faculty member in the School of Arts and Sciences to celebrate his/her contribution to teaching. In general

28. Student Awards: This committee selects the recipients of most of the awards presented on Ivy Day. The awards are primarily presented to seniors, although there are some underclassmen awards. Examples of awards given are the Fienstone Award, which is given to a sophomore, junior, or senior who has shown constructive social and educational change, and the Wiess Memorial Award which is given to a senior with outstanding academic and extracurricular records. Only freshmen and sophomore students may apply for this committee.
