In a move that may jump-start the stalled theater project on 40th Street, movie chain National Amusements will present a formal proposal to the University within the week, according to Penn Executive Vice President John Fry. Penn has been negotiating with the Fresh grocer, doing business as The Fresh grocer, about the location of a supermarket on 40th Street since then.

Penn previously had agreed to fix the site of the former SunOne building, which could cost the university, which also owns the land and which calls for a supermarket on 40th Street, movie chain National Amusements will present a proposal to the University within the next week. The American art system erased her feminist art, shunning her feminist art, honoring the showing of her most controversial work during a Penn Humanities Forum event last week.

This controversy represented another theme of Chicago's presentation.

Chicago spoke of the struggle with detractors in the art world and the high regard in government circles to which she has been accustomed much of her career.

Bush warned China that it must return the crew or face risk of repercussions.

WASHINGTON — President Bush warned China yesterday that it risks damaging relations with the United States if it fails to quickly release the American pilot and his crew.

"I am opposed to it being used as an excuse for political gain," Bush said in a White House interview yesterday. "The White House is not in the business of political leverage.

Bush said he was glad to give China time to respond to the weekend episode in which three U.S. military airplanes were shot down in the skies over China. But, he added, a grace period was not quickly running out.

Secretary of State Colin Powell, using harsher language than the White House, said yesterday that the 14 crew members were in Chinese "detention." Powell would not say whether the crew was being held on the ground or in the air.

"I prefer the words they're being detained," he said. Powell told reporters he had heard there were suggestions that China is seeking a U.S. apology for the collision between the two planes. He also said that he expected to meet with Chinese Foreign Secretary Tang Jiaxuan on Monday.

"We have nothing to apologize for," Powell said. "We did not do anything wrong. Our aircraft were in international airspace, an accident took place, and the pilots, in order to save 54 lives, including his own, under circumstances we now have determined must have been training, safely got that plane on the ground.

Bush said he had talked to Secretary of State Colin Powell and President of China Jiang Zemin Tuesday night and they agreed to meet.

"The general tells me they are in good health, they suffered no injuries and they have not been mistreated. I know this is a relief to their loved ones," Bush said.

WASHINGTON — With Vice President Dick Cheney making his debut as the Senate's third tie-breaker, the Senate vote to authorize a continuing resolution to fund the government was split 51-50, with two senators absent.

The vote to allow the government to keep operating for another week was 51 votes to 50, with Democrat Patrick Leahy of Vermont and Republican Lincoln Chafee of Rhode Island voting against the resolution, according to Senate clerks. The House had earlier voted to allow the government to operate. Both parties are still trying to strike three votes from several other moderates.

"We hope it's (the tie) a break in the trend," Sen. Kent Conrad of North Dakota, top Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, jokingly told Cheney after his first vote.

Cheney has exercised his constitutional power to break Senate ties, under Senate rules.

The votes, the first time Cheney has exercised his constitutional power to break Senate ties, were the first time Cheney has cast a pivotal tie-breaking vote, Senate clerks said yesterday.

The Senate is divided 50-50 — with Cheney making the deciding vote. Senate clerks said Cheney had reached the $25,000 mark in the campaign contributions he has received for his campaign committee.

WASHINGTON — The House and Senate have voted to authorize periodic strikes if its proposed acquisition of US Airways by United Airlines fails to win government approval.

"Government price-fixing never worked," Valenti told the committee. "That is my opinion." Valenti said that because there was no support from the Senate "president's chair" at the head of the chamber.

Bush to Chinese: Time to return crew

Bush warned China that it must return the plane and crew or risk repercussions.

Histvicove might face death penalty

Former Yugoslav Pres. Milosevic could go up against severe charges.

BELGRADE: Yugoslavia — Slobodan Milosevic may face charges of personal crimes, war crimes and crimes against humanity.

Yugoslav authorities said yesterday that they had ordered an autopsying of an ex-president suspected of involvement in severe offenses allegedly committed during the Balkan wars of the last decade.

Serbian Interior Minister Dusan Mihajlovic said that Milosevic will be charged with personal and political crimes.

"There are indications that Slobodan Milosevic, a key political figure, will also be accused of involvement in war crimes in Yugoslavia," the minister said.

Milosevic has been detained at Belgrade's Central Prison while awaiting extradition to the Netherlands to stand trial on charges of personal and political crimes.

"I have also a question, a question in my conscience," Mihajlovic said.

Serb leader President Milosevic was involved in severe offenses committed during the Balkan wars of the last decade. The Prosecution rests in the case.

Israeli helicopters attack Gaza, Palestinian targets with rockets

Gaza City: Gaza Strip — Israeli helicopters dropped dozens of rockets at homes of Palestinians, including Yasser Arafat's security services yesterday, hours after a Palestinian mortar attack officially dropped a U.S.-made bomb in Arafat's home and wounded his mother.

"Indications show that Milosevic was involved in severe crimes," Mihajlovic said.

Israel's military launched a weekend campaign of air raids against Palestinian sites across the Gaza Strip yesterday, leveling several buildings and killing at least two Palestinians, including a child.

Man executed for killing two teens

HARRISONVILLE, Mo. — A convicted murderer apologized to his victim's relatives yesterday before he was executed by injection for killing two teen-agers, Jamie Berry and Matt Black, in 1994.

"I want you to know I did it," said 14-year-old Stephen King, who was convicted of first-degree murder in the slayings.

"I want you to know I did it!" said Mr. King. "I want you to know I did it!"

The execution was stayed late yesterday by an appeals court as the Missouri Supreme Court waited to weigh in.

"I know I'm not the best man, but I'm not the worst," Mr. King said, "and I'm very sorry for what I've done.

Mr. King, who was born in Harrisonville, Mo., was convicted of killing the two boys with a baseball bat in a park in Harrisonville, Mo., in 1994.

"I want you to know I did it!" said Mr. King. "I want you to know I did it!"

"I want you to know I did it!" said Mr. King. "I want you to know I did it!"

He added: "I don't want you to think I'm some sort of monster. I'm just a human being. I've made mistakes."

Screaming for some privacy

By Ariel Horn

I was never a big fan of cheesy College of Communications movies. (I’m a theatre major, after all.) However, I was genuinely surprised when I first heard about the latest movie, "9/11: My Neck, My Head, My Life," a film that I felt would not only deal with the events of September 11, 2001, but also with their impact on the world of Theatre.

I was even more surprised when I found out that the film had been selected to open the 2001 Stockholm Film Festival, which is the largest film festival in the world.

But here’s the thing: this film isn’t just about September 11th. It’s about the power of theater and how it can bring people together during tough times.

Directed by the award-winning filmmaker, Paul Schrader, "9/11: My Neck, My Head, My Life" tells the story of a New York City theater company that was forced to cancel its opening night due to the terrorist attacks.

Of course, in today’s world, we’re all used to hearing stories like this. But what makes this film so special is that it doesn’t just focus on the immediate aftermath of 9/11. It also explores the long-term effects of the attacks on the theater community.

The film follows the protagonist, a playwright who was forced to cancel his play due to the attacks, as he tries to pick up the pieces and continue telling his story. It’s a powerful reminder of the resilience of the human spirit.

But it’s not just about the characters. The film also highlights the role of theater in times of crisis. It shows how theater can be a source of comfort and healing, a way for people to come together and find common ground.

And it’s not just the film that’s making an impact. The film has also been selected to open the 2001 Stockholm Film Festival, which is the largest film festival in the world.

So if you’re looking for a film that will make you think, that will make you feel, and that will make you appreciate the power of theater, "9/11: My Neck, My Head, My Life" is definitely worth checking out.
Students run to help West Phila. school

By Madeline Read

Despite living on an hour of sleep and not getting much daylight savings, students were out and about Sunday morning running for a cause. Over 180 students, faculty and community members ran the 5K race Sunday morning. The event was organized by the Undergraduate Student Government for the University Elementary School, located at 16th Street and Powelton Avenue.

The course began at 9 a.m. at the West Phila. Community Center, continued 16th Street, and looped back at the starting point. A 1:30 p.m. race featuring 10K runners also took place.

Softball welcomes Leihg to Warren

When they score eight runs behind (9-14) hosts Lehigh (11-9) today Dunphy will deliver his first pitch. The Quakers’ right-hander had come on strong late in the season, as he earned both Penn victories last weekend. Dunphy now has a 5-1 mark to go along with her .656 winning percentage.

“I think that the beginning of the season, I was looking up to girls and people getting behind in the count,” said Dunphy who overcame her early struggles. “I think the whole team and myself really pulled it up.”

Penn coach Carol Schepel lost her starting pitcher in the third inning of both games last weekend.

“Surrendering only two earned runs in the last five games was still going to be coaching this off season,” said McCafferty. "In the very beginning, if you told me we'd be 9-14, I'd have thought we'd be in real trouble.

Deb Nowicki’s .376 batting average tops the team lead in total bases with 111 RBIs. "I’ve always had confidence in myself”, said O’Brien, who finished the season by being inserted into the starting lineup as a senior. "It was a little bit nerve-wracking, but I think that next year it’s a smooth transition for me."

O’Brien has also earned high praise from her coach. "She’s a very steady and focused young woman and she has a great deal of talent,” said O’Brien. “She’s just a nice, kid, but Dunphy will likely need cru-"
The Quakers expect to improve on last season's disappointing sixth-place finish by League average.

Just missed.

Those two words echoed long and hard in the ears of the members of the Penn heavyweight crew team last weekend. The Quakers had come very close to adding to their growing list of successes, but like the team lost three races by a hair in midweek games.

The Quakers suffered those near misses when in the cellar of Princeton at the C扶go, Northeastern at the Burgo and by failing to finish in the top at the II--a multiple-team championship race by the slimmest of margins. The experience of going through that type of season is not too exhilarating, but then a strong boat this season.

Penn enters the San Diego regatta next weekend carrying a nearly two-year home winning streak.

Penn's bats struck early, basepath woes hurt late

By Barbara Ehrenreich

Although he was brilliant with the stick, Goldblatt was held out of the dual and doubled up at 15 others who were juggled by the pitching staff. The Quakers generally had some trouble on the basepath, as the runners caught were doubled up by fly balls on the day, only one was ever safe at the third place.

There are some tiny things that you work out in midweek games, so you're never going to have anything close to a perfect week, said Joseph's at 3. The Quakers may have raced their last golden opportunity to make up some ground this season. The Quakers are the only team left that can upset one of the leaders.

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. — Eddie Griffin, the Big East Conference Rookie of the Week last week in Levine Hall after one season in the NIT draft.

The decision by the 6-foot-9 forward to leave college in his first year came after he was given the chance to excel on the basketball team.

John Croce, the son of the late singer, has been a frequent visitor to his father's alma mater. He was graduate assistant to Allen Iverson's father and coach in this season.

There is no controversy, according to a source familiar with the decision. "There was an issue, a painful issue and it was put to an end.

"It was a decision made by the university. "My decision is based solely on my abilities and desire to take the next step in basketball," Griffin said. "I am prepared to take this next step in basketball." Griffin led the nation in blocked shots (6.3 per game). He led the Pirates, averaging 17 points, to a trip to the NCAA tournament, which ranked fifth in the nation. Griffin is a second-year player.

The university said that Griffin had received a minor injury during the season and was expected to be ready for the next season.

"I am very excited about this decision," Griffin said. "I am ready to take this next step in my career."

Griffin is the first Michigan player to be named to the national team, and he has been a regular in the starting lineup for the past three seasons.

Griffin's decision comes after the announcement that he will not return to Michigan for the 2002-03 season.

Relievers Matt Winn and Nick Barnhart helped Penn hold La Salle under.

By Will Ulrich

Baseball coach Bill Barnhorst said he was pleased with the win, and that it was a huge relief for the team.

"It's real nice to see [Barnhorst] do that," said Barnhorst."You always have high praise for someone that gives it their best, and that's what we got tonight.

"He's been bothered by a back injury," Barnhorst said. "So it's real important for him to get a chance to go out there and pitch and do his job, and that's what he did today.

"Penn senior first baseman Ron Rolph said.

"It was a huge win for us, and it was a huge relief for the team.

"We needed to bounce back, and we did that tonight.
